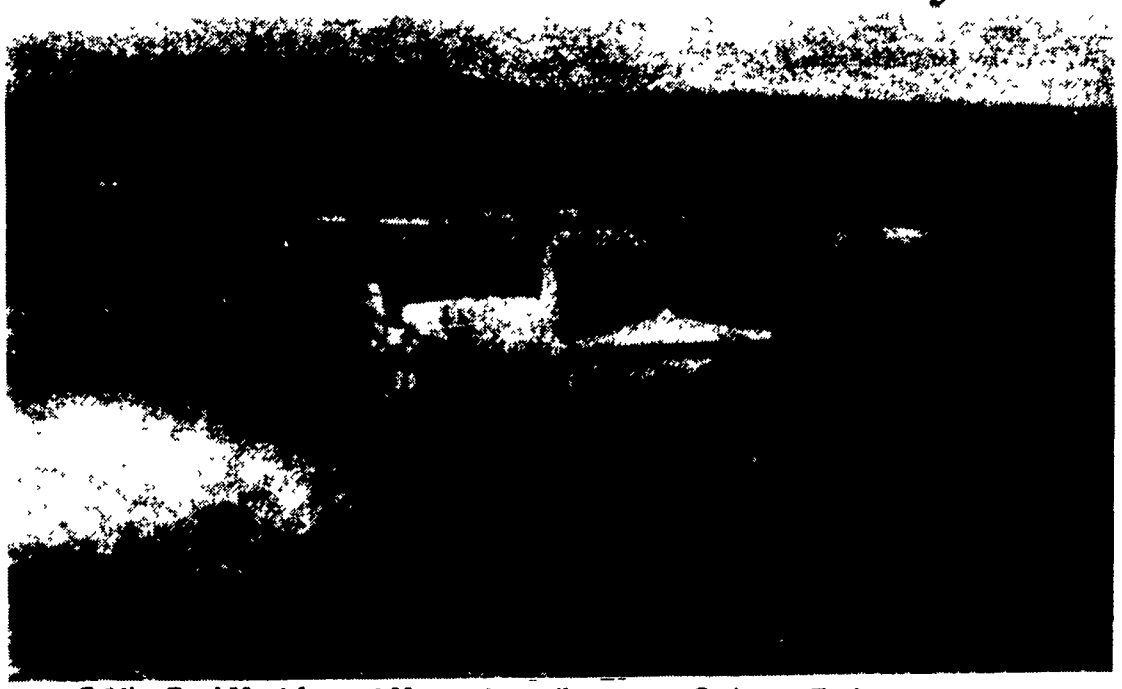
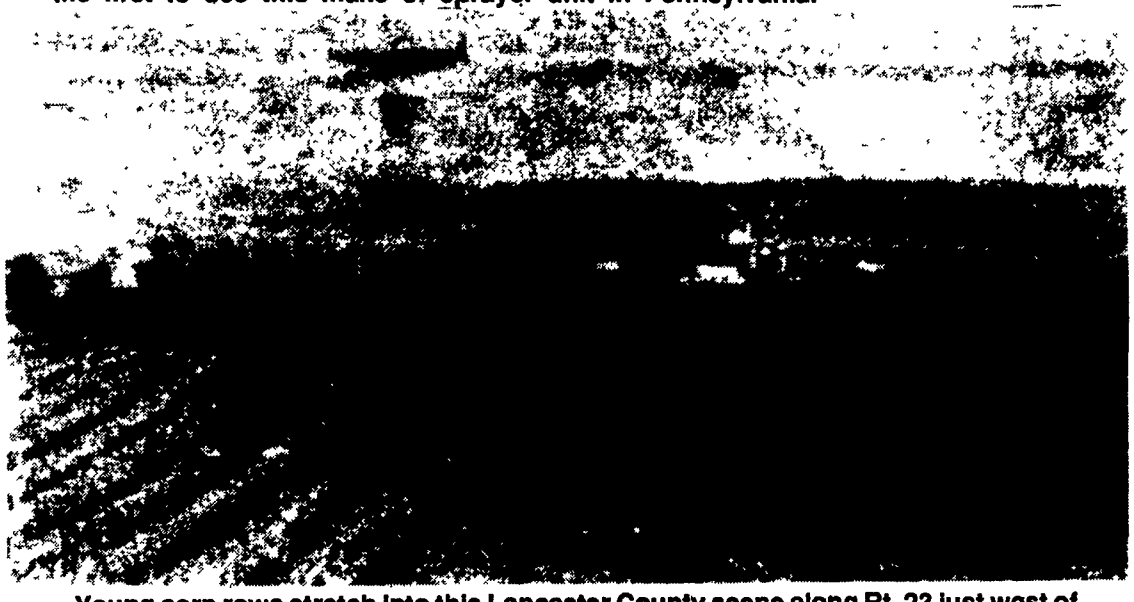
VOL. 33 No. 32 | Four Sections | Lancaster Farming, Saturday, June 18, 1988 | 50¢ Per Copy | $10.00 Per Year

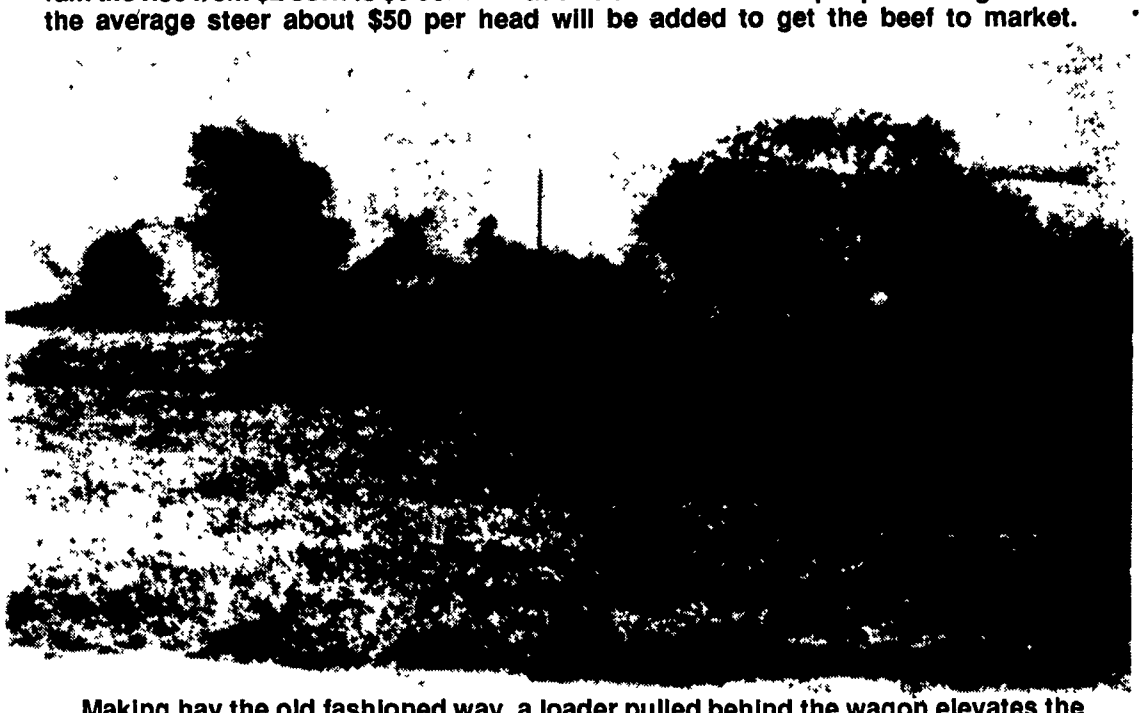
Scenes In Lancaster County



On the Paul Mast farm at Morgantown (Lancaster Co.) son, Ernie, sprays some of their 110 acres of potatoes Thursday afternoon. The spuds are in blossom. The spray unit with the high clearance frame is in use for the first time this year. And while this type of unit is used in New York State and the Carolinas, these local potato farmers are the first to use this make of sprayer unit in Pennsylvania.



Young corn rows stretch into this Lancaster County scene along Rt. 23 just west of Churchtown. While this corn looks good, drought across the midwestern Corn Belt has skyrocketed December corn prices on the futures market limit up on several days this week. One Ephrata beef farmer reported that in a heavy grain ration feeding program the rise from $2 corn to $3 corn will add 10 cents to the cost per pound of gain. On the average steer about $50 per head will be added to get the beef to market.



Making hay the old fashioned way, a loader pulled behind the wagon elevates the long hay from the rolls onto the wagon. These Lancaster County farmers were at work along Rt. 322 west of Blue Ball on Thursday afternoon.

Farmland Saved From School's "Over-Reaching"

BY MARJORIE KEEN
Chester Co. Correspondent

WEST CHESTER — Calling the Octorara School Board's condemnation of Naaman King's farm "an abuse of discretion", Chester County Common Pleas Judge Charles Smith ruled Monday against the school district's taking 102 acres by eminent domain. Taking land in excess of actual need, the judge said, violates the policy of the county and the commonwealth to preserve and protect agricultural land.

"We are concerned with the continuing erosion of agricultural land to the wave of development," Smith's opinion stated. "Clearly no governmental unit should take from private ownership no more land than it absolutely needs."

Although the judge agreed that the school district needs 30 acres in the near term for athletic fields and a new elementary school, he labeled Octorara's taking of the additional 72 acres for projected twenty-first century needs "over-reaching". By condemning more land than the schools actually need, the board is denying King the appreciated value of the land some years in the future, said Smith.

"We all have learned that the cost of an item may well cause us to forgo its acquisition and we somehow get along without it," Smith said.

Last November the school district, which straddles the Lancaster-Chester county line, filed in court its intention to take King's Highland Road farm. The crop land, planted in corn and potatoes, lies directly across Highland Road from Octorara's central-

GETTYSBURG (Adams) — When Dick Waybright graduated from high school in 1948 he and his father Clarence and his brother Horace milked 12 cows by hand, farmed with horses, and heaped hay. In September of that year the Waybrights had their largest milk check ever for 4,386 pounds of milk in a month.

Now the Waybrights milk that amount in less than two hours and that 12-cow herd has grown to 1278. Things have changed from the days when work was confined to the original 365-acre tract. But don't let the size fool you. This 2100-acre operation is still a family farm.

Hard work and ingenuity from many members of the Waybright family tree and from those employees who have become members of the extended family can be credited with the growth and success of Mason Dixon. On the farm are Dick's four sons, Bert, Doyle, Alan, and Joel; Horace's son, Jeff and son-in-law, Tom

Midwestern Drought Causes Soaring Soybean Prices, Frenzied Futures Speculation

BY LISA RISSER

LITITZ (Lancaster) — Livestock farmers can expect to be paying more dearly for feedstuffs this year thanks to the drought situation around the country. Most severly hit have been South and North Dakota and eastern Montana where the lack of snowfall combined with a dry spring has caused a severe drought. One that U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng has likened to conditions during the Dust Bowl era.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has declared a drought emergency in 18 states.

The Cornbelt states such as Illinois, Indiana, and Iowa have been in a drought situation since the latter part of winter and early spring. The Iowa hay crop has been cut in half, hundreds of Mississippi River barges are backed up due to low water levels, Wisconsin has instated a strict burning ban, Illinois communities have imposted water-use restrictions, and Indians from the Rosebud Indians Reservation in South Dakota have been persuaded to perform a raindance in northern Ohio.

"They (Midwest states) are in a drought," reported Dean Kristiniak, weatherologist from Lake Ariel. "However, a good rainfall will bring them back."

The drought has caused concern among all industries that use grain, resulting in predictions of higher feed and food prices, a flurry of ACRES CORN UPDATE: Corn futures today opened and closed locked limit up with prices propelled by the absence of significant rainfall. Forecasts for continued hot and dry weather increased anxiety over crop stress and added further buying incentive, along with rumors of soviet interest in purchases of U.S. Corn. A weak front is producing light rain in parts of the belt.

ACRES SOYBEAN UPDATE: Soybean futures closed limit up today having attained that goal early in the session. July beans traded in a 7 cent range for the first 30 minutes and then locked limit up. Oil and Meal also closed out the day locked limit up. Forecasts for hot and dry weather fueled the buying enthusiasm today with only a slight prospect for rain in the near future. A weak front is moving through the belt now producing isolated rainfall. Soybeans are now at new 4-1/2 year highs, with meal at an 11 year high.

ACRES WHEAT UPDATE: Wheat futures closed locked limit up this afternoon, having attained that goal shortly after the opening. Again, new contract highs were made today as bullish weather forecasts continued to power this market. July wheat closed at $3.94, after an opening at $3.80. Spillover from limit up openings in corn added further support.

ACRES CATTLE UPDATE: Today's limit up gains in grain forced live cattle and feeders to close limit down in most options. Weak cash fundamentals and light boxed beef movement added to the selling momentum along with fears of stock liquidation due to the drought. The front four options in live cattle closed limit down while all feeder options locked limit down. Pre-estimates of Friday's Cattle on Feed Report are calling for placements of 2.03 million head, or 12% above the 10 year average.

OPINION

Harvest Safety

For any harvest to be a good one, it must be safe. Here are basic suggestions from the National Safety Council to help make yours accident-free:

Read and follow recommendations in the operator's manual for each machine used.

Make sure workers are trained and competent.

Keep all shielding in place. Stay away from unshielded moving parts.

Turn off the power before unclogging or dealing with operating problems. Use the proper tools for the job.

Don't rely on hydraulics to hold up combine headers and other components. Lock or block them securely.

Keep children and non-workers off and away from machinery.

Adjust travel speed to ground and crop conditions. Avoid ditches, steep slopes, obstacles, etc.

Be sure wagons and other equipment used to transport and handle harvested crops are working properly and operated safely. Be extra careful when moving portable grain augers and elevators if overhead power lines are near.

When hauling, obey all rules of the road. Make sure SMV emblems are visible and that lights work properly.

Wear needed personal protective equipment (respirators, hearing and eye protection, etc.) when working conditions dictate. Choose comfortable, well-fitting work garb.

Take breaks with non-alcoholic refreshments to reduce fatigue.

In many parts of the Lancaster Farming circulation area the weather has made planting and harvesting difficult. Don't take a momentary chance that could cause a lifetime of sorrow.

FARM FORUM OUR READERS WRITE

Editor:

I would sincerely like to see my article on the front page of the Lancaster Farming. Also, I would like to see less articles as the one I'm writing about.

People should stick to their own job and leave farming to farmers. In response to "Dairymen's Milking Practices Deserve A Second Look," June 4 issue, 'there are many farmers out there who should decide what they want to do: Milk cows or play with tractors' well, in my opinion, show me the cow I can milk and don't have to feed and I'll take 100.

You can't milk cows and not farm if you intend to reap a profit. It's been a known fact down through history of the dairy industry that you must produce the best quality feed stuffs to achieve maximum production and these crops are often too expensive or unavailable unless you raise your own and unfortunately this means many hours on the tractor or as Rich states "playing with tractors."

These same toys too have been responsible for many deaths and dismembered farmers. Maybe Mr. Thompson would enjoy playing 12 hours on my tractor and still have to milk a bunch of loving Holsteins.

Also, in his comment on quality and production, better take a closer look and do a little homework before making such a statement. We also should not forget we don't set the price for our milk and therefore can't always afford to hire all the help we should have. Maybe more effort should be spent on trying to raise our slumping milk

NOW IS THE TIME

By Jay Irwin

To Feed Dry Matter On Pasture

Pastures are growing well again due to a couple of good showers. This means that livestock can utilize some dry matter while on pasture. This can include hay, straw or silage. With the dry matter present, they will consume a moderate amount along with the fresh grass.

The dry matter slows down the passage of the lush forage through the digestive system. Also, it reduces the danger of bloating when there is clover or alfalfa in the forage mixture. If the animals are out all of the time, then a portable hay rack would be the way to feed hay or straw. Dry matter intake is important when pastures are lush and high in water content.

To Check Lighting For Layers

One of the cardinal rules for poultry management is to never decrease the light period of flocks in production. Most flock managers would never intentionally decrease the day length to a flock in production, but we are in the season of the year when this can happen accidentally.

Most layers are in a light-controlled not light-tight housing. The major sources of light leakage are the exhaust fans and air intake. Pullet flocks placed in the laying house during late fall, winter or spring can be given a 14 hour day. As summer approaches and natural day length exceeds 14 hours, layers in non-light tight housing will be exposed to an increasing day length due to the light entering the building through fans and air intakes.

This increases in day length causes no problem. The longest day occurs on June 21 and decreases until December 21. It is this decrease in day length that can cause layers to go out of production unless the time clocks controlling the lights are readjusted to provide the layers with the day length they received on June 21.

To Use The Agronomy Guide

The 1987-88 Agronomy Guide is published by our Penn State Cooperative Extension, and is one of the very best handbooks for all farmers. This Guide has been published for years and is updated every two years.

Copies are available at any Extension Office in Pennsylvania for a cost of only $5.00. We urge farmers to purchase a copy and use it. I am concerned that many farmers who have them are not using them. Answers to numerous phone calls asking about crop practices can be found in the Agronomy Guide. I suggest that each farmer index the crops being grown with tabs so the information can be found more rapidly.

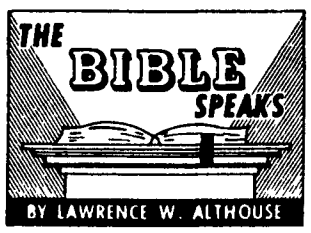
On one of these rainy days become more familiar with the contents of this Guide. It is very useful and contains dependable and researched information.

To Renovate Strawberries

Since the harvest of the strawberry crop is nearly over, it is a good time to plant for next year. In most cases, plants that have yielded two or more crops cannot be expected to do as well in the future. However, if the current planting is to be used for another year we suggest that the rows be worked by the use of mechanical cultivation and followed by top-dressing with fertilizer. These practices will keep the berry plants in a row and encourage additional runners to increase next year's yield.

In the case of a new planting of strawberries, we urge you to fertilize them in June and again in early August. This extra plant food will enable the setting of runners and will help increase yield next year.

The Penn State Cooperative Extension is an affirmative action, equal opportunity educational institution.



WHO AM I TO DO THAT?

June 19, 1988

Background Scripture:
Exodus 2:23 through 4:17.
Devotional Reading:
Jeremiah 1:4-12.

"Whom am I that I should go to Pharoah, and bring the sons of Israel out of Egypt?" Moses had a good question there. And some of his implied answers were just as good:

-- I'm 80 years old and well past my prime.

-- I don't know who you are.

-- I'm an escaped murderer still wanted in Egypt.

-- I'm a man rejected by my own people.

-- I'm neither a leader nor a speaker.

They are all good answers. But the trouble is that they were logical and truthful only within the limitation of Moses' mind and understanding. If he didn't know which god this was, God would tell him: "I am who I am" (3:14). If he was right in fearing rejection by the Hebrews, God would give him signs with which to persuade them. And if Moses was right in observing that he had no skills as a speaker, God would provide Aaron, Moses' brother, to be his spokesman.

SOME OTHER PERSON

Still, Moses protested: "Oh my Lord, send, I pray, some other person" (4:13b). His logical arguments shot down, Moses reacts, not with logic, but with illogic. God has already answered all his possible objections by assuring him: "...I will be with you" (3:12). Moses is right in asserting that he is not adequate for this task, but it is God's adequacy, not Moses', that will see him through and prevail.

You and I can appreciate Moses' feelings. From time to time we are challenged to do something about injustice, tragedy or some other human need. We would like to help, but when we look at the thing realistically we know that there's nothing we can do. Like Moses, we are forced to protest: "Who am I that I could do anything about that?" Like Moses we are either "too old" or "too young," "too powerless," "too poor," "too busy," "too" something. We are convinced that "they" are not going to respond to us or what we might try to do. The mission is far greater than our resources, so we respond with Moses: "Oh, my Lord, send, I pray, some other person."

WHAT MOSES BELIEVED

That's when, according to the writer of Exodus, "Then the anger of the Lord was kindled against Moses..." (4:14). What angered God, was not just that Moses was saying "No," but that he was rejecting God's assurance that he could be successful if he relied upon God's help. Moses believed in his own inadequacies more than he believed in God's power and faithfulness.

As we read the story of God's call to Moses in the Burning Bush, we can't help thinking that Moses was certainly thickheaded. For a chapter and a half he holds out against God's persuasions, in every case coming up with a "Yes, but..." that would exhaust anyone's patience. What took Moses so long to realize what all of us with our powers of hindsight recognize so easily? The answer: just about what takes us so long when God makes a proposal to us. We all tend to focus on our inadequacies instead of the power of God. We forget that, when God calls us to a task, we don't have to do it all by ourselves.

The question is not, "Who are we to do this for God?" but "Who are we to say 'No'?"

Don't Blame Your Age For Poor Hearing.

Chicago, IL — A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of the most popular canal hearing aid in America today will be given absolutely free to anyone who sends for this free model now.

It's yours for the asking, so send for it now. It is not a real hearing aid, but it will show you how tiny hearing help can be. The actual aid weighs less than an eighth of an ounce, and if fits completely into the ear canal.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Although a hearing aid may not help everyone, more and more people with hearing losses are being helped. For your free sample, send your name, address and phone number today to: Department 85371, Beltone Electronics Corporation, 4201 West Victoria Street, Chicago, Illinois 60646.

ACRES NEXT DAY OUTLOOK: cash -steady to weak futures-steady to lower

ACRES HOG UPDATE: Live hog futures closed limit down in most months with bellies closing limit down for the front two months. Today's losses were attributed to weakening cash fundamentals and limit up gains in the grains. Unfilled sell orders on the close numbered nearly 200 contracts for the June option. Higher than expected receipts also pressured with cooler temperatures forecasted, which will encourage more selling amid higher feed costs.

ACRES NEXT DAY OUTLOOK: cash - steady to lower futures - steady to lower.

FmHA Proposes Rules To Assist Delinquent Borrowers

WASHINGTON, DC — New rules that could assist thousands of farmers who are behind on their loans with the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Farmers Home Administration were proposed today by the USDA credit agency.

The rules, governing portions of the Agricultural Credit Act passed by Congress last December, would allow FmHA to reduce the delinquent debt of certain borrowers so they could continue their farming operations, according to Vance L. Clark, FmHA administrator.

The proposed regulations also would make it easier for some farmers who have recently lost their farms through foreclosure or by other means to lease or buy them back. Under the new rules, former owner/borrowers and their families would have first right of refusal to reclaim their farms under certain conditions.

Clark said the new law was designed to help farmers who got into financial trouble through no fault of their own. "We will implement this program with strict regard to the spirit, as well as the letter, of the law," he said. Clark invited the public to review the proposed rules and submit comments. "These are preliminary," he said, "with a 30-day comment period. The final rules won't be issued until all comments are considered."

The proposed regulations would allow FmHA to reduce a farmer's delinquent debt to the recovery value of the collateral, typically land or farm equipment, it if would help the farmer qualify for a restructured loan, and if repayment on the loan would be at least as much as could be expected from foreclosure.

The regulatory impact statement issued with the proposed rules estimates that as much as $2.1 billion in overdue loans could be written down under this provision. The statement also predicts that, in addition to the 16,200 borrowers who will benefit directly from the new write-down regulations, another 37,000 delinquent borrowers will qualify for normal FmHA servicing actions. Approximately 118,000 FmHA farm program borrowers are currently behind on their payments.

Among related actions, FmHA has proposed regulations to establish a new administrative appeals unit distinct from the agency's program divisions to handle borrower grievances. The agency also has recently adopted final rules permitting FmHA borrowers to serve on FmHA county committees, and allowing FmHA to participate in farmer mediation programs in states that have programs certified by FmHA.

In addition, FmHA has proposed regulations that would set aside funds to help members of minority and socially disadvantaged groups purchase farmland. The agency is developing a minority outreach program to inform minority groups of such benefits.

Written comments on the porposed regulations may be submitted to the Office of the Chief, Directives Management Branch, Farmers Home Administration, Room 6348-South, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Air Conditioning For Barns?

BY R.E. GRAVES
PSU Ag Engineering Ext.

STATE COLLEGE (Centre) — As the temperature goes up and the milk tank sticks goes down we get the same questions on cow cooling. Can I air condition my barn to control the temperature? Yes. Can I afford to pay for the system? Almost always no! Dr. Buffington, the Head of the Department of Agricultural Engineering, did a lot of work on cow comfort when he was in Florida. He advises that it takes about one-half ton of refrigeration for each large (Holstein or Swiss) dairy cow. This will provide cooling capacity and still allow ventilation at 4-6 air changes per hour. (Normally up to 60 air changes per hour are recommended.) It is important to remember that even with air conditioning you must still exchange outside air for inside air to get rid of moisture and other air contaminants and provide fresh oxygen. A typical household window air conditioner is about one-half ton. Picture 40 air conditioners sticking out the windows of a 40 cow barn. Also picture paying $400-500 apiece for each one. That's quite an investment. Then add the problems of operating the units, changing air filters and buying electricity.

Unless you have a lot of extra money you may wish to consider what other steps you can take first.

- Are the cows given access to adequate shade (about 50 sq. ft. per cow) or kept in a well ventilated barn?
- Do you provide for air movement of 2-5 mph across the cows?
- Is there adequate cool fresh water conveniently available?

When looking at your present barn be sure you have adequate inlets and exhaust fans to remove hot smelly air. Be sure that open windows near exhaust fans aren't causing short circuiting. If you have fans blowing air along the cows are they aimed at the cows or the milkers? If large window areas receive direct sunlight consider whitewashing the windows or building awnings.

In naturally ventilated barns be sure you have an adequate ridge opening to exhaust hot foul air and removable sidewalls to promote cross ventilation at cow level.

An article by Dr. Buffington in the May issue of Agricultural Engineering Notes provides more detailed information on shading.

Self-Proclaimed Steward's Of The Soil Practice Low-Input Farming

BY LISA RISSER

Editor's note: This is the second in a two-part series on low-input farming. The first appeared in the June 4 issue.

LITITZ (Lancaster) — Roman and Lucy Stoltzfoos and Claude Hess are among a fast-growing number of farmers who consider themselves stewards of their land. They believe in carefully managing the soil using few inputs rather than heaping on commercial fertilizers and chemicals.

Hess and the Stoltzfooses have turned to low-input farming as a way to nurture the land while earning a living from it. Although each is at a different stage in implementing low-input methods, both profess to be in the learning stages. "I'm excited (about low-input farming), but I want to go slow enough so I don't make big mistakes," said Hess. "I'm in kindergarten, but I'm a believer."

The Stoltzfooses and their four children farm 165 acres of land situated southeast of Lancaster in Kinzer. They currently are renting this land and an additional 50 acres of pasture from his father to raise dairy cows and turkeys.

When they began farming in 1983, they followed conventional thinking. Corn fields received a light application of manure, which was disced in, followed by an application of Sutan or Eradacane or both. This was worked in two times before planting, later the fields were side-dressed with liquid nitrogen.

Alfalfa fields received a split application of 600 pounds of potash, limed off and on depending on soil tests, and sprayed for weeds and insecticides.

Chemicals were costly

During their first year of farming, the Stoltzfooses spent more than $13,000 on fertilizer and chemical costs. The next year they reduced that amount by only $1,000. "That first year we farmed we spent a lot more than we wanted to," related Lucy. "One reason we got into low input was because we needed to keep cutting costs."

The Stoltzfoos land is completely off chemicals now. "Chemicals do remedy the situation, but we don't feel it's worth it," declared Stoltzfoos. "We're interested in doing things the healthy way. We'd like to provide a product that we don't have to be answering to anyone on its quality."

Last year the Stoltzfooses paid out slightly more than $64 in chemical costs, but that was to do some rescue spraying on eight acres, which didn't receive proper cultivation because Roman was sick during that time.

The Stoltzfooses believe that low-input farming has helped their herd's health. "We saw a substantial difference on the health of the animals when we began feeding the crops (that had less or no chemicals applied to their soil)," Stoltzfoos said. Lucy agreed, adding "Cows freshened more easily, we had less problems with twisted stomachs, and there wasn't as much mastitis."

The Stoltzfooses aren't sure if the difference in the crops is the sole factor in their herd's improved health, but they feel the coincidence is too strong to discount.

Herbicide amount halved

Stoltzfoos began reducing his inputs before 1986, but that is the year he really put a dent in the amount of chemicals he applied. He had been combatting a Johnson grass problem, and the pesticides he applied didn't seem to do much after the first application. So in '86 he asked his custom sprayer how much chemical would be needed for reasonable weed control, if they ignored the Johnson grass. He also decided to cut fertilizer applications other than a layer of manure.

"I took less than half what I was told would work," explained Stoltzfoos. "I didn't feel my management was up to going completely off chemicals at once. Until we learned how to cultivate and get the ground healthier, we felt we needed some chemical."

Stoltzfoos estimated that '86 was a fairly good year for him in terms of yields. This encouraged him to cut out pesticide and commercial fertilizer usage entirely in 1987. "The yields we had in '87 without weed control or fertilizer, without nitrogen, without insecticides, was as good as we've ever had," he stated. In addition, "since the reduction of chemicals, the soil is looser and a lot more pleasant to work with."

Claude Hess farms more than 700 acres of land in southeastern Pennsylvania. Besides corn, he grows wheat, alfalfa, and, soybeans.

Last year Stoltzfoos prepared his corn fields by applying liquid manure treated with beneficial bacteria, which was disced in immediately, followed by an application of liquid bacteria, P3K, mixed in water. Next he disced twice and planted using Pioneer 3358 corn seed. Five days after planting he ran a drag harrow to control weeds. Further weed control came from cultivating the fields twice.

At harvest time, which Stoltzfoos has done by a custom harvestor, Stoltzfoos had a Pioneer weigh wagon come out and measure his yields. Of the fields measured, the range was 113 to 153 bushels per acre.

Improving soil conditions

In addition to cutting chemical and commercial fertilizer usage, the Stoltzfooses are attempting to improve the condition of their soil, a factor crucial to the success of low-input farming. The farm has a manure pit capable of holding a year's worth of manure from 65 to 75 cows. "At first we spread some in the spring and some in the fall, but now everything is spread in the fall because of (the) compaction (that occurs) in the spring," said Stoltzfoos. "We also feel that manure being applied in fall gives the bacteria time to digest manure."

Stoltzfoos is doing some experimenting now with fertilizers and natural additives such as calcium to see what happens to the soil and to yields.

The Stoltzfooses use a high-calcium lime when soil tests indicate the need for either, which doesn't happen often. "Other farmers use high-magnesium lime, which we wouldn't consider using because we have a magnesium-lime soil. We feel calcium is the most important element in the soil. If the calcium is high, you can get away with other problems."

Roman Stoltzfoos tests the sugar content of his alfalfa using a refractometer. The higher the sugar content, usually the higher the crop is in trace minerals. Manufacturers of the device contend that a high sugar content in crops keeps away insects, which don't like the taste.

Marginal lands are producing increased yields for the Stoltzfooses as pasture rather than cropland. Stoltzfoos fenced off some marginal cropland and now rotates his herd of 75 cows in different pastures, which allows grasses to stay healthy and not be overgrazed.

Crops also are rotated on the Stoltzfoos farm. "My goal is to not keep corn in a field more than two years," he said. "I do some now but that's where I want to be eventually."

Currently he has 75 acres in corn, 60 in hay, 15 in wheat, and 15

THREE NEW STEPS TO SUCKER CONTROL.

Now you can save time and get effective sucker control by spraying Prime+® over the top and following up later with an application of MH.

It's a simple, sequential application. Just spray Prime+ over the top at the early flower to elongated bud stage. Wait a week, then apply MH. You'll get great sucker control plus the convenience of over the top application.

It's the way to grow quality tobacco. Of course, applying Prime+ by hand with a dropline, by backpack sprayer or from the jug is still in oats. Stoltzfoos is experimenting with his hay fields and leans more toward mixes such as orchard grass and alfalfa. This year he put 20 units of nitrogen in the form of ammonia sulfate on his hay, which usually gets nothing, to see how it works out.

Hess looks into low input

For the past 11 years, Claude Hess has avoided using drugs and antibiotics in his pullet operation. He reported that the birds are laying more eggs, and the eggs are of a better quality than he had been getting.

"Then I began wondering if I couldn't do the same thing with my soil," he said. That's when he became interested in low-input farming.

Three years ago Hess got into land in a big way when he began purchasing land on to which to spread his chicken manure. Currently he has more than 600 acres scattered around southeastern Pennsylvania, the home farm is in Manheim.

Hess, a member of Professional Farmers Institute, began sending away for information on low-input farming, signing up for courses, and talking to people. He also hired an agronomist to take care of recordkeeping, soil tests, crop checks, and recommendations.

"I'm going slow because I'm not sure where I'm going (with (low-input farming). I'm in the learning and question stage," stated Hess.

The winter of 1986-'87 Hess began to implement some of the ideas he'd been hearing about. He spread calcium in the form of high-calcium limestone and chose alcite clover, because it is a natural nitrogen source, to spread in with 35 acres of wheat for a cover crop. The next fall he left the shredded fodder for residue, which he incorporated into the soil with a chisel plow the following spring.

This spring Hess hydroseeded 80 additional acres in alcite clover, putting seed in liquid nitrogen and spraying it over the field. He also used liquid N and 10-20-20 starter in the fields where chicken manure wasn't available. Where corn had been the year before, he sprayed Furadan and herbicides. Limestone had been applied earlier in the year while the ground was still frozen to avoid compaction. Insecticide use has been cut by about 25 to 30 percent, and herbicides have been cut 25 percent for soybeans and clover.

Hess uses a chisel plow on his fields as well as a field cultivator with a 5-row spike harrow. He also purchased a new cultivator that works in no-till and ridge-till applications. He wanted this flexibility in case he decides to try his hand at ridge tilling. The cultivater is reputed to aerate soil between rows thereby supplying air and water.

Hess believes in crop rotation, not using muriated potash, and keeping the manure in top layer of the soil because "if it is plowed under the ground and it gets no oxygen, it can get into the drinking water more quickly. Manure and trash should be near the surface so they'll decompose aerobically."

He also believes that farmers should use calcium generously. "Don't cheat on calium: it's cheap, helps balance the soil, and, in calcium carbonate form, you can get carbon in the soil."

Underlying message

The underlying message from both Hess and the Stoltzfooses is that a farmer interested in low-input farming should do his homework. Like Hess, the Stoltzfooses did quite a bit of research before they began working with low-input farming so that they wouldn't have a crop failure. And that's the route they recommend for any farmer interested in changing his farming practices.

"When farmers call up and ask how I did it, I tell them we got away from muriated potash, excess nitrogen, and chemical pesticides," said Stoltzfoos. "We suggest experimenting with small plots in different parts of the farm such as the orchard, garden, hay, and corn to see how it works."

Although the farm is much improved, the Stoltzfooses feel they still have a long way to go before their crops, soil, and animals are in balance with each other. "We're still suffering from chemicals," they said. "We'd like to get the soil in better shape, get the chemical residues out and build humous and organic matter so the soil is less erodible."

Hess also feels he's got a long way to go, but he's taking his time so he can achieve a balance between using chemicals and not using any additive. "The bottom line is dollars and cents," he explained. "But coupled with that is stewardship of the soil. Too many farmers are mining the soil. You should feed it so it will feed you and your children and grandchildren."

PSU College Of Ag Students Win Speaking Contest

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — Six students in the College of Agriculture received cash awards this spring for their winning presentations in the annual Guldin Speaking contest at Penn State.

First prize went to Jill L. Kutz, daughter of Du Wayne A. Kutz of Tunkhannock, for her presentation, "Promoting Nature's Most Nearly Perfect Food." Her speech dealt with the promotion of dairy products,including promotional trends in the 1980s. Jill is a junior majoring in agricultural economics with a minor in speech communications.

Second place went to Ann Grumbine, daughter of Ray and Martha Grumbine of Myerstown. Her speech, "Just Plants," focused on the asthetic quality of house and landscape plants and said that they enrich the quality of our lives. Ann is a junior majoring in horticulture.

Laurie Winward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Winward of Whitehouse Station, New Jersey, won third place. Her speech, "Chemicals In Our Foods," focused on sorbic acid and how and when it creates problems of toxicity. Laurie is a senior majoring in food science. Other winners were:

David E. Blank, son of Elam R. and Dorothy Blank of Parkesburg. His speech, "Farmland vs. Urban Pressure," was concerned with the issues of farmland preservation and outlined current measures to protect agriuclutral land. David is a senior majoring in agricultural education.

William Hoffman, son of Lynn and Pepper Hoffman of Pennsylvania Furnace, gave a speech on "Chemical Pest Control: Issues and Answers." It focused on the use and misuse of pesticides in agriculture. William is a junior majoring in agricultural economics and rural sociology.

Jose A. Alcantara, son of Claude and Evelyn Adams of Northumberland gave a talk on "Agroforestry." He discussed the use of biomass (the volue of minute animals and plants such as protozoans and blue-green algae that live in a given habitat or area) as a potential source of fuel. Jose is a senior majoring in forest science.

The Guldin Speaking contest is made possible through funds donated in memory of Paul R. Guldin, an agricultural leader and poultry farmer in Berks County. It is sponsored by the Coaly Society, the student honor society in agriculture at Penn State.

Finalists were judged by a panel of students and faculty. This year's faculty judges were Maureen Montgomery, coach of the Penn State Speech Team, Dr. Robert Wideman, assistant professor of poultry science and Dr. Connie Baggett, assistant professor of agriculture and extension education. All students in the College of Agriculture are eligible to compete.

RCMA Asks Members To Avoid Boycott

BATAVIA, N.Y. — The Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency issued a reminder on Friday to its members, supporters and interested parties that it is the group's policy not to "support, participate in or condone any activity which might be considered a boycott."

According to William Zuber, RCMA president, RCMA appreciates the support it has received from many sources during its battle to secure fair farm prices. However, Zuber said that RCMA in no way supports a consumer boycott of supermarkets which purchase milk from dealers who oppose RCMA.

"Participation by RCMA or its members in a consumer boycott could be viewed as illegal and RCMA has worked very hard to avoid any suggestion of illegality," he said.

Zuber pointed out that members can help RCMA improve farm income by signing-up neighbors who have not joined the organization. "We'd like everyone to direct their actions in a positive manner: 100 percent membership," he said.

Pacific Northwest Hosts American Guernsey Association

COLUMBUS, OH — Guernsey breeders and enthusiasts from all over the continental United States and as far away as Australia gathered May 26-28 at The Inn at Semi-ah-moo in Blaine, Washington, for the American Guernsey Association (AGA) national convention. Little spare time was available for convention-goers as they toured area farms, the town of Lynden and part of British Columbia. Between tours, they attended meetings, awards banquets and a national sale.

Having gathered for a full day of meetings prior to the start of the convention, the board of directors finalized the decision to purchase office space for the association. The decision of the AGA board of directors, coupled with that of the American Jersey Cattle Club (AJCC) board of directors made in February, means that the two organizations will no longer be sharing office space after this year. However, the two organizations will continue joint efforts in other areas.

In his annual address, AGA President Myron "Mike" Lancaster listed the young sire programs and the move of the national office to Columbus, Ohio, as the two major accomplishments during his 10 years on the board of directors. He expressed enthusiasm for the continued joint efforts between the AGA and the AJCC. Although the two organizations will no longer share office space, programs such as Genetic Recovery, type traits appraisal, blood typing, milk marketing efforts and data processing will continue.

Erick Metzger, AGA executive secretary-treasurer, reviewed the many positive events of the past year and summarized what the AGA is looking forward to in the coming year. Emphasizing the tremendous genetic progress that the Guernsey breed has been making with each new set of bull proofs, he encouraged the membership to use the top 10 active-AI bulls and continue sampling young sires. Metzger urged the members to participate in the AGA's four main programs: registrations, Total Performance Evaluation, Guernsey Breeders' Journal advertising and cattle sales through Guernsey Marketing Service (GMS). He stated that these programs are not only sound investments for breeders of registered Guernseys, But are also the primary source of support for other AGA programs.

Looking toward the future, Metzger cited a study released from The Ohio State University which states that, in certain market situations, Guernseys are the most profitable breed. The study also demonstrated that the profit margin between Guernseys and some other breeds is narrowing. "The lower initial cost of Guernseys gives them an advantage with dairymen who are just starting out or who are expanding," Metzger stated. He reasoned that lower milk prices and more multiple-component pricing (MCP) markets will continue to give Guernseys a competitive edge. However, he reminded breeders, increased production per cow is still the key to increased profits and popularity for Guernseys.

Two new members were elected to the AGA board of directors at the meeting. Lee Riggs of Evansville, Indiana, will represent the area of Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky and Michigan. A resident of Vale, Oregon, Joe "Scottie" Payne will represent the 15-state area north and west of Texas.

Having completed the business portion of the meeting, the board of directors adjourned to elect a new executive committee. President Ralph Turley of Mansfield, Ohio, will lead the AGA for the next year with help from First Vice President Phil Tennis of Hayward, Minnesota, and Second Vice President Myron Erdman from Chenoa, Illinois.

The renowned Distinguished Service and Master Breeder awards were presented during the annual awards luncheon which followed the annual meeting. Having served the AGA for many years, two Oregonians were recognized with the Distinguished Service Award. Francis Hertel of Cornelius and Hans Leuthold of Tillamook were the recipients of this honor. The esteemed Master Breeder Award was presented to brothers Marvin and Lewis Van Mersbergen from Markwell Farm and Will-O-West Farm, respectively. Both farms are located in Lynden, Washington.

Awards for outstanding milk and butterfat production by individual cows were presented to Guernsey breeders in attendance at the banquet. This year's recipient of the Liebers Trophy for highest living lifetime milk production of 247,232 pounds of milk in 2,809 days was Royal Paulson Champion, now owned by the Royal Paulson Champion Syndicate of North Carolina. Northlyn Dariboy Deb, owned by James Assink, Lynden, Washington, earned the Valley Set Award for her high lifetime butterfat production of 11,138 pounds of butterfat in 5,020 days. With a record of 30,540 pounds of milk in 305 days, Minnies Choice Tippy's high mature-equivalent milk production garnered her the New England GBA trophy. She was owned by Eric Hipp of Saluda, South Carolina when she completed this record. Ernest R. Berousek of Yukon, Oklahoma, now owns this individual. Karla Halbert of Union, Missouri, is the owner of the Tarbell Trophy winner, Dewberry Farms Fayvor Likable. "Likable" produced a mature-equivalent record of 1,270 pounds of butterfat to secure this notation. F.T. Bedford of Nyala Farm in Connecticut is remembered each year with the presentation of the Nyala-Bedford Trophy for high mature-equivalent two-year-old production. Blossom Hill Ron Sally, bred and owned by Leonard LaRoche of Athens, Wisconsin, was the beneficiary of this award. She produced 24,960M 982F and 867P in 305 days at two years, four months of age.

Winners of the 1987 Guernsey Breeders' Journal advertisement contest were also announced: Less than full page- first-place, Goldenrose Guernseys, Readlyn, Iowa; second-place, Dale Bendig, Union Bridge, Maryland; third-place, Mid-Atlantic Guernsey Sires, Columbus, Ohio; Full page- Penn Del Farm, Willow Street, Pennsylvania; second-place, Beaver Creek Farm, Clarksville, Iowa; third-place, Marodore Farm, Baltimore, Ohio.

One of the many convention highlights each year is the youth banquet. This year's convention was no different. On the evening of Friday, May 27, convention-goers gathered in the ballroom to witness, among other things, the presentation of the National Outstanding Guernsey Youth award. Thomas Ripley of Monrovia, New York, ascended the stage to claim his plaque and a $500 Lawrence Colebank scholarship. National Outstanding Young Guernsey Farmer Debbie McDermott-Johnson of Barnum, Minnesota, requested that her husband join in accepting her award. The climax of the evening was the final address of 1987 National Guernsey Sheri Kohler of Canal Winchester, Ohio, followed by the coronation of the 1988 queen and her court. National Guernsey Queen Janice Garber of Willow Street, Pennsylvania, will promote Guernseys throughout the country during the coming year. She will have help from National Guernsey Princesses Saneta McClellan of LaPorte, Colorado, and Zena Edwards from Oakville, Washington. Among the youth recognized during this banquet were the Washington State Quiz Bowl Team, who won the competition earlier that morning. The team was coached by Gloria Edwards of Oaklville and consisted of Zena and Jerome Edwards, David Lenssen of Lynden and Dennis Jensen from Ferndale. Junior Production winners: Junior Gold Star Breeders, who have bred and developed Guernsey cows that excel in both production and type; and Junior Progressive Breeders, who have each had five animals qualify for Junior Gold Star Breeder Awards were also honored.

The National Convention and Heifer Sales took place on Saturday, May 28 to conclude the activities for the 1988 national convention. Although one would not usually expect to find cows on a tennis court, the indoor court at Semi-ah-moo was adorned with a sale ring and trellis for the 36 head that crossed the auction block to average $2,712. Topping the GMS-managed sale was an Arrow Head Andy embryo, consigned by Karla Halbert. The unborn embryo was purchased by a syndicate for $12,000. Sildons Playboy was transferred from the ownership of Donald Silacci, Petaluma, California, to a syndicate which included NOBA of Tiffin, Ohio, for $9,400. The high-selling cow of the sale was Five Star MC Ambrosia. Con-

40th Birthday For Delmarva Chicken Festival

SALISBURY, MD. — Fortieth birthdays cause most people to worry a bit, but in the case of the Delmarva Chicken Festival, 40 is a time when things just fall into stride. Autumnlike weather, large crowds and a cast of 25 chicken cooking contest hopefuls combined to produce one of the best festivals ever.

Perhaps in honor of the festival's acquiring a new "world's largest frying pan," the three winners of the cooking contest all used frying pans to prepare their prize recipes before a crowd of thousands.

The host city of Salisbury, Maryland, site of the 1949 festival which introduced the nation's first chicken cooking contest, took things in stride with its 9th edition of an event that flowed without a hitch.

A Cumberland, Rhode Island art teacher, Mrs. Muriel Brody, took top honors in the cooking contest with a dish titled (very appropriately) "Olympic Seoul Chicken." It was her first ever entry in a cooking contest.

Second place honors in the cooking contest went to Marjorie Farr of Rockville, Maryland, who developed her "Chicken With Fruit and Mixed Mustards" recipe as part of her search for healthier recipes. An Enosburg East, Vermont, nurse, Raymonde F. Woodward, produced the third place recipe, "Chicken Timatar."

Also playing a major role in the serious side of the Chicken Festival was a group of more than 50 food editors from across the country who came to observe the contest and learn first hand the dynamics of Delmarva's immense broiler chicken production industry.

The Chicken Festival and its cooking contest honor an industry which provides more than 20,000 jobs in the region and produces almost half a billion chickens each year with a 1987 value of over $1 billion.

Debuting this year was a new frying pan built by the folks at the Mumford Sheet Metal Works of Selbyville, Delaware, builder of the first one in 1950. The 1988 model got a good workout from the members of the Salisbury Lions Club who fried thousands of chickens in it for three days straight.

No chicken festival is without its lighter moments and this year was no exception. Ronald McDonald strolled the grounds to the delight of children and a giant costumed chicken was also in evidence.

A local radio station, WICO, came up with the newest event, a 50-foot egg drop in which those brave enough to try it tried catching eggs dropped by the station's Dave Parks suspended in a chair by a giant crane. Those who caught the raw eggs, without breaking them, won $50 in cash.

The ever-popular olympics of Delmarva poultrydom, "Chicken Capers," featured crowing contests, egg toss matches, spoon races, a relay which saw many eggs splattered, many contestants fall by the wayside, but no eggs bruised.

When it came to the capers' matches featuring teams from the various poultry processing companies, the Cargill processing plant of Harbeson, Delaware took the laurels. Honors in the event for growout teams were taken by the Perdue Farms team.

For the children, the chicken scratch event saw a record set by Jason Opel, 10, of Princess Anne, Maryland, who dove into a heap of dusty feed meal and emerged with $2.65 in assorted coins.

Hosting the 40th festival was the Salisbury Area Chamber of Commerce which used Dean Gray and Keith Iott was co-chairman to make the thousand and one arrangements involved.

Dr. Keith E. Rinehart, president of the Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc., the sponsor organization, put things in perspective by noting, "The Chicken Festival allows us to take time out to celebrate the poul-

30 YEARS AGO
THIS WEEK

— Miss Janet Koser, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Koser, R2 Manheim, is the 1958 Lancaster County Poultry Queen and a candidate for the title of "Miss Pennsylvania Poultry Industry."

Miss Koser was chosen for this honor Saturday evening at the annual Lancaster Poultry Assn. barbeque at Lititz Springs Park.

Attendant to the queen was Miss Rosemary Andrews, R7 Lancaster.

— A recent University of Connecticut graduate, Winthrop Merriam Jr., will be the new assistant county agent in Lancaster County, according to an announcement Monday by Dr. H.R. Albrecht, extension director.

Merriam's appointment will start July 1, although he is expected to report in the county on June 17.

— Lancaster County is represented at state FFA Week at Penn State this week by 62 boys. The agriculture students will participate in judging contests, sing in the state chorus and play in the state band.

— Pennsylvania farmers need a period of hot weather to stimulate the growth of crops, the State Department of Agriculture said today.

While rains Monday night and Tuesday night might help in some areas, the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service also reported the need for additional rainfall in most sections of the Commonwealth.

— A one point decline in the index of prices received by Pennsylvania farmers in mid-May for all their products except dairy was reported today by the State Department of Agriculture.

— A special feature of the eighth annual chicken barbecue sponsored by the Lancaster County Poultry Assn. At Lititz Springs Park on Saturday, was a chicken cooking contest in which nine contestants demonstrated their culinary skill. The cooks were divided into two divisions: the adult group and the group fewer than 19 years of age.

The winner of the senior division was Mrs. C. Warren Leininger, Denver R2, a mother of two children. She was awarded a portable hair dryer by the association as her prize for the best platter of fried chicken. The second prize in the senior division, an electric steam iron, was awarded to Mrs. Samuel J. Bailey, 846 Eden Road, Lancaster, also for fried chicken.

The winner of the junior division was Joyce Nolt, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos N. Nolt, Reinholds R1. Joyce is a 10th grade student at Cocalico Union High School and was awarded a portable mixer for her paprika fried chicken. The second prize, a portable radio, was given to Kay Eby, 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eby, 1013 Lititz Pike, Lancaster, for her baked chicken. Kay is a sixth grade student at Brecht School, Manheim Twp.

Delmarva Chicken Festival

try industry and also helps us focus on how important the industry is to Delmarva."

The festival began in 1948 when the nation's poultry industry was marking its 25th birthday. It began as a challenge to create "The Chicken of Tomorrow" in which the country's poultry breeding companies were invited to submit their best eggs. The eggs were sent to Delmarva, hatched, the birds were grown out and then presented for processing and judging at that first festival.

Since that time, led by Delmarva poultry people, the industry has achieved many changes. Today it produces birds that weigh 25% more, grow out in half the time, use half the feed, while at the same time are lower in fat and are meatier than they were in 1948.

Poultry today is the leading meat consumed by Americans, having passed per capita consumption of pork and beef during the 1980's. The chicken of today costs less in real money than it did in 1948 and is the staple meat of diet and value aware consumers.

As part of the festival's industry exhibit, there was a model of what the broiler growout house of the not so distant future will be. It was computer based and hooked via telephone lines to an experimental broiler house near Gainesville, Georgia. Viewers could watch how the computer system monitored key functions such as humidity, temperature, lighting, feed and water. Such environmental factors are regarded by poultry researchers as the most promising area for further production refinement and progress in the industry.

Its name "PECS" (Poultry Environmental Computer System) even fits the bill.

On Sunday, the food editors and chicken cooking contestants headed home, the festival ended and the grounds staff picked up the last dropped piece of paper. By then, plans for the 41st festival were underway.

That event will be held in Ocean View, Delaware, birthplace of the commercial broiler industry.

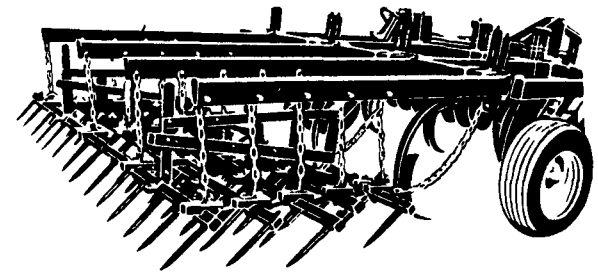
HELP YOUR SOIL BUILDER DO AN EVEN BETTER JOB!



with a BRILLION SPIKE DRAG KIT

The Brillion Spike Drag is especially designed for the Brillion Soil Builder when used in primary tillage. It levels ridges, helps break up cloddy soil and keeps the soil from drying out too rapidly. The smoother surface is also desirable if chemical incorporation is to be done after the coulter-chisel operation.

A special feature of the Brillion Spike Drag is the angle adjustment of the spikes from 20° to 55° in five increments. A sturdy handle is used to move the mechanism. The adjustment feature provides a choice of spike angles to meet varying conditions — from very aggressive to near horizontal (to avoid plugging in heavy residue). Brillion Spike Drag Harrows are available to fit 5, 7, 9, 11 and 13 shank Soil Builders.

Mason Dixon Farm

Johnston. Luther Smith, Dick's brother-in-law has operated the retail milk division since 1962 and his six sons have joined him. In addition to family members there are 20 employees.

When Dick, Horace and their father formed their partnership they were raising 1,000 laying hens, 10 sows and 30 to 40 steers.

"I didn't like cleaning out the chicken house and my brother didn't like cleaning out the hog pens. So we thought, well, if we could milk 30 cows then maybe we wouldn't have to do either," stated Dick about the thinking behind the first major expansion.

"We built the first parlor in 1951 thinking that someday we'd be milking 30 cows. We ended up milking 65 in that parlor," said Dick. "Then in 1961 we built a double six herringbone. It wasn't even heard of then and we had to bend our own pipe because no one was making the stuff."

By 1977 the Waybrights were milking 100 cows and thought maybe someday they would like to milk 150. A Ross-Holms side opening parlor was built that year. When the milking herd grew to 225 a new dairy complex was built with two-side opening parlors.

"We thought someday we'd like to milk 300 or 400 cows. We now have 1278. Parlors quickly become obsolete. In those parlors one person could milk 50 cows an hour. We have new parlors built one person can milk 100 cows per hour," explained Dick.

Unconventional is the word which best describes Mason Dixon Farm, Inc.. Not because of its size, but because of the philosophy which has led to its exponential growth. Dick never attended college after high school, much to his father's disappointment, but that has not kept him from being a student and somewhat of a teacher also, at many colleges throughout the nation by keeping up with current research and touring northeastern colleges as a guest speaker.

"We follow basic research being done and glean from it what we want, but even the researchers don't have the concept of how to make practical application and that's our chance. We take hold of their dream ideas and occasionally we luckout and come up with a good one," said Dick. "As long as you aren't defending yourself and what you do, that gives you an awful lot of freedom."

That attitude has garnered many "firsts" for Mason Dixon. A presidential citation was presented to the Waybrights for having the first successful manure digestor on the East Coast. The first milking parlor on the East Coast was built in 1951 on Mason Dixon. Calf hutches were erected on the farm in 1971, some of the first in the east. Waybrights took that one step further and built calf-hutch condominiums whch are four hutches built together. This can be lifted by a wench for easy cleaning and moving. Mason Dixon calves were the first to be fed selenium as part of a research project conducted by Dick Adams of Penn State. The first calf produced by artificial insemination in Adams County was at Mason Dixon. There are always one or more control groups of cattle on the farm for a number of research projects. And the list goes on.

We are just willing to make more mistakes than most farmers do," added Dick. "But we recognize our mistakes and ask how we can make it right. "

Mason Dixon has consistently expanded approximately 10 percent each year, according to Dick, and it has done so when the future of the dairy industry looked unfavorable. The Waybrights' philosophy has been to coast when the dairy industry is up and to expand when its down in order to be prepared when the economic climate of dairying improved.

"When we started to build this parlor people were really laughing at us. At that time things were pretty bleak in the dairy industry," said Dick.

Where there were upright silos scattered across this collection of 17 individual farms, today there are none.

"The first thing we did when we got a farm was knock down the silo. We never had any use for them and they also taxed upright silos," said Dick.

Everything done on the Mason Dixon farm has always been done in response to cash flow, according to Dick. Bin silos cost $10/per ton of capacity to build and upright silos cost $60 to $100/per ton of capacity to build.

"More than the building cost there is the cost of additional labor to fill it and you don't get as good of silage with the uprights as you do with the bins. That's because you have to get the silage at about 50 percent moisture for the unloaders to get it in the upright," stated Dick.

Two-thirds of the 2100 acres is in grassland because it is the least cost crop yielding more hundred weight of milk. Alfalfa, grass, and barley are all havested as silage.

"We harvest the crops as silage other than as grains," explained Dick. "Whatever it is the farmer leaves nearly 40 percent of his crop in the field either as corn fodder or straw when harvest for the grain. This way (ensiling) you get the total plant."

With 125 cows going through the milking parlor everday, the Waybrights were one of the largest milk producers in the Baltimore milk shed and paying $6,000 each year to have their milk hauled to Baltimore. They decided to keep that $6,000 and opened the Mason Dixon bottling plant in 1962.

Before any any projects are undertaken which necessitate a cash outlay, the Waybrights stop, look and listen. They sit down, pick up their pencils and do some detailed projecting.

"We've always said, if we were going to spend money, whether it was going to be a new tractor, harvestor or what, we would sit down and pencil it out to see how it could pay for itself in three years," said Dick "If it couldn't, we wouldn't do it. "

Sometimes projects or purchases paid off in less than three years. Sometimes, it took four or five years, but the delayed return did not strain the budget. But on that first day that bottling plant opened up 26 years ago, only 16 quarts of milk went out the door. In the early days there may have been some concern over the accuracy of their projections, but the Mason Dixon label has come to mean high quality and for a very good reason. That label tells the consumer that milk was chilled to 37 degrees within two minutes from leaving the cow at 102 degrees.

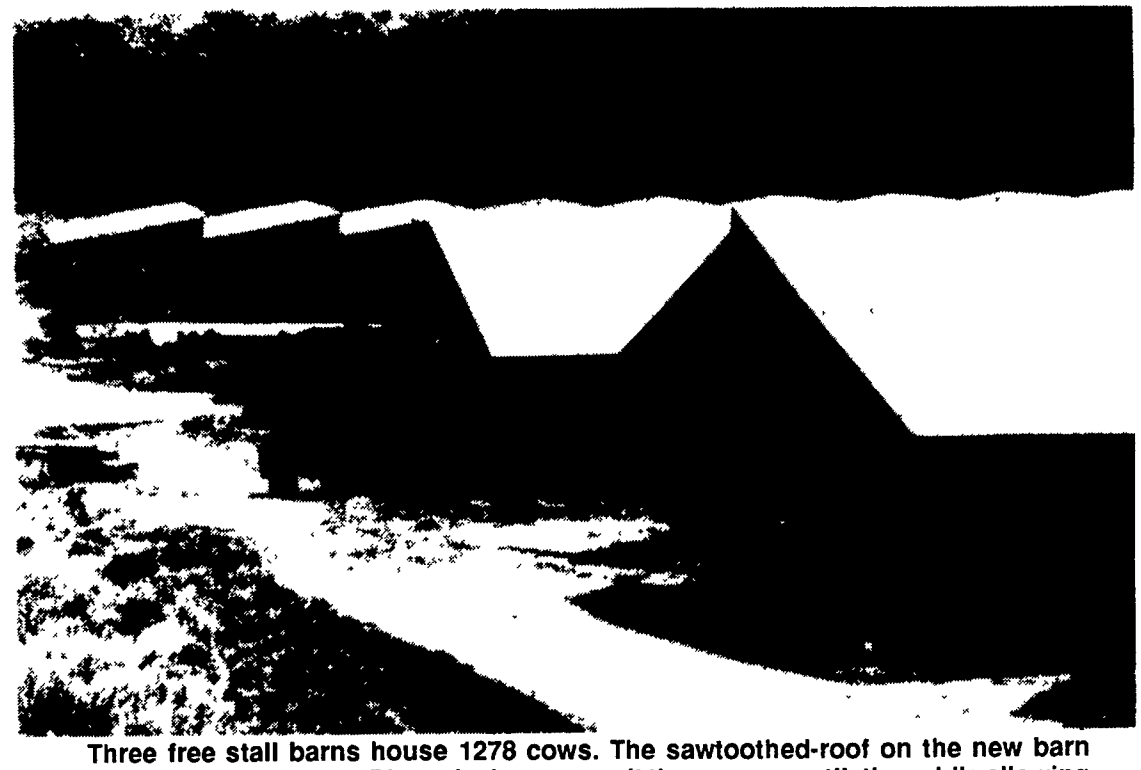
"Acid forming bacteria doesn't have a chance. That's the bacteria which shortens the shelf life of milk and gives it that off flavor. I think we could maintain milk quality up to three weeks," stated Dick.

"We do have to maintain quality control. We are motivated for the long haul and to establish a quality product. Since we bottle all our own milk, we don't buy any, we get a much longer shelf life. We just don't have the nerve to demand a premium price for our milk which we are entitled to."

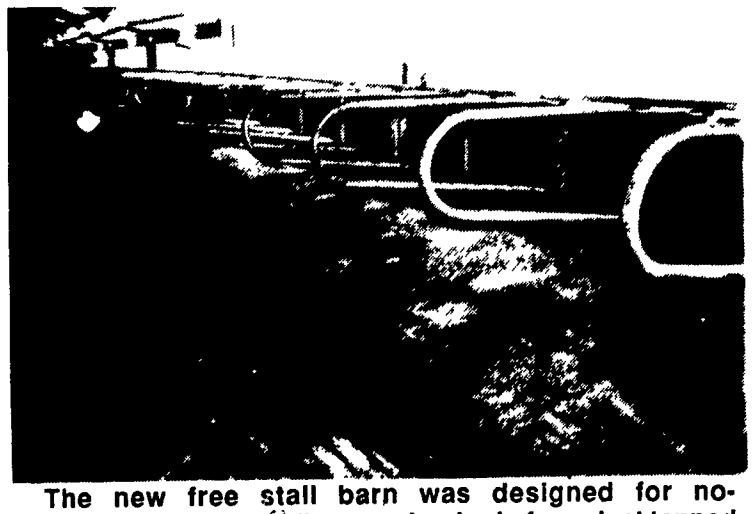
Is there a possibility Mason-Dixon may see another expansion?

"Well, it's just like the day we milked 12 cows. We thought someday we would milk 30. This farm is a kind of a happening."

"Many people come here to visit, but if they could just forget about the size of the farm they could see that a lot of things we do here they could take back on much smaller farms and they could save themselves some money," declared Richard.



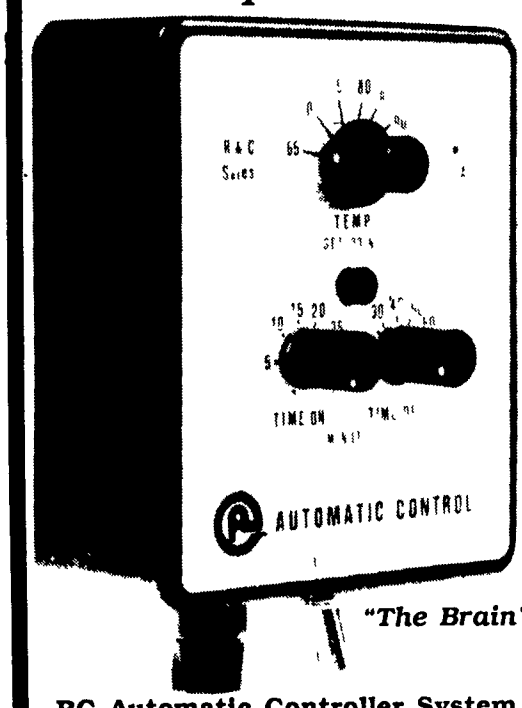
Three free stall barns house 1278 cows. The sawtoothed-roof on the new barn (background) is a Mason-Dixon design to permit the proper ventilation while allowing in more light than conventional designs.



The new free stall barn was designed for no-maintenance. The bedding area is a bed of sawdust topped with a rubber mat which needs no daily maintenance.

POULTRYMEN...

Increase Your Profits By Reducing The Temperature In Your Poultry House.



"The Brain"

RC Automatic Controller System

During hot summer months the worst enemy of a poultry grower is heat. High temperatures cause stress on his poultry, during prolonged periods of high temperatures he can loose many thousands of birds in a very short period of time.

RC Fogger Nozzles are designed to produce a fine mist that acts as air conditioning in a poultry house.

Cooling poultry in hot weather by fogging or misting is recognized as being the most effective means for reducing stress, thereby increasing the efficiency of feed conversion and reducing mortality. By far the most economical method to accomplish cooling in the poultry house is the use of fogger nozzles.

RC Fogger Nozzles

RC Cooling Nozzles are designed to spray a fine mist inside the poultry house, when used with fans and booster pumps the fine mist will evaporate in the air before it reaches the floor.

If you want to reduce the temperature in the poultry house, if you want to save your birds there is nothing on the market today that will give you the total effect that you need to save your birds!

There is no comparison between the RC-4025-2 Fogger Nozzle and any other means of cooling.

Ideas Presented On How To Raise Milk Prices

BY KARL BERGER
Special Correspondent

The Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency may not be the only game in town for boosting, on a regional basis, the steadily sinking milk prices among farmers in the Northeast that are dictated by nationwide conditions.

In Vermont, the state government has launched a four-pronged program of direct payments and other benefits to aid dairy farmers. State legislators in the region have drafted a proposal for a "Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact" that could give an interstate commission the power to impose over-order prices. And industry officials continue to discuss changes in the structure of the region's three federal orders that could benefit producers.

But, say most of these leaders, none of these mostly down-the-road possibilities lessens the immediate need for RCMA to improve it's over-order bargaining efforts with the region's milk handlers. The agency, embroiled in a legal and marketing struggle with Farmland Dairies of Wallington, N.J., has been paying Order 1 and Order 2 dairymen in Pennsylvania, New York and New England premiums of 15-20 cents a hundredweight, far less than supporters had expected initially.

A first draft version of the compact, for instance, includes the possibility of giving an interstate commission the authority to set a regional Class I price above the minimums set by orders 1, 2 and 4. This authority would be used, however, only if RCMA isn't working, according to Erik Rasmussen, executive director of the Legislative Commission on Dairy Industry Development, a bipartisan group of New York state legislators from which the compact draft emerged.

"If RCMA works," Rasmussen said, "compact pricing probably wouldn't have to be put in effect, or would work with RCMA."

IN VERMONT...

The action taken in May by the legislature and governor in Vermont complements RCMA's ongoing efforts in the state, according to Steve Kerr, executive director of the Council of Northeast Farmer Cooperatives, a lobbying group for six New York and New England-based cooperatives. Kerr said the initiative reflects the growing concern of state officials that price cuts dictated at the national level are undermining the viability of local dairy farmers, who form the backbone of the state's ag economy and enhance the lucrative tourist trade.

The most prominent part of the initiative is a program that will pay dairymen 50 cents a hundredweight for milk they market between March 1, 1988, and Feb. 28, 1989. The subsidy, funded by a $7.5 million appropriation from Vermont's budget surplus, cannot exceed $5,000 (1,000,000 pounds worth) per farm. There also are several eligibility requirements that may exclude the wealthiest producers.

However, Kerr expects another part of the package to have an even greater impact. Beginning in 1989, a new tax abatement program will forgive roughly 95 percent of the property tax burden on most working farms, he said. Here, too, several restrictions will apply and the benefits are capped at $13,000 a year.

Other elements of the Vermont initiative will raise the weight limit on trucks hauling milk and provide funds for a developing farmland preservation program, Kerr said.

A NORTHEAST COMPACT?

According to Kerr, there is some precedent for states getting together to regulate prices of certain commodities, but it is a lengthy and complicated process. It requires not only that the legislatures of all the state involved reach an agreement, but that Congress ratifies it as well. The latter is a long shot, he added.

Moreover, the compact as envisioned in the 21-page draft drawn up the legislative commission in New York would be concerned with much more than prices. Only a small part of this document concerns pricing. The rest details the need for uniform regulations and laws governing milk marketing across state lines and the way in which a compact could legally be structured and function.

Although it has been under discussion for several years, the idea for the compact began to take definite shape at a March 15 meeting between New York and Vermont legislators and their aides, Rasmussen said. Following that meeting, the staff of the legislative committee drew up the draft compact.

Rasmussen said it is "initial initial," by no means in final form. But it will serve as the basis of discussion between legislators and staff in New York and their counterparts in neighboring states. The proposal identifies 11 states, including Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey, that should take part in the compact, although it may be possible to make it work with fewer, Rasmussen said.

As it is for RCMA, Pennsylvania is a key state. Staff from the ag committees in the New York and Pennsylvania legislatures are scheduled to discuss the draft compact sometime this month, according to Sheila Miller, executive director of Pennsylvania's Senate Agricultural and Rural Affairs Committee. Underscoring its tenuous nature, she said the state has little history of participating in such arrangements and that any action almost certainly will not occur in the 1988 legislative session.

FEDERAL ORDER CHANGES?

Proposals to merge the Northeast's three federal orders into one and to increase the region's Class I differentials (the spread between a national benchmark price and the price local handlers must pay for fluid milk in a particular order) are among the more than 60 suggestions for change that officials of the U.S. Department of Agriculture may address at federal order hearing set for the end of the month in Syracuse, N.Y.

In a petition to USDA, Farmland Dairies called, among other things, for a merger of the three orders and a 35-cent a hundredweight assessment on handlers to fund a promotional campaign for fluid milk, claiming these measures would benefit both processors and producers in the Northeast. But industry observers say there is little chance of USDA taking these proposals seriously.

One proposed change that's likely to be discussed is the creation of a third class of milk in the three orders, according to Atlantic Dairy Cooperative economist Jim Fraher. By raising the price processors pay on a portion of all the milk now categorized as Class II, the creation of a third class would boost farm prices at least a few cents a hundredweight.

However, even this small benefit won't begin anytime soon. Fraher said the complexity of the order hearing process makes any action before 1989 highly unlikely.

Guernsey Association Elects New Officers And Board Members

COLUMBUS, OH — The American Guernsey Association (AGA) board of directors elected officers at their annual meeting on May 28 in Blaine, Washington.

President Ralph Turley of Mansfield, Ohio; First Vice President Phil Tennis of Hayward, Minnesota and Second Vice President Myron Erdman from Chenoa, Illinois, will serve as the executive committee of the nine-man board.

A five-year AGA board of directors member, Turley will guide the organization during the next business year. He is the current chairman of the youth/promotion/Journal committee and serves on the finance, shows/people/field staff committees. As a dedicated dairyman, Turley has served as president for both the Ohio Guernsey Breeders' Association (GBA) and the Ohio Purebred Dairy Cattle Association. He has been the official judge at state and national dairy shows as well as the Royal Easter Show in Sydney, Australia.

Turley also spends time in the showring exhibiting top Guernseys like Raemelton Fashion Kandy-Twin, winner of the 1987 Ohio State Fair Guernsey Futurity. He has also helped to develop one of today's top sires, Raemelton Deacons Fashion, who ranks 21st on the active AI-list. When not milking the 23 registered Guernseys or processing milk for the bottling plant at Raemelton Farm dairy, Turley assists with the establishment of health programs in Ohio. He is also a supporter of many AGA-sponsored programs such as Journal contract advertising, the Guernsey equity program and the AGA's TPE program. His wife Martha is the current Ohio GBA executive-secretary.

Tennis will continue to serve as the first vice president for the board of directors. He operates the 600-acre Alchrist Farm in partnership with his wife, Edie and son, Wesley. They produce corn, soybeans, alfalfa and manage 50 Guernsey cows. They actively support AGA programs by participating in Dairybelt Guernsey Sires, the Guernsey equity program, AGA's TPE program and are Guernsey Breeders' Journal contract advertisers.

As a board member Tennis serves on the youth/promotion/Journal and finance committees and is chairman of the genetic advancement committee. He has served on the Minnesota GBA and South Central GBA boards and has managed Minnesota's state Guernsey sale. The Secretary of Agriculture appointed him to serve as Minnesota's American Soil Conservation Service Chairman.

Tennis particpated in the 1979 Salt II talks with former President Carter. He also is involved in community activities serving as president of the Hayward Lutheran Church, a member of the Austin Junior College Advisory Board and the Albert Lea Board of Education.

An active board member and past AGA president Myron Erdman fills the spot of second vice president. As a board member he serves on the committee of herd registration/cattle health, finance and genetic advancement. Erdman is a past president and director of the Illinois GBA and Illinois Purebred Dairy Cattle Association (PDCA). He is also a member of the Dairy Shrine.

Erdman, along with his wife Neta and son Mark operate Myown Farm which consists of farming approximately 600 acres and 91 milking Guernseys. The Guernseys had a year-end average of 15,009M 4.6% 692F ME in 1987. The herd has been on official test since 1954. Erdman has bred, sold and purchased many national class production leaders and Gold Star dams.

Joe "Scottie" Payne of Vale, Oregon, and Lee Riggs of Evansville, Indiana, were elected to the board of directors of AGA. They will each serve a four-year term on the board representing District Seven and District Three, respectively.

In 1960, Payne purchased the cattle and farmland of Vale View Farm from his father and began managing the operation. Since then, he has received the Oregon Dairyman's Association (ODA) Distinguished Service Award and has been a member of ODA for the past 25 years, serving as director and vice president.

Since his election to the Dairyman's Creamery Association eight years ago, Payne has been instrumental in the board's decision to adopt an end-product pricing system for purchasing milk in Idaho. He was also a founding member of Western Guernsey Sires, a young sire proving group sponsored by AGA.

Riggs, along with his wife Carol and their three sons began operating Green Ridge Farm, upon the retirement of his parents in 1972. His parents purchased the family homestead in 1941 and four years later began developing the present-day registered Guernsey herd.

Green Ridge Farm participates in two young sire-proving programs and in Journal contract advertising. Riggs has served on the Lake Central Guernsey Sire committee since its inception. The herd is also enrolled in the TPE program.

The other four spots of the nine member board are filled by David Bolin, director-at-large from Clarksville, Iowa; George W. Fowler Sr., District 6, of Saluda, South Carolina; Robert Holcomb, District 1, from Greene, New York, and Weldon A. Peterson Sr., District 4, of Malone, Wisconsin.

The American Guernsey Association is a national organization for the registration and promotion of Guernsey cattle and is headquartered in Columbus, Ohio.

Soil Conservation Plans To Be Discussed

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — In Pennsylvania, certain conservation practices are important in developing an adequate conservation plan. Several of these practices will be discussed in detail at Penn State's Agronomy Field Day, June 22 at the Rock Springs Agricultural Research Center.

The field day, which will include exhibits and tours, will begin at 9:30 a.m. and continue until 4 p.m.

Conservation plans are required on highly erodible land under the Food Security Act (Farm Bill) of 1985. The plans are developed using selected agronomic, structural and nonstructural measures. Conservation planners help farmers formulate a plan to meet the specific farm situation by providing several conservation alternatives. Planners take into consideration soil conditions, crop needs, economics and other factors when making recommendations.

During Agronomy Field Day, a specific site will be used to explain the actual planning process. Soil and other land considerations will be evaluated in preparing a list of conservation measures that could be used in that field. Participants will also have the opportunity to ask questions about suitable practices for specific farms.

The Rock Springs Agricultural Research Center is located on Route 45, nine miles southwest of State College. Lunch will be available at the field day. For more information contact Penn State agronomist Lynn Hoffman at (814) 692-7955.

price rather than condemning dairy farmers for what they do best and better and more efficient, than any other industry in the U.S.A.

Sincerely,
Coreen Luckenbill
Berks County

Editor:

It is my privilege to give the dairy farmers side of the story in answer to "60 Minutes" segment called "KILL THE COWS."

First, let me say the Dairy Termination Program did work. It reduced the amount of milk surplus, it reduced the amount of cows, and it reduced CCC (the agency that buys surplus stocks) purchases to the lowest level since 1979. In dollars it saved the U.S. Treasury one billion dollars in 1987 over 1986.

The program helped to reduce stocks to the lowest levels in recent years. As of March 1988 cheese stocks were down more than 90% from March 1986, nonfat dry milk milk has decreased to deficient levels and butterstocks are down 40% from one year ago. As of May 1, 1988 all dairy nutrition programs such as the food for the poor in this country and overseas and some of the school lunch programs will be limited to an "AS AVAILBLE" basis.

One major point that was overlooked completely was the fact the dairy farmers who stayed in business paid for 40% of the cost of the Whole Herd Buyout. We paid from our milk checks 762 million dollars that came from dairy farmers pockets and not from the general taxpayer. If all Government Programs paid 40% of their funding we would not have a budget crisis today.

In Frederick County, we had 31 herds and 3610 animals sold in the Buyout. We dairymen who stayed in business had nearly 2.5 million dollars deducted from our milk checks and turned over to the Federal Government. This program removed 90,000 pounds of milk per day from sale in this county.

If the scheduled reduction in price support takes place on January 1, 1989, farmers will receive less than 20 cents per quart for the milk used to make cheese, non-fat powder and butter. I do not see how any Frederick County Farmer can produce milk for this price and continue to be a profitable business. From April 1986 until October 1987 we had 120 dairy farms go out of business and if there are not changes in the present Federal Program I think this trend will continue at an increasing pace.

Editor:

A memorable year is coming to an end- a year in which I represented the dairy farmers of Chester County- a year I will cherish for a lifetime.

As a representative of Pennsylvania's No. 1 Agricultural Industry I have proudly promoted our product. My role as princess has been challenging and yet rewarding. Even though I did pass my title, I will never stop promoting the dairy industry.

Many thanks to my family and friends, the Chester County Milk Promotion Committee, and the dairy farmers who product the milk we drink and consume in dairy products.

As I look back I will fondly remember the people I met and the places I travelled. One of my greatest moments was when our first appearance using the "Purple Cow" was captured on the front page of Lancaster Farming (Saturday, August 2, 1986). It is wonderful to remember the thousands of people, including many states your paper circulates through, to know I helped the dairy industry in promoting their product. Lancaster Farming gives complete coverage to the Dairy Princess Program to which I am proud of being part of. It is an accomplishment to see articles in Lancaster Farming and to know I have reached out to thousands of readers.

My sincere thanks!

Georgia Computer Connection Highlights Chicken Displays

SALISBURY, MD — Naturally, there have been changes in the industry since the legendary Mrs. Wilmer Steele began a poultry revolution with her first broiler flock 65 years ago at Ocean View, Del. In this modern age of computer technology the rate of change can be mind-boggling.

Only five years ago, for example, it would have taken months of work and considerable space to build an electronic control box for connecting a microcomputer to sensors in a chicken house like the model on display during this year's Delmarva Chicken Festival at Salisbury, Md.

The model was built by representatives of the Engineering Technology Branch at the Georgia Tech Research Institute in Atlanta. A telephone link-up (modem) allowed chicken festival visitors in Maryland to monitor environmental conditions in a chicken house near Gainesville, Ga.

Chuck Ross, a research engineer at Georgia Tech, accompanied the computerized model to the Delmarva festival. He noted that programmable computer chips only two inches square were the main feature of a control box measuring one foot high and two feet square.

Mr. Ross commented that control units in the box were put together with parts readily available from several manufacturers. Five years ago, many of the parts would have had to be fashioned from scratch-- and the control box would have taken up at least three times more space.

"The goal of our project is to provide poultry farmers with a low-cost monitoring and control system for broiler houses," Ross declared. "Ideally, the system will produce superior chicken for consumers."

Ross said his Poultry Environmental Computer System (PECS) is designed for automatic control of virtually every environmental factor in a chicken house -- including temperature, humidity, lighting, feed and water.

In a typical broiler farm situation, control boxes in each grow-out house would be linked to a central microcomputer on the farm. Such a system could simplify management for the farmer, reduce labor costs and provide almost fail-safe reliability.

Georgia Tech's eventual goal is to link the PECS to computer systems in processing plants. This would allow integrated operators to have more direct control over activities of contract operators providing growout services.

The University of Maryland this year began a modified version of Georgia Tech's computerized chicken house at its Lower Shore Research and Education Center facility near Princess Anne.

A popular new attraction in the poultry industry exhibit at the Delmarva Chicken Festival was the Georgia Tech computer controlled broiler house. Using sensors, the system is able to monitor the house environment. Chuck Ross, a Georgia Tech research engineer, worked at the model, shown on the left, and was able to gather information on a broiler house in Georgia through the computer and telephone lines.

Results to date look promising.

The University of Delaware has announced plans to have a computerized system in place for broiler production on its Newark campus by this fall. Plans also are underway for a similar installation at its Research and Education Center located near Georgetown.

About a half-dozen poultry producers on the Eastern Seaboard are involved with computerized chicken house operations similar to the PECS developed at Georgia Tech. This count includes two broiler operations in Georgia, one on the Delmarva Peninsula and three or four commercial laying flock operators in the Northeast.

The Georgia Tech computer system was part of the industry display "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" put together by the poultry specialists at the Universities of Delaware and Maryland. This year's expanded display showed comparisons of poultry technology today and in the early years of the industry.

PDPP Board Buys $40,000 Of Radio Commercials

HARRISBURG — At its June 2 meeting, the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program Community Marketing Board approved the expenditure of $40,000 to purchase six, 30-second radio commercials to be aired during each of 11 Penn State University football games next season. The purchase includes three, 60-second radio spots to air during each Penn State basketball network broadcast.

This advertising flight is in conjunction with a July-August statewide radio and television commercial schedule featuring "White Lite," "Summer Love" and "Make It Milk" commercials produced by the Pittsburgh advertising agency HBM Creamer, Inc.

Two of HBM Creamer's efforts for the PDPP have been recognized for their creativity. The 1987 "Mobius Award" for "outstanding creativity," given at the U.S Television and Radio Commercials Festival, was awarded to the PDPP's "Before You're Thirty" radio spot; and "White Lite" was honored with the 1988 "Telly Award" for excellence in regional television advertising.

The PDPP has also approved development of a new give-away item for "Ag Progress Days," held in August outside State College, PA, and a new holiday promotion package entitled "Make It Sparkle."

Members of the PDPP Commodity Marketing Board are appointed by the PA Secretary of Agriculture on the basis of nominations submitted by Pennsylvania milk producers and their organizations. Board members must be either dairy producers themselves, or representatives of a milk-producing organization.

"Make It Milk," the service-marked slogan of the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, is prominently featured in this new "signature photo" the PDPP is now using on most printed promotional materials. A four-color enlargement is also the theme of a new, permanent eight-panel exhibit display unit the PDPP will use at meetings and special events.

1988 Case Expo Heads East To "Dutch Country"

SILVER SPRINGS, MD — Agricultural heritage buffs who journey to Kinzers, Pennsylvania, next August 17-20 can look forward to a bargain -- two great events for the price of one and all of it happening in the heart of North America's most famous farming areas, the historic "Dutch Country" of Lancaster County.

Expected to attract visitors from all over Canada and the United States, the first "great event" will be the second annual International J.I. Case Heritage Exposition, which each year honors the memory and celebrates the accomplishments of one of the world's great agricultural pioneers, J.I. Case. He was the inventor of the modern threshing machine and producer of the world's first agricultural steam engine.

The Case Expo will be held in conjunction with "great event" number two, which is the 40th Reunion and the Rough and Tumble Engineers' Historical Association, one of the east's longest running and most successful ag-heritage shows.

In addition to Rough and Tumble's usual array of operating antique farm equipment, steam engines, gas tractors, cars and other memorabilia from decades past, the Case Expo will attract special exhibits from across the continent. Included will be the only surviving boiler from one of the several, long-since extinct 150-horsepower Case Road Locomotives built by the J.I. Case Co. They were the largest steam traction engines ever produced by company. The boiler will be brought to the show by its owner, George W. Hedtke of Davis Junction, Illinois, one of America's most prominent collectors of old Case equipment.

Harry E. Kline, veteran of a half-century of service with the Case Co. and one of its most widely known representatives, will be on hand, bringing one of the old "Groundhog Threshers" sold farm-to-farm by J.I. Case in the middle 1800s and the subject of his many "tinkerings" leading up to the invention of the modern threshing machine. Mr. Kline also will bring two famous steam-operated factory whistles, a rare 12-inch Crosby Chime and a three-barrel Lunkenheimer, both of which were installed on Case factory buildings in Racine, Wisconsin, shortly after the turn of this century. They will be part of the daily "Noon Whistle" sound-off at the Kinzers celebration this year and will be accompanied by the traditionally large and vocal chorus of engine whistles at Kinzers.

A 30 HP Case steam traction engine owned by Carl Tuttle of Howell, Michigan, already is signed up to make the trip to Kinzers and will be joined there by scores of Case steam engines and gas tractors from the East. Mr. Tuttle's engine was the last 30 HP built in 1910 by the Case Co. Tony Wells, a director of the International J.I. Case Heritage Foundation and a Case heavy equipment dealer from Upper Marlboro, Maryland, plans to exhibit his 1916 65 HP Case steam traction engine, as well as a 1917 Case 15-27 crossmotor gas tractor, his 1917 Case seven-passenger touring car (yes, the Case Co. made many cars in the first quarter of this century) and a rare 1954 Case SI tractor with loader. Mr. Wells also will bring his "mint-condition" McCormick-Deering Reaper for the special enjoyment of persons who are admirers of the Cyrus McCormick heritage.

The only surviving boiler from a long-extinct 150 HP Case Road locomotive, the largest steam traction engine built by the J.I. Case Co., will be a center of attraction at the 1988 Case Expo. Only a few of the old 150s were made, and the boiler's owner, George W. Hedtke of Davis Junction, Illinois, will bring this impressive last remnant of "a Case giant" to Kinzers this year.

Case Car owners, Mr. & Mrs. Thomas Unger of Lewisburg, Ohio, have already promised to bring their 1912 three-door "Forty" Case Model M to the 1988 Expo; and many other exhibitors are expected to participate in what has become North America's premier ag-heritage specialty event.

Case exhibits are expected to include everything from steam engines and old gas tractors to scale model engines, vintage toys, old catalogs and other Case memorabilia.

The program also will include Rough and Tumble's daily "Pageant of Threshing," steam traction games on Friday evening, a daily parade of antique engines, sawmill operations, and scores of other ag-heritage activities.

At the end of the 1988 Expo on Saturday evening, the Case Heritage Foundation will hold its annual banquet and membership meeting

RCMA Officials Meet With New York Assembly Leaders

BATAVIA, NY — Leaders of an 11-state dairy farmer organization say a meeting last week with members of the New York State Assembly should go a long way in getting the Dairy Farmer's Bill of Rights passed into law.

RCMA President William Zuber and RCMA Executive Director Edward Anna met with Assembly Speaker Melvin Miller (D-Brooklyn) and other assembly members for discussions arranged by Assemblyman Michael Bragman (D-Cicero). The talks centered on the plight of dairy farmers in the state and the importance of the Dairy Farmer's Bill of Rights.

"We want the Assembly leadership to know how important this bill is to the future of dairy farmers in the state. The Dairy Farmer's Bill of Rights protects those who make their living on the farm from tactics like coercion, discrimination and intimidation," Zuber said.

In addition to Miller, Assembly members at the meeting included Mary McPhillips (D-Middletown), Jerrold Nadler (D-New York), William Parment (D-Ashville), Sheldon Silver (D-New York), Paul Tonko (D-Amsterdam) and Helene Weinstein (D-Brooklyn).

"There are forces out there working to defeat the Dairy Farmer's Bill of Rights," Zuber noted. "Dairy farmers need to write to their local Assemblymen and Senators to voice their support for this bill, otherwise those who would deny us basic rights may win out."

RCMA is an organization working to improve dairy farmer income. Prices paid to farmers have declined by nearly $2 per hundredweight since 1981, while the costs of many essentials of doing business have increased. In the past 12 months, 1,400 dairy farmers have stopped producing milk in the northeast.

Nutrition, Replacement-Heifer Programs Can Return $30,000

SCHAUMBURG, IL — By implementing a herd-health management program in just two key areas -- nutrition and replacement heifers -- dairy producers can increase annual income from a 100-cow herd by $30,000 or more, dairy practitioners have reported to the American Veterinary Medical Association (AVMA).

Annual economic returns from instituting a comprehensive herd-health management program in the same model 100-cow herd -- including mastitis control, improved reproductive management, calf care, and parasite control -- could reach $68,685, according to Jenks S. Britt, D.V.M., of Russellville, Ky.

Nutrition management programs produce economic returns for dairy producers in two ways, explained Keith E. Sterner, D.V.M., Ionia, MI. Nutrition management can reduce the dairyman's largest single cost -- feed costs represent 40 to 60 percent of the total cost of production -- while at the same time increasing milk production.

For example, Dr. Britt studied a herd producing 14,000 pounds of milk per cow. By using computer analysis to improve feed efficiency, it was possible to increase milk production by three-pounds per cow or produce the same amount of milk on less feed. Increased income was $10,980 (3 lbs. 12¢/lb. X 100 cows).

Dr. Sterner said a replacement-heifer program consisting of careful monitoring and management of growth can move the time it takes a heifer to calve for the first time from 27 months to 24 months, producing a one time income increase of $18,000. Using similar methods, Dr. Britt reported increased milk production of $19,440 and reduced feed costs of $3,600 by lowering the calving age of a herd from 28 to 24 months.

Dr. Sterner said it is not unusual to have a dairy herd where heifers first breed 18 months after birth, not calving until 27 months. Some heifers do not calve until they are three years old, he said.

Opportunities to improve nutritional efficiency have increased markedly in recent years with new knowledge and the use of computers to assess herd nutrition, said Joseph E. Milligan, D.V.M., Millersville, MD, who is secretary-treasurer of the American Academy of Veterinary Nutrition.

Dairy practitioners begin by assessing herd's nutritional status, using laboratory analysis of feed samples, blood tests and other forms of measurement. The diet can then be changed with the objective of increasing the hereditary capability of the animals to produce milk, Dr. Milligan said. Today's management methods make it possible to develop a formula that will tell the dairyman at what precise point it will not produce an economic benefit to feed cows more, he said.

The veterainarian brings the dairy producer two key advantages as a consultant on nutrition, Dr. Britt said. First, the veterinarian is not selling feed or supplements, so he provides an unbiased point of view. Second, the veterinarian has the training and knowledge to look at total animal health, considering what the animal is fed in relation to production goals and assessing the effects of disease, environment, and genetics on productivity.

Here is how Dr. Britt's herd health management program increases the dairy producer's income and reduces costs, using a milk price of $12 per hundredweight, slightly less than current prices, and presuming each cow has a 60-day dry period each year:

Nutrition: $10,980

Mastitis Control:

- Reduce somatic cell count in a year from 800,000 to 200,000, resulting in an increase of 3 lbs. daily in milk production;
- 3 lbs x 305 days x $.12/lb x 100 cows=

Reproductive Health:

- Lower calving interval from 14 to 13 months;
- Net cash flow: 30 days shorter interval @ $2 per cow per day=30 x $2 x 100

Heifer Replacement:

- Lower calving age from 28 to 24 months;
- Feed cost savings for $1/day x 120 days x 30 heifers=

$3,600

- 120 days more milk from 30 heifers (45 lbs./day) @ 12¢/lb.)=120 x 30 x 45 x .12=

$19,440

Calf Raising:

- Reduce mortality rate from 20% to 5%;
- Save 7½ bull calves @ $70 ($525) and 7½ heifer calves @ $200 ($1,500)=

2,025

- Additional bonus from lower death loss of a net 50 heifers born. Keep 30 and milk. Sell 12 for dairy purposes @ $1,000

$12,000

Parasite Control:

- Control internal parasites by deworming and external parasites by various methods, adjusted for seasons and conditions;
- Increase milk production by 1 lb./cow/day x 305 days x 100 cows=

Total Cash Flow $68,685

"We used a model herd to exemplify the combined health problems that herds might incur. The combination of nutrition and calf-heifer care yield the greatest economic increase to the dairyman. When veterinary services are used strategically as part of a total management program, dairy producers can significantly increase income," said Dr. Britt.

Lenhartsville Student Wins Ag Award

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — Charles Seidel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Seidel of Lenhartsville, has received the 1988 Davey Award at Penn State. The award is granted to the outstanding senior majoring in dairy production in the College of Agriculture.

According to Dr. Lawrence D. Muller, professor of dairy science and Seidel's academic adviser, "Charlie has been an academically outstanding student and has been a leader in many campus activities." Seidel served as vice president and corresponding secretary of the Penn State Dairy Science Club in 1987 and was president of the Northeast Student Affiliate Division of the American Dairy Science Association in 1988. He has participated in the Dairy Expo and the Little International and has been a member of the Penn State Dairy Judging Team.

Seidel was the recipient of a Joseph Taylor Memorial Scholarship award and has served as vice president of the Coaly Society, the honorary society for students in the College of Agriculture.

Midwestern Drought

futures speculation, and the skyrocketing of soybean prices.

This translates into bad news for livestock producers and welcome news for the cash-crop farmer who can bring in a good harvest.

"The drought has already put the cost of soybean meal and corn up considerably," said Donald J. Mahlandt, manager of dairy and livestock feed for Pennfield. "Soybean meal had been in the $250 per ton range, now it's in the $330 range.

"As we see the ultimate problem, there isn't carryover in soybeans as there is in corn. We can have a bad year in corn and still be okay. If we have a drought, we will not have enough soybean to make it through the year."

Last year Midwest farmers still had a good deal of soybean stored on the farm, and high prices would have been welcome. But their store was depleted during the winter due to slowly increasing prices and the weak dollar, which encouraged exports.

Rising feed prices

As soybean prices rise, so will other feed prices as the demand for alternate protein and energy sources increases.

also supplies NPN.

"Urea can be used for non-producing animals if fed properly," said Shirk. "However, it's toxic and can cause the animal to not perform well, loose its appetite, and fail to conceive."

Forages can supply protein

A good-quality forage is one way farmers can supply protein in

"If we have a drought, we will not have enough soybean to make it through the year."——Donald Mahlandt, Pennfield Southeastern Pennsylvania buys a substantial amount of outside grain, according to Brent Hershey, owner of Hershey Ag Services. Farmers there are being advised to cut out soybean where possible in their feeds and maximize the protein potential of the forages they grow.

"Farmers also need to not be wasteful of the protein they do have," cautioned Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County dairy agent. "They should feed enough, but not too much."

lieu of soybean. To get the highest level of protein from alfalfa, it should be cut at the late-bud or very early-bloom stage. The plant has reached its optimum value at this point and once it flowers, the protein level diminishes. The crude protein level for alfalfa is about 20 percent, whereas seven to 10 days later, during late bloom, the crude protein level drops to 16.

The big questions in many Mid-Atlantic farmers' minds is will the Midwest recover from the drought and will there be a drought here.

"Farmers need to not be wasteful of the protein they do have; they should feed enough, but not too much."——Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County dairy agent

Whole soybeans have 41.7 percent crude protein and 94 total digestible nutrients (TDN); soybean oil meal, a byproduct of the soybean oil industry consists of 54 percent crude protein and 81 TDN. Each is important in a nutrient-dense ration, which is vital to high-producing dairy cows.

Dry cows or low producers don't require as nutrient dense a ration. Therefore farmers are being advised to save soybean for their high producers.

"Feed a high-protein, high-density ration, which is generally more costly, to fresh cows and good cows, and drop off in the back half of lactation with something less costly with less protein and density," suggested Mahlandt.

Industry officials also are recommending that farmers cull low producers so they won't be wasting expensive feed.

Soybeans are important in hog rations and "it would be pretty hard to get around the price increases," said Chester D. Hughes, Lancaster County livestock agent. On the other hand, soybean prices aren't as crucial in beef or poultry rations.

The protein in soybeans can be substituted with items such as brewers grain, distillers grain, corn gluten feed or meal, or alfalfa meal. Because animals break soybean protein down into nitrogen, a non-protein nitrogen (NPN) source is recommended to supply that nutrient.

Urea is the most common NPN, although corn silage that has been treated with anhydrous ammonia

The answers from Kristiniak are maybe and maybe.

"There does not appear to be a major swing one way or the other to recoup the water shortage in the Midwest," he related. "We predict (the Midwest) rainfall at or just below normal in the next one to two months. I wouldn't be surprised if (it gets the normal rainfall) but they would see severe thunderstorms, which cause runoff, rather than a good soaking rain."

The Mid-Atlantic region should fare better, especially if it rains soon. "The last rain helped the (water) tables," said Kristiniak. "But if there is no soaking rainfall in the next two weeks, we will be looking for potential problems here."

Besides advising Pennsylvania farmers to get optimal protein from their crops, Dick Dennison, manager of farm-management services for the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, recommends "looking to the futures market as a means of protecting yourself."

In futures marketing, farmers cut their risks by contracting to sell a set quantity of a particular commodity at a designated time in the future. Presently farmers involved in futures marketing are getting more than $9 a bushel for their November crop of soybeans.

Farmers interested in futures marketing "should pick somebody who has a strong background in forward contracts and futures and with advising farmers to work with on futures," suggested Dennison.

Farmland Saved

ized West Fallowfield Township campus.

According to Dr. Richard McAdams, Octorara superintendent, the school directors chose the King farm for expansion because the family would not have to be relocated. King and his wife live on a dairy farm a mile away.

However, King said that when he sold the Highland Road house, barn and 10 acres to his son Lowell and daughter-in-law Joyce in 1984, he gave them first option to purchase the remaining 102 acres. Lowell presently works in trucking, but hopes to return to farming, his father explained.

While King was fighting the condemnation in Chester County Court, the Chester-Delaware County Farmers Association circulated petitions and protested the land grab to the school board. At one board meeting Rep. Samuel Morris (D-155), Chairman of the Pennsylvania House Agriculture Committee, urged the school directors to change their views and their plans and save King's property.

When he learned that the judge had decided in his favor, King exclaimed, "Well, it just proves that there's a God in Heaven who rules over the affairs of men!"

Although the school district had returned his tax payment this year and had asked his lawyer to direct King not to plant the land, King said he had sowed potatoes and corn. "We just went by faith and planted."

Richard Breckbill of Oxford, vice president and policy coordinator of Chester-Delaware County Farmers, remarked, "The school needs to continue to grow but not the way they were going. It just wasn't fair."

Breckbill, who organized the farmers' protest, predicted that the school board will have a rough road seizing more land. "I think when the public got hold of this and looked at the seriousness (of it), I think it really made an impression."

School board president Dr. John Hagen said he was surprised and disappointed that the court ruled against the board. "I don't know what we're going to do now," he said, "because we do need the land and we hate to take it from the other farmers."

The school campus is surrounded by farms and the school board insists on keeping all the district's schools centralized, as they have been since 1980.

"We're disappointed," said Superintendent McAdams. "We went through the legal process and the judge is apparently telling us that we should take this matter in smaller steps. The board will have to discuss the next step."

Octorara School Board's regular June meeting will take place Monday night, June 20 at 7:30 in the intermediate school at Highland Road and Pa. Rt. 41. The school district encompasses Sadsbury Township and Christiana Borough in Lancaster County. Also, West Fallowfield, West Sadsbury, Highland and Londonderry Townships and Parkesburg and Atglen Boroughs in Chester County.

Garber Crowned National Guernsey Queen

BLAINE, WA — Janice Garber, the 18-year-old daughter of Kenneth and Thelma Garber, Willow Street, Pennsylvania, was recently crowned the 1988 National Guernsey Queen. Garber participated in the contest held during the American Guernsey Association's (AGA) annual convention in Blaine, Washington, May 26-28.

This fourth-generation Guernsey breeder from Willows Farm is a very busy high school senior. The vice president of her senior class and president of her chapter of Future Business Leaders of America is also the secretary and accompanist of the school's concert choir and secretary of the student council.

Garber has been active in Pennsylvania Guernsey circles for many years and garnered the Pennsylvania Outstanding Guernsey Girl award in 1983. She is the owner of two All-Pennsylvania Guernseys and has competed in 4-H dairy bowl contests at the state and regional levels.

"I am pleased to be working with the Guernsey breed and promoting its product, nature's most nearly perfect food - MILK," Garber said.

With help from two national Guernsey princesses, Garber will reign through May 1989, traveling throughout the United States to assist in promotional efforts of the AGA.

The American Guernsey Association is the national organization for the registration and promotion of Guernsey cattle and is head quartered in Columbus, OH.

signed by David and Gloria Edwards of Oakville, Washington, "Ambrosia" was purchased for $5,500 by Shamrock Farms and Golden Meadows in Stevinson, California.

Despite the busy schedule of meetings, sales and recognition banquets, Guernsey enthusiasts still had time to appreciate the Pacific Northwest. A ferry trip to British Columbia gave them an opportunity to view the beautiful Butchart Gardens and the city of Victoria. The climate, usually rainy during the spring, did not dampen Guernsey enthusiasm on the tours to area farms. Convention-goers visited seven farms, met the owners and took time to examine cattle and facilities. Those who did not visit the farms, rode into Lynden for a "little bit of Holland." An afternoon of shopping and "museuming" in the Dutch atmosphere began with a Dutch-style luncheon and a show of traditional Dutch costumes and Klompen dancing.

Hanving spent a busy week in the farthest northwest corner of the continental United States, Guernsey breeders left Blaine, Washington, with many memories and souvenirs and an invitation to the 1989 convention to be held in Rochester, New York, May 19-22.

The Making Of A Cook Book

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondent

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster) — "We think our mothers and aunts are some of the best cooks, and with our children old enough to cook, we thought a cookbook would be a remembrance for them," Ruth Conley says matter-of-factly as she explains why the families which make up the Old Order River Brethren congregation became interested in publishing a cookbook.

Publishing cookbooks has become a Lancaster County tradition among groups which wish to share their good recipes and also raise money. For those who worked on this cookbook, it became a labor of love as well as a good way to raise funds for their school, the Sonlight River Brethren School, founded just four years ago.

The school, which just graduated its first student, was organized "to provide solid, nurturing Christian education, suitable for children growing up in the modern day environment." It presently serves all the families of the River Brethren in Lancaster County and is open to like-minded nonmembers.

Since many of the members are dairy farmers in Lancaster County, a wide variety of recipes featuring dairy recipes is included, and the cookbook arrived just in time for use during June Dairy Month.

Ruth said that collecting the recipes was challenging, because there were many cherished recipes which were not written down. She notes, "Some of the women had to make the recipes and measure as they worked so they could give exact ingredients. We tried to make sure the recipes were concise and complete."

Emma Sauder, another of the committee which worked diligently on the book, added, "We came across instructions like "butter the size of eggs." Another direction which caught their attention was "to push it to the back of the stove and let set all day." This, of course, was in reference to having soup or stew simmer on the back of a wood stove.

One chapter of this cookbook which makes it unique and especially valuable to the River Brethren is titled "Cooking for a Crowd." Because they usually have a fellowship meal together following their Sunday "meeting," the hosting family often has between 150-250 guests, and it is generally the host who supplies the meal. Occasionally meals will be planned as a "carry-in," Ruth explains, but even that requires large quantities of food.

From left, Harriet Scott, Ruth Conley and Emma Sauder look through recipes and reminisce about the work which went into producing the River Brethren Cookbook, a winter project for the women. The cookbook contains 650 recipes from family and friends.

That chapter includes a Cheese Spread for Sandwiches which will serve 200 people, a recipe for shoo fly pies which makes a dozen, Bean Salad for 150 and many others.

There are, of course, several soup recipes, including one for Rice Soup, which is traditionally served for their "love feast." It is a picture of someone stirring rice soup at a love feast which adorns the front cover of the cookbook. The cover was created by member Stephen E. Scott, who worked from photographs to recreate the scene of the love feast. His wife Harriet was the third member of the trio which did the organizing and proofreading of the project.

In the Cooking for a Crowd section, it becomes quickly evident that one must have large containers available for the cooking. In addition to large roasters and canners, one recipe for bread requires the use of a "broom stick" for stirring the dough.

Ruth explained that the Cooking for a Crowd section is especially helpful to some of the younger sisters in the congregation who may not have their mothers close by to ask for help in preparing quantities. Emma says her children will be happy to have the recipes written down becuse, when they wanted to cook in large quantities they always had to multiply the measurements.

The ambitious women started collecting the recipes in December, and mailed the final copy to the Tennessee commercial printer in March. They chose the printer because Ruth had been involved in another cookbook which was done by them. Emma adds, "They gave us, 'helpful hints' and title pages already done."

Ruth adds, "They had a list of suggested categories." It was the committee's suggestion to add "cooking for a crowd," which the printer happily included.

The plea for recipes went out through a newsletter that is distributed to local families, a River Brethren community in Franklin County and one in Dallas County, Iowa. According to information in the cookbook, members number 326 among the five congregations.

As the recipes came in, the committee's work began in earnest. Ruth collected the recipes and looked for duplicates. This was not an easy task since some recipes were the same but had different names. "We had to go through and delete some to keep the number down to 650 recipes." In all, they received over 700 recipes, and Ruth points out, "We were very much pleased with the response. There are recipes from here to Iowa. The families really supported it. We really appreciate the amount of enthusiastic support we got. Some of the families collected their own recipes." Many people simply told them to use what they needed, or to tell them if they needed something in a specific category.

Emma explained that if two people gave the same recipe, both names were included in the cookbook. Each of the 47 students at the school was asked to submit his or her favorite recipe. The recipe could be one they enjoyed making or eating. The recipes provided by students in the school are starred in the cookbook. Because they wanted to include many traditional recipes, the women used recipes from deceased relatives, and noted the dates of their birth and death next to their names. The printers cooperated in printing comments which were added by those who submitted the recipes, including such things as when it was served or where the recipe originated.

For that reason some older members of the congregation reading the cookbook although they won't be doing a lot of cooking anymore. Ruth comments, "That's one reason we wanted to do the cookbook now, so that older members can enjoy it."

A form was provided by the cookbook company to help people list the ingredients and the directions in the proper order. Nevertheless, as Ruth, Emma and Harriet went through the recipes, they often made phone calls to get the proper size of a pan, a temperature, or other detail that was missed. Ruth says, "We called some people and sent some notes if we caught the mistakes. It was a lot more time consuming than I thought it would be." Both Emma and Harriet concurred that despite the hard work, "it was fun."

Harriet notes, "We would do it again though it was very hectic sometimes. It was worth it, and the night the books arrived we were very excited." A side benefit to their work was trying recipes that sounded appealing.

The trio was very glad they worked on it during the winter when times were not quite so busy, admitting, however, that the cookbook took time that normally would have been devoted to sewing. Emma notes, "We knew we didn't want to do it over the summer."

Typing was done by a variety of people, including Ruth and her husband Amos and daughter Dianne. Emma, who formerly worked as a secretary in the Penn State Extension office, also did her share of the typing.

For now they are selling the cookbook by word-of-mouth and at a few market stands. In the next few months, they hope to make them available through bookstores and other local outlets, especially in areas that are heavily visited by tourists.

They are also interested in having the cookbook reordered so they will have a constant source of books.

An interesting addition to the cookbook is a brief description of the Old Order River Brethren, whose history traces back to a group of Christians who organized the fellowship in 1780. Because the church was located near the Susquehanna River in Lancaster County, the members were referred to as "Brethren by the River," or River Brethren. The Brethren in Christ and United Zion Church also originated from this movement.

The description reads: "The River Brethren may be considered a group of 'plain people'. They seek to follow the literal teachings of the Bible and endeavor to lead simple, godly lives. The members of the Old Order River Brethren may be identified by their distinctive garb."

Their church service, typically, lasts three hours and consists of the "experience meeting," where members share testimonies or request hymns, and the preaching service. Four or more ordained men usually participate in each service, and, traditionally, there is a bishop, two ministers and a deacon in each congregation. A capella singing takes place, with no musical notation in the hymnbooks.

The love feasts are annual or semi-annual, with worship services held on a Saturday morning and afternoon, concluding with a communion and feet washing service in the evening. A regular Sunday service is held the next morning, and four meals might be served throughout the weekend to those at the love feast.

Below are some of the best dairy recipes provided by these families of dairy farmers who enjoy good eating:

YOGURT FLUFF

1 small box sugar-free Jello
1 8 ounce container plain yogurt
½ teaspoon vanilla

Dissolve contents of package in ¾ cup boiling water in blender; blend 1 minute. Combine ½ cup of cold water and ½ cup of ice cubes and add to blender. Blend until ice is melted. Blend in 1 8 ounce container of plain yogurt and ½ teaspoon vanilla. Pour into 5 dessert dishes. Chill.

This was submitted by Dianne Conley, a student at the Sonlight School, who admits that she likes to make the desserts in the cookbook best.

ORANGE POPS

1 6 ounce can frozen orange juice concentrate
3 juice cans whole milk

Blend at medium speed until smooth. Pour into 8 (4 ounce) paper cups; cover with foil and freeze. When partially frozen, add sticks and continue to freeze. Tear paper away to eat. Thirst quencher in hot weather!

Submitted by Nancy Funk, this is a favorite recipe of the children in the River Brethren families.

CRACKER PUDDING

4 cups milk
2 eggs, beaten
¾ cup sugar
1 cup saltine cracker crumbs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup coconut

Beat eggs well and add to milk in saucepan. Scald. Stir in sugar and cracker crumbs and cook over medium heat until thickened, stirring occasionally. Add vanilla and coconut. You may decrease sugar to ½ cup and use graham crackers instead of saltines, sprinkling some on top. Egg whites may be separated and beaten, then added when the mixture is thickened.

This old fashioned recipe was printed as a favorite of Hettie Brechbill (1884-1947) and Edith Shaffner.

TAPIOCA

1 gallon milk
8 eggs, separated
2 cups sugar, divided
1 teaspoon salt
11½ cup tapioca
2 Tablespoons vanilla

Soak the milk, beaten egg yolks, 1 cup sugar, salt and tapioca for five minutes in an 8-quart kettle. Heat to boiling. Boil five minutes. Fold in the egg whites, stiffly beaten with one cup sugar. Add the vanilla. Cool. Stir and chill. Serves 50.

This comes from Daniel Conley, a student at the school.

COMMUNION BREAD

15 cups unbleached flour
3 cups unsalted butter (room temperature)
3 cups raw milk

Mix flour and butter until crumbly. Mix in milk slowly, working with hands until well-blended and smooth. May not need to use all the milk, depending on the temperature or the way the cups of flour are measured. Divide into four parts and roll directly onto ungreased cookie sheets slowly to prevent tearing the dough (¼ inch thick). Mark into strips with a ruler. Perforate each strip from end to end with a fork, making sure to touch the cookie sheet to prevent bubbles when baking. This will make enough for 250 members. Bake at 350 degrees to 375 degrees for 30 to 45 minutes.

This intriguing recipe was provided by Emma Sauder, one of the cookbook committee.

Homemade Ice Cream

9 eggs, beaten
2½ cups sugar
5 cups cream
5½ cups milk
1½ tablespoons vanilla

Mix together and churn until set in a 6-quart freezer.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Psychologists have, for some time, told us that humans can be divided into categories of "day" people, and "night" people.

There are folks who wake up easily at the crack of dawn, invigorated, rested, eager to hop out of bed and tackle the challenges of the day. Farmers, for the most part, seem to generally fit this category.

Then, shortly after supper, drowsiness wraps around their being, eyelids grow heavy, and bedtime tops the mental priority list of things to do for "day" people. This may explain farmers' tendency to be in a sound sleep two minutes after contact with the living room couch. Sixteen-hour days probably factor in, too.

In direct opposition, and just rolling into high gear about that hour, are the "night" folks. Dawn is considered a four-letter-word to those who find morning a drag and work at peak efficiency somewhere about midnight.

I wonder. Can most of the population really be categorized so neatly? There are beautiful, crisp, refreshing hours at sunrise that convince me -- some days -- that I'm definitely a "day" enthusiast. Then, along comes a dreary, draggy, damp morning that knocks that theory out of whack.

And, some nights find my eyes wide open even while the eleven o'clock news signs off. Usually, though, they're fast headed as tightly shut as those of the figure stretched prone on the couch.

We need another category for misfits like myself.

Personally, I vote dusk as the most near-perfect time of the day, especially during these warmer months of the year. Most pressing of the day's chores are finished -- or abandoned -- and the ever-hectic farm pace slows a bit. The cows are milked, contentedly chewing, and the calves fed and settled for the night.

Farm tasks dealt with at this hour are usually of the wrap-up sort; hauling home hay wagons lumbering full with green bales or moving equipment in anticipation of an early morning start on the next job. Especially cherished are the pickup or three-wheeler tours with the Farmer of crop progress in assorted fields of corn, hay or beans. Along the way, somewhere, may be a quick chat with a neighbor or a five-minute visit to Grandpa.

Gray begins shadowing the eastern sky behind Bunker Hill, the small woodlot beyond the bottomland alfalfa. Wispy pink clouds drift across the blue overhead, reminiscent of lengths of cotton candy scattered through the heavens. Soft pastels, like a watercolor print, streak the sky as the sun settles behind the hills to the west. Azure blue fades to lavendar, streaked with shades of rose and shafts of light glinting gold through the trees.

As the sunset pales, so does the heat of glaring daylight. A breath of breeze stirs the thick canopy of maple leaves which umbrella over the house. And along the Little Pond below the house, a hint of dampness begins to rise, as the first shrill notes sound from the chorus of peepers serenading at water's edge.

Even in the softening light of dusk, each crop retains a distinctive hue. The stands of oats, nurturing hidden infant alfalfa seedlings, take on a grayish cast, in contrast to the deep green of the second growth of mature alfalfa in adjoining strips. Barley stands are a dull golden shade, needing a few more days of warmth and sunshine to mature into the brassy color of harvest readiness.

From a hillside overlooking contrasting contours, black and white heifers grazing peacefully in the meadow, with pastel-streaked heavens above, I know, at this moment, there is no better place to live than here in Nature's bosom.

The everyday concerns of farm life -- bills and breakdowns, weeds and weevils, a favorite cow unbred, too many tasks in too few hours -- can be set aside in those moments of beauty and peace that comes with a gentle June dusk.

Categorizing folks never does seem right. But, undeniably, if there were a category for "dusk" persons, that's where I'd fit.

These Kids Tell What My Father Means To Me...

MANHEIM (Lancaster) — Fathers—we each have one. They come in different sizes, shapes, and colors and they're called by different names.

Regardless on whether or not you call yours dad, pop, daddy, father or whatever, Sunday is the day to celebrate. It's Father's Day, a time set aside to tell them how important they are to us, and to think about all the good things that we've got because of him.

Eigth graders at Manheim Christian Day School in Manheim, appreciate their fathers. Read what they wrote about their dads and then write a little note to your father telling him what's special about him.

My father is someone who I can talk to alone about a question I don't understand.

He is someone who can do almost anything with me.

He keeps the house and keeps us in peace!

My father is more than just a father, he's a friend!

Beth Reed
Daughter of Frank Reed
Manheim

My father means a lot to me. He understands the problems of youthful life.

I like when we do things together; for example, canoeing, hiking and working on my grandpa's farm.

Kevin Bucher
Son of Ken Bucher
Manheim

My father is a quiet but strong man who loves me in a gentle way. He likes his tractors and likes to farm. My dad loves my mom and he loves me.

Gwenda LeFever
Daughter of Dave Lefever
Lititz

A father is someone who we all look up to. He is always there when something breaks or when a fight just breaks out.

A father is someone who will always accept you, no matter how immature you act.

He is always kidding, but you know he doesn't really mean it!

Jolynne Kreider
Daughter of Caleb Kreider
Manheim

Fathers mean love and security. My dad is very important to me. He gave me a family and accepted me in this family. When I'm in the dumps, I am always supported by my father. He takes me very many fun places and provides me with food and clothing. I hope someday I can be such a good father like him.

Nathan Bomberger
Son of Henry Bomberger
Manheim

A father is someone to look up to, someone who can fix anything that goes wrong. A father jokes, laughs, gets mad, etc.

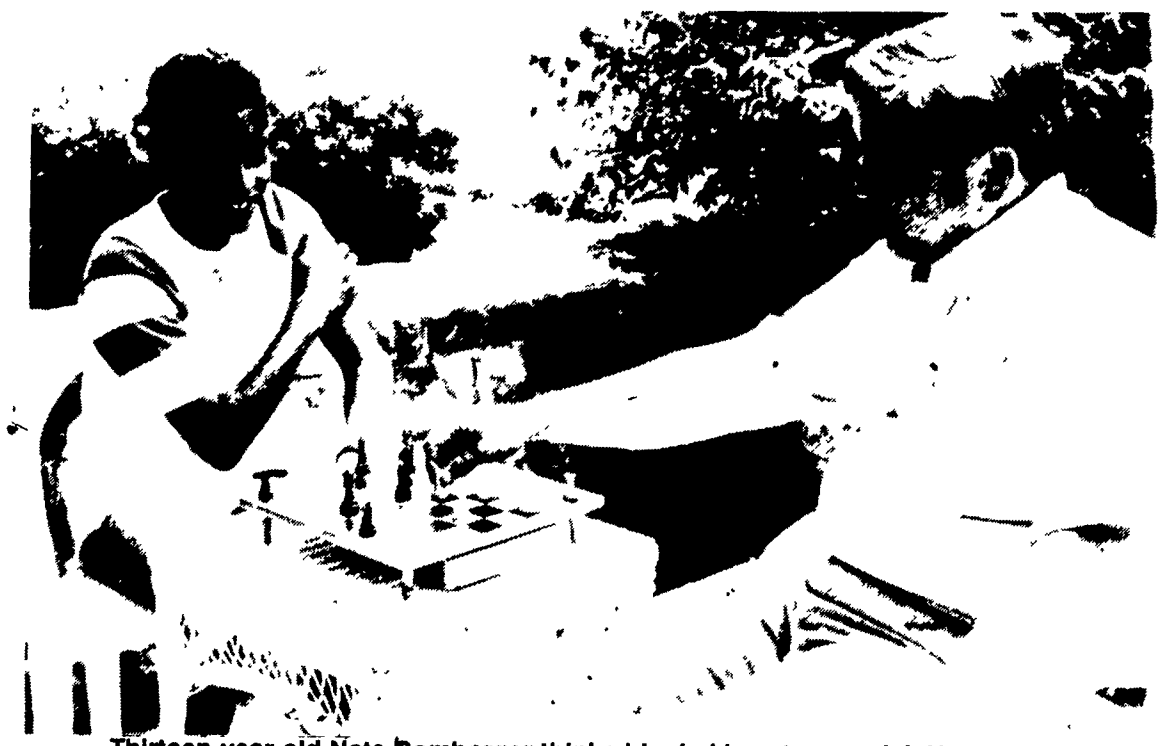
Dads can be fun most of the time, but they do have bad times too, like most people. Fathers put up with your bad moods and your messy room.

Lisa Stauffer
Daughter of Dick Stauffer
Manheim

To me, fathers mean a lot of fun and they're always there to help you when you don't know how to fix something. Fathers also have time to play ball on a Sunday afternoon.

My father is a person who is understanding and knows when I'm hurt. Fathers are very special to me. I love having a father.

Duane Sauder
Son of Glenn Sauder
Manheim



Thirteen-year-old Nate Bomberger thinks his dad is extra special. Here, they play their favorite game, chess.

My father takes me places. He takes me hunting. My father provides me with a place to live. He helps me in times of trouble. He goes fishing and things. He takes me rafting. We pass football. We play baseball and we have a lot of fun. He teaches me the facts of life.

Jeremy Martin
Son of Marlin Martin
Manheim

My father means a lot to me and my family. He takes us to our cabin over the summer and winter. He takes me hunting and fishing trips to Canada and supplies me with plenty of work.

Mark Brubaker
Son of Ed Brubaker
Manheim

My father means a lot to me. He is someone I look up to and respect. If I would not have a dad, I would not have a lot of what I have. He goes places for me and knows what I need.

Lavonne Lehman
Daughter of Dennis Lehman
Manheim

Fathers to me mean authority when he gives me work to do. They mean strictness when we need it. They mean transportation when I have no way to a party. When I need to be straightened out my father is always there.

Bradford County Silver Anniversary: A Colorful Affair

BY BARBARA MILLER
Bradford Co. Correspondent

CANTON (Bradford Co.) — What color goes best with silver? Turquoise? At least some guests attending the silver anniversary of the Bradford County Dairy Pageant thought turquoise blended well with silver. From among the five contestants wearing gowns in various colors of the rainbow, the judges chose Terri Packard, who was attired in a full-length, dark turquoise gown, as the next Bradford County dairy princess. The festivities took place the evening of June 11 in the auditorium of the Canton High School.

Granted the color had nothing to do with the judges decision that Terri deserved the crown. Instead, her duties impressed the judges.

Listing qualities that will make her a good dairy princess, Terri remarked, "I'm active in a lot of things and have had lots of chances to take on leadership responsibilities and I live on a farm."

Terri, a junior at Troy High School who plans to attend Penn State University after graduation, notes that among her school related activities, she is class president, a member of the National Honor Society, and a member of chorus. A 4-H member for 10 years, Terri currently holds several positions in that club and is also president of the Bradford County Junior-Holstein Club, and secretary of the Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Club Executive Committee. An active member of the East Troy Baptist Church, Terri is the organist and president of the youth group. Terri resides at the Pack-Herd Farm; East Troy, with her parents, Marilyn and Richard Packard, brother, David, and sister, Amy. The Packards keep 100 Holsteins on their 285-acre farm.

Moments after the crowning Saturday night the new Bradford County dairy princess, Terri Packard, confessed, "I don't know what I'm getting into, but I'm happy to be part of it. I will support the industry and do my best."

Elected first alternate was Tina McMurray, daughter of Clifton and Jane McMurray of R.D.2, Canton; chosen second alternate was Jeanette Davis, daughter of William and Jean Davis of LeRaysville. Other contestants were Beverly Tinsley, daughter of Bruce and Lyn Tinsley, East Troy and Karen Polovick, daughter of Kevin and Linda Polovick, Sayre.

Tina McMurray, first alternate, is completing her senior year at Canton Junior/Senior High School and plans a career in nursing. Her activities include varsity volley ball and softball and she is the secretary of the Student Council and the Letterman's Club. The McMurrays keep 160 Holsteins on their 413-acre farm.

Second alternate, Jeanette Davis, will be a senior at Northeast High School next year and plans to study music after she graduates from high school. Among her many activities, Jeanette lists being a member of the band, and chorus, and the National Honor Society. She plays the piano for two local churches and during the summer will be attending the Governor's School for the Arts. The Davis's century farm, where they keep 115 Holsteins and milk 50, is composed of 400-acres.

Outgoing dairy princess, Cheryl Taylor, in her farewell address summed up her reign by saying, "It turned out to be one of the most rewarding and best years of my life."

Recounting some of the highlights of her reign Cheryl mentioned the state pageant where she met girls from across the state as well as helping to make the 200-foot banana split at Williamsport. Cheryl gave a breakdown of the types of dairy promotions she did during the year which came to a total of 136 separate events. She thanked her family, friends, teachers, local newspapers, the Bradford County Dairy Promotion Board, and every one involved for their help in making her reign a success.

The creative presentations by the five contestants were quite imaginative. The audience thoroughly enjoyed a humorous presentation by contestant Beverly Tinsley, entitled, "A Day in the Life" which depicted a day in the life of a cow. Wearing a black skirt, white blouse, and cow bell, Beverly, rendered a stream of consciousness narrative of the way a cow thinks from wishing Farmer Brown would hurry with the grain to exclaiming at one point, "Ooh, I wish farmer Brown would warm up that milker a little before he puts it on."

The 1988 Bradford County princess did a musical parody using milk as the theme to a McDonald commercial based on a song about Mack the Knife. First alternate, Tina McMurray, portrayed a school teacher instructing a classroom of students about the value of a glass of milk; musically inclined second alternate, Jeanette Davis, changed from a bag lady who lived on soda pop to a healthy adult who played classical music after drinking milk. Karen Polovick, as a lonely milk carton on a shelf, listed the qualities of milk as opposed to those of Mr. Fizzle.

Pageant co-persons were Terri Madigan and Bonnie Borek. Emcee for the 256th annual Bradford County dairy pageant was Bob Garrison. Judges for the event were Beverly Matern, Syracuse, N.Y.; Stefana Shoemaker Dushore, Pa.; Laura Long, Harrisburg. Entertainment was provided by the seventh and eighth grade boys choral group of the Troy Middle School. Organist was Carol Jones.

Saturday night's dairy pageant was the grand finale of two days of dairy activities held in celebration of Bradford County's dairy industry. The dairy festival began on Friday night, June 10, with a "Meet the Candidates Dinner" and throughout the two day event featured such things as a parade, a milking contest, and the construction of a 25-foot banana split.

Clinton County Names First Dairy Princess

LAMAR (Clinton) — Tracy Schenck is the first Dairy Princess in the history of Clinton County. She received her crown at coronation ceremonies held at the Nittany Grange in Lamar on May 28.

Tracy, 17, is the daughter of Harry Schenck of R.D., Beech Creek. She will graduate from Bald Eagle-Nittany High School in Mill Hall, on June 20. She plans to attend the Altoona Campus of The Pennsylvania State University majoring in agriculture business. Her school activities include the Drama Club, softball team, and she is a member of the yearbook staff.

Tracy Schenck received the crown for the first dairy princess the county named.

Tracy has been a 4-H club member for nine years. She owns three registered Holsteins and has shown them in county, district, and state shows.

Her many hobbies and interests include reading, writing, being outdoors, and spending time with the less fortunate. For her promotional presentation, Tracy presented a skit telling the audience about the importance of milk.

The new princess received a dozen red roses, two pieces of luggage, and a check for $120 from the Clinton County Dairy Promotion Committee. Many farm businesses and dairy farmers from the county donated money to support the princess pageant.

Dick Plotts, Clinton County Extension Agent, was master of ceremonies for the program. Judy Vonada Corl, a former Dairy Princess and state runner-up, from Centre County, was the guest speaker and also crowned Tracy. Two musical selections were sung by Paul and Charlie Dotterer accompanied by Eleanor Dotterer on the piano. Guests were treated to milk punch, cake, and ice cream following the ceremonies.

Beth Ann Cooley: Judges' Choice

BY BARBARA MILLER

WILLIAMSPORT (Lycoming) — Of the three slim, dark-haired beauties vying for the title of the 1988 Lycoming County dairy princess, the judges' choice was Beth Ann Cooley, daughter of Dale and Sharon Cooley, Allenwood. Beth Ann donned her new crown the evening of June 10 during festivities held in the grand ballroom of the Genetti Lycoming Hotel, Williamsport. Approximately 150 people attended the event.

Fay Jordan, daughter of Henry and Carol Jordan, R.D. 1, Unityville, was chosen the first dairy princess alternate; Carolyn Cline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orie Cline, R.D. 1, Linden, was elected the second alternate.

Beth Ann, a pleasant hazel-eyed girl with waist-length brown hair, will be a senior at Montgomery Area High School this year and plans to major in dairy science at Penn State after graduation. She remarked that around the farm she "milks cows, feeds calves, and does almost any work that needs doing." Beth has an avid interest in cows and since ninth grade has been choosing most of the AI bulls for breeding on the family farm.

Beth's activities include track team, chorus, 4-H, and showing dairy cattle. The Cooleys--Beth, her parents, and two brothers--reside on Cooley-Road Farms. They milk 35 Holstein cows and raise corn and alfalfa on 100-acres.

Fay Jordan, first alternate, will be a senior at Hughesville High School and after graduation plans to study accounting. She is a member of the girl's softball team, yearbook staff, French Club, 4-H, and shows cows and swine at local shows. The Jordans own 250-acres and milk 24 Holstein cows.

Second alternate, Carolyn Cline, will be a senior at Williamsport Area High School and after graduation hopes to major in education. She is active in 4-H, Key Club, and Peer Helpers and shows dairy cattle. The Clines reside on a 254-acre dairy farm.

During a short farewell speech outgoing dairy princess Margie Fuoss noted that she had made 23 appearances at local schools in her dairy promotional efforts. But one of the things she will remember most about her reign, "was eating my three feet of the four and a half mile long banana split at Selinsgrove."

In other business two 1988 Lycoming County Dairy of Distinctions were honored: The Lycoming County Farm - managed by Mr. and Mrs. Russell Beach, R.D. Montoursville; and James and Helen Luckenbill, R.D. 1, Montgomery.

In recognition of her years of work helping with the dairy pageant, Mrs. Helen Barto, Montgomery, was given a corsage by the dairy princess committee.

Emcee for the 1988 Lycoming County Dairy Pageant was Mr. Tom Richwine, Carlisle, Pa. Judges were Mrs. Debbie Cornman, Carlisle, wife of a dairy farmer, 4-H leader, and past dairy princess; Mrs. Sharon Hammon, Carlisle, wife of a dairy farmer and former dairy princess; and Mrs. Twila Rohrer, Lititz, former Lancaster County dairy princess, and also wife of a dairy farmer.

Margie Fuoss, outgoing, Lycoming County dairy princess crowns Beth Ann Cooley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Cooley, Allenwood, as the 1988 Lycoming County dairy princess.

These Women Make The Day Special For The Men In Their Lives

BY LOU ANN GOOD

LITITZ (Lancaster) — In 1924, the third Sunday of June was set aside as Father's Day. Every year, many women, not only acknowledge their fathers on this special day, but also their husbands.

Exactly how they observe this day varies from person to person. We asked some of our readers to share what they do. So if you're wondering how to show appreciation toward that man in your life, read these responses and get some ideas.

Elfriede M. Kohut of Boyertown said, "My husband doesn't need to do dishes. It's the day we go out to eat and I pick up the tab."

Valerie Strunic of Boyertown said, "It's breakfast in bed for my husband."

JoAnn DeCesar of Blandon promises, "I'll be cooking him a meal—something that's a rarity when summer comes and I'm busy in the garden."

Said Sherry Wenger, Manheim, "Growing up I was fortunate to have a loving and caring father. When choosing a husband, I looked for the same qualities and found them. The men in my life are very important to me and make me feel that I am important to them also."

I love to eat out, so of course, my Father's Day gift to my husband, father and father-in-law is taking them out to eat."

Michele Rodgers, Berks extension home economist and a columnist for "Lancaster Farming," said, "This Father's Day is special because it's my husband's first year as a father." And what does he get for his first Father's Day present? Michele answers, "I'm giving him a promissory note for a ride on the Blue Mountain Steam Railroad."

Marian Groff and her husband John have been married 28 years. Their seven children and Marian give cards and little gifts. This year, Marian wrote in prose some values that she intends to continue fulfilling to make her husband, John, feel special year around.

Father's Day

Faithful
Always
Trust and be trustworthy
Hearty meals for energy
Encourage Resist critical words
Save, be a wise shopper

Don't murmur or complain
Always be thankful
You are special, you are loved—words freely spoken

Marian Groff strives to keep her husband, John, feeling special year-round. The Groffs live on an 80-acre dairy farm where Marian helps her husband milk 70 Holsteins.

Dairy farmer Don Wenger is slated to get his usual Father's Day special—dinner at a restaurant.

Royalty Claims Hard Work Never Hurt Anyone

GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Adams Co. Correspondent

BIGLERVILLE (Adams) — The Adams County Holstein Club hosted the county's 21st Annual Dairy Princess Contest Saturday evening, June 11, in the Biglerville High School Auditorium. The theme for this year's pageant was, "Milk, Its Fitness You Can Drink."

Crowned as the 1988-89 Adams County Dairy Princess was Deborah E. Welty, 17, daughter of Robert and Peggy Welty, 2452 Mummasburg Rd., Gettysburg, Pa.

Deborah is an active participant on her family's farm where she helps with the milking of their 63 head of Registered Holsteins. Deborah relates that her chores extend from milking, to feeding calves, to whatever needs to be done. During the question and answer period for contestants, Deborah noted that one of the values she has learned growing up on a dairy farm is that hard work never hurt anyone.

Deborah will be a senior at the Gettysburg High School this fall. She is involved with the Chesapeake Bay Independent Research Team at school and plans to pursue a degree in accounting.

Garnering the title of the 1988-89 Adams County Alternate Dairy Princess was Melissa D. Gebhart. She is the daughter of Kenneth and Alberta Gebhart, 2950 Centennial Rd., Hanover, Pa.

Melissa, 17, will be a senior this fall at the New Oxford High School. She is active in the FFA program and serves as her chapter's secretary. Melissa owns two cows and two heifers. She is currently finishing her reign as the Adams County Poultry Queen. Melissa plans to pursue a career in restaurant management.

The judges for this year's contest were Leroy Bupp, Sevens Valley', Karen Hobson, Taneytown, MD; and Nell Matthews, Gettysburg. Nina Redding, the Adams County Home Economist, served as the Mistress of Ceremonies.

Entertainment for the evening was provided by the popular dance group, the Carroll County Cloggers. The evening festivities concluded with a dairy dessert buffet.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

As a child, my father would often tell me the names of various weeds that grew in our fields. And, as we hand-hoed our 15 acres of tobacco, there was ample time to talk about weeds.

Even today whenever I get a distance from home, I like to walk along the berm of the road and check for plants not native to Lancaster County. Some plants seem to fare very well wherever they are growing. Did you ever notice that a plant deprived of water and nutrients will still give seed? Instead of being three feet high it might be only three inches tall with a seed head on top.

Some plants seem to take over whenever they get a chance. My herb garden is a good example. In it there is one sage plant and one lovage plant. But, the one tarragon plant has spread over an entire corner of the garden. Tea is another prolific herb as I have lemon balm, spearmint and other teas growing among the strawberries and parsnips.

The plants that reseed themselves year after year can be a nuisance or a pleasure. My larkspurs have sprung up not only in a flower garden but among the vegetables too. Dill is another plant that is overly abundant. Each year I plant lots of sweet basil and curled parsley as they are used regularly in my cooking.

And so as I gather and use the things in my garden, I remember my interest in plants goes back to my youth. As the oldest of seven girls, I'd take my sisters on Sunday afternoon walks in our meadow and point out various wildflowers to them. In the spring I've even taken school bus loads of elementary childeren on nature hikes in our woodland.

Barbara Emery Tells How To Look Terrific By Developing Your Personal Style

BY LOU ANN GOOD

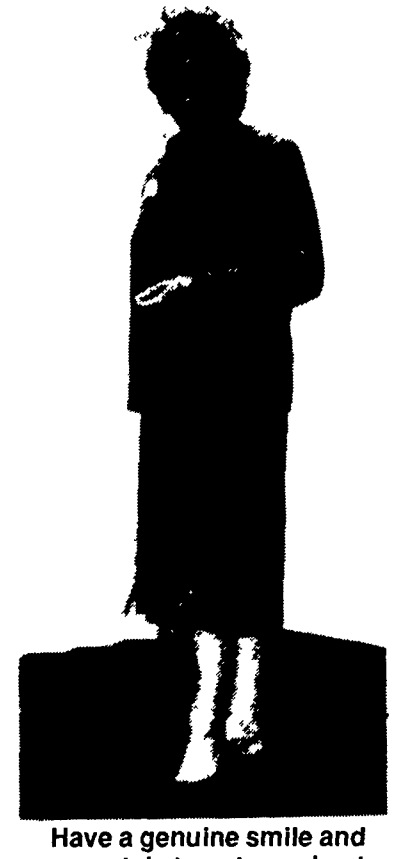
LEESPORT (Berks) — "There is no such thing as an unattractive woman, only a woman who doesn't know how to take care of herself," insists Barbara Emery, owner of a company called Looking Terrific, LTD.

Emery spoke recently at a seminar sponsored by the Berks County extension office. She said that 60-80% of communication is non verbal. How we stand, walk, sit and gesture sends off signals. When verbal and nonverbal communication conflict, people tend to believe the non-verbal signals.

Through demonstrating both proper and improper ways of sitting, standing, and walking, Emery showed seminar participants how they can look terrific at any age.

Demonstrating both proper and improper ways of sitting, Emery proved that a woman can look younger or older.

Barbara Emery said it's more graceful to walk .up and down steps at an angle rather than barging straight up and down.



Have a genuine smile and your certain to put your best foot forward, Barbara Emery tells seminar participants.

Learn to know the styles you feel most comfortable wearing and the best colors for your skin tone—then you're not a victim of the fashion industry.

She challenges that women should stop complaining that they are too old, too short and too heavy and develop their own personal style that gives her an individual look and sets her apart. She said, "Knowing who you are gives confidence."

Know fashion personality

Emery challenged, "Learn to know the styles you feel most comfortable wearing and the best colors for your skin tone—then you're not a victim of the fashion industry. You won't buy colors and styles that look outlandish on you."

Research shows that women basically fall into one of the five different fashion personalities

•Dramatic personalities are usually tall and thin. The high fashion model types wear exotic jewelry, usually have either extremely fussy or sleek hairdos.

•Sporty personalities generally have an athletic stride, windblown hairstyles and lean toward informal, casual to chic sportswear They prefer natural fibers and rough textures. They often have trouble when dressing up because all their outfits are pants. To fit these occasions and still follow through with a style with which they feel comfortable, Emery suggests wearing velvet pants and a silk blouse with a floppy bow or a silk shirtwaist.

•Feminine/romantics like soft lace, ruffles and curved lines. To often they dress for evening wear during the day and have a tendency to over dress and add too many accessories like scarves, jewelry and belts. Of all the types, they have the most difficult time dressing appropriately in the business world, because their clothing does not say serious, but fun. Generally their make-up is delicate; they like curls, and weight may be a challenge.

•Classics are more conservative in personality and they tend to dress likewise but in an more up-to-date, classic fashion. They are slow to switch to the latest trends. They prefer smooth textures, neat and controlled hair styles. Emery said, "Women tend to become more classic as they mature. They must be careful not to look matronly and dowdy." They need to learn to add more accessories other than their standard pearls.

•Trendy styles require the most expense because they wear the in-look that constantly changes. Teens generally prefer this style. It doesn't work well for older women unless they dress in high fashion.

Color

There are colors that flatter different skin tones better than others. Emery challenge the women to learn their best colors. But color does even more than affect skin tones. "Because the eye always goes to the lightest part of the garment," Emery suggests, "put the lightest color where you want people to look. Focus should be under the chin for eye contact. A light top will draw attention to the face.

Instructor Barbara Emery used posters to demonstrate how clothing styles and posture can visually add or subtract pounds.

How we stand, walk, sit and gesture sends off signals. When verbal and non-verbal communication conflict, people tend to believe the non-verbal signals.

She suggests wearing taupe shoes and nylons for a longer, leaner look. Items such as shoes, belts, purses, scarfs and large jewelry add stop signs.

Graceful body movements

More important than haircut or clothes, Emery said, is the way you carry yourself. With maturity, women tend to droop, sag or slouch.

Studies show that people with good posture get more attention. They make 20% more money and have 25% more advantage in getting jobs. She said, "Stand up straight. If you walk with a slouch, your clothing looks cheap even if it cost a fortune. Stand with feet several inches apart, derriere tucked under and stretch up at the waist. Keep shoulders in alignment. People tend to walk with shoulders and head forward" To change that, "Stand with hands at side and drop them. Shoulders and chin should be parallel to the ground." Don't clutch furniture when walking. Stepping off with the right foot gives a more graceful movement. Lead with thighs and not shoulders.

She declared, "Women can take 10 pounds off their figure and ten years off their age with proper posture."

When standing on stage, Emery suggests avoiding a fig leaf position of holding your own hand. "Royalty puts hands in back." You may put one hand in pocket but leave either the thumb or the fingers extend. Both hands in the pocket give a planted look. Steer away from placing both hands on the hips and making a fist. Place one foot in back and one arm back with right foot forward. The heel of the right foot is across from the arch of the other foot.

Getting in and out of a chair is another area that needs practice. Emery said, "Come to the chair at an angle. Back against chair, keep a straight back with hand held in back lower yourself gently into the chair. Sit erect in chair with one foot in front of the other. Do not cross knees. To arise gracefully from the chair, feet should be under the chair, one arm behind, give a sneaky shove with hand and get up. Always back into car seats, do not climb in.

When putting these rules into practice, the poses and moves may seem stilted in the beginning, Emery admitted but encouraged, "With practice, they will look more relaxed."

When going up and down steps, tip body to the side, one foot up and keep body at an angle rather than walking straight up and down. You may use the stair railing, but touch it rather than clutch it," she said. Slide hand smoothly and gracefully over the rail rather than grab it.

Grooming

She stresses, "Pay attention to your grooming. Take time to press, stitch rips and loose buttons and shine shoes."

As women get older, they tend to carry larger purses. "Don't get in the habit of carrying larger purses because they draw attention to the hip line, the heaviest part of the body," When carrying a clutch bag, extend index finger along the bottom of the purse, hide other fingers at the back of purse and carry it against the body.

Emery said, "Use smooth hand motions, less fussy movements such as scratching head, rubbing chin and twisting hands."

Facial expressions

According to Emery, seventy percent of non verbal signals come from facial muscles. Facial expressions should include a genuine smile. No facial expression makes people feel uneasy. She said, "Animated facial expressions can be one of the best things going for you."

Emery did not always know social skills. At age 40, she attended a modeling school, not for the purpose of modeling but to gain confidence by looking better. Through what she learned, Emery is convinced that women feel better about themselves if they learn to develop their own personal style.

She offers classes in color analysis; applying correct make-up; learning self confidence through positive, graceful body movements; enhancing your figure with color, fabric and line and developing a wardrobe that works for your lifestyle, personality and income.

Barbara said a recent survey revealed that 75% of women said that if they had life to live over, they would pay more attention to their personal appearance.

The real you

"The media constantly bombarbs women "by telling us that we are not o.k. the way we are," said Emery. She suggests, "Accept what you have and don't worry about the rest."

Although looking terrific requires learned skills, Emery maintains, "True beauty comes from within and no amount of cosmetics will change that."

True beauty comes from within and no amount of cosmetics will change that.

GIVE YOUR WOOL SWEATERS TLC

It is time, if you haven't already done so, to put away your wool sweaters until fall. However, never store them unless they are spotlessly clean. Here are some tips on how to hand wash your wool sweaters and give them the tender loving care they deserve.

First, place your sweater on a clean piece of paper (not newspaper), and trace around it. Label the pattern as to which sweater it is and store it in a convenient place.

Pre-treat all spots with a mild detergent solution or a dry-cleaning solvent, depending on the type of soil. Fasten all buttons and close zippers.

Prepare a solution of two tablespoons of mild detergent to three or four gallons of lukewarm water (about 80 to 100 degrees F.). Immerse sweater in solution and let it soak three to five minutes. Gently squeeze suds through; be careful not to wring; twist or use excess agitation.

Rinse sweater two or three times in lukewarm water. Add one teaspoon of white vinegar to four gallons of water for the final rinse. Squeeze excess water from the sweater; then roll it between two clean terrycloth towels.

Lay the sweater on its pattern and align shoulders, underarms and side seams. Pat design lines gently into correct position. When grosgrain ribbon is used to face a cardigan, pull the ribbon taut to its original length. Pin ends of ribbon to paper pattern with rustproof pins. Place a terrycloth towel between the front and back of bulky sweaters to speed drying. Allow the sweater to lay flat until completely dry.

If sweater needs a final touch-up, steam press. Place the sweater on an ironing board. Hold steam iron just above sweater; steam a few seconds. Smooth sweater with hands. Fold sweater and store in a safe place.

COOK OUT CAREFULLY

Before you ask your friends over for a summer backyard cookout this year, make certain you plan for safety.

Set up and use your barbecue according to the manufacturer's directions and follow correct safety procedures. Keep a hose nearby in case of fire.

Make sure the cook has a heavy apron and pot-holder gloves for protection from the heat and spitting grease. Use long-handled utensils such as a fork, tongs, a spoon and a turner.

Cookouts are notorious for bugs and bees. If a bee swarms around you, move slowly away. Do not flap your arms about since this aggravates bees to attack. Wear white or old solid light-colored clothing. Insects are more attracted to flowery prints and darker colors. Avoid hair oil or perfume and sticky foods or drinks. These also attract insects.

When planning the food, make sure you will be able to keep the hot food hot and the cold food cold. Food poisoning can turn a pleasant cookout into a disaster. Foods such as ham, chicken, egg, and potato salads, puddings and custards, are particularly susceptible to the bacteria that cause food poisoning. Potato chips, raw fruit and vegetables, cheese, peanut butter, jam and canned goods usually keep best.

If you plan to cook meat over the charcoal fire, make sure it is lean or trim away as much fat as possible.

Make yourself clean up after your cookout. Put all foods away in the refrigerator as soon as possible to avoid spoilage or food poisoning. Clean the grill and utensils immediately to avoid sticking food particles to them which can cause dangerous bacteria to grow.

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

BY JOYCE BATTCHER

Celebrate strawberry season now with fresh strawberry desserts and extend the season by making strawberry jam.

Classic strawberry shortcake is ready to eat in about ten minutes when you microwave the shortcakes. Microwave cooking time is only about three minutes; but of course, you have to allow time to prepare the fresh strawberries.

Shortcakes don't brown when cooked by microwaves; but that doesn't matter. Once they're topped with fresh berries and whipped cream, no one cares if the shortcakes have a browned top! I like to brush tops lightly with vanilla -- not so much for color, but for the wonderful aroma that comes as they microwave.

Arrange the mounds of dough in the ideal microwave shape -- the doughnut shape -- on sheets of waxed paper. Be careful not to overcook. When done, shortcakes may still have a few moist spots on top. They'll finish cooking in about the first three minutes of cooling time. Let them stand on a flat surface to ensure that the bottoms are cooked. They are best served warm. I like to split them and put berries inside and on top.

In fresh strawberry pie, a cup of berries is cooked with the glaze ingredients to give extra flavor and color. There's no need the crush berries first, like in conventional strawberry pie recipes. Thickly sliced berries will soften during microwaving and after stirring. If you like to keep a cool kitchen, microwave the pastry crust. Directions follow pie recipe.

Light n' fresh strawberry jam is a fresh-tasting jam that must be stored in your refrigerator. When making it, use a very large cooking container. A two-quart measure (which really holds about 2¼ quarts) or a three-quart casserole usually works well; but if you have a four or five-quart casserole, use it for more carefree cooking. The jam boils high and in some microwave ovens -- even in a three-quart casserole -- it may start to boil over. If so, stir it and turn power setting to Medium.

Strawberry Shortcake

Fresh strawberries, rinsed and hulled
Sugar to taste
2⅓ cups buttermilk baking mix, spooned into measure
3 tablespoons sugar
⅓ cup milk
3 tablespoons melted butter
Vanilla (optional)

Slice strawberries; mix gently with sugar to taste. Set aside while preparing shortcakes.

In medium mixing bowl, combine baking mix and sugar. Stir in milk and melted butter, mixing with a fork until no large lumps remain. Gently knead 10 to 12 times. (Or mix vigorously with fork for about 12 to 15 strokes.) Form into 6 equal rounds, each about 3 inches in diameter and ½ -inch thick.

Place a sheet of waxed paper on a microwave-safe tray or on a piece of non-recycled cardboard cut in a circle to fit microwave. Place shortcakes on waxed paper, spacing them 1 inch apart and leaving center open. If desired, brush tops lightly with vanilla. Microwave (High) 2½ to 3½ minutes or until tops spring back when lightly touched. If necessary for even cooking, rotate tray once during cooking. Cool on flat surface for 5 to 10 minutes.

Split warm shortcakes; fill and top each with strawberries and accumulated juice. Top with whipped cream. Makes 6 servings.

HINT: Shortcakes may be made ahead. After cooling on tray, remove to cooling rack to cool completely. Store tightly covered in refrigerator. Before serving: Place shortcakes on microwave-safe tray; cover with a paper towel and microwave (High) 45 to 90 seconds or until barely warm.

(Each serving: 397 calories, 5 mg. protein, 19 mg. fat, 56 mg. carbohydrate. 642 mg sodium, 38 mg. cholesterol.)

Fresh Strawberry Pie

1 teaspoon unflavored gelatin
1 tablespoon cold water
3 pints fresh strawberries, rinsed and hulled
¾ cup granulated sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ cup orange juice
½ cup water
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 microwaved or baked 9-inch pastry crust
Sweetened whipped cream

Sprinkle gelatin over 1 tablespoon cold water in microwave-safe custard cup. Microwave (High) 30 to 50 seconds or until boiling; stir well to dissolve gelatin; set aside. Thickly slice enough strawberries to make 1 cup; set aside.

In a 2-quart microwave-safe measure or casserole, stir together sugar and cornstarch. Gradually stir in orange juice until smooth; stir in ½ cup water and the 1 cup sliced strawberries. Microwave (High) 4 to 5 minutes, or until boiling and thickened, stirring after each 2 minutes. Stir in lemon juice and dissolved gelatin. Cool. Thickly slice or halve remaining strawberries; stir into cool glaze. Pour into cooked and cooled pastry crust. Chill about 6 hours or until firm. Cut into wedges and top each with whipped cream. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

(Each serving)-- ¼ of pie: 240 calories, 3 mg. protein, 8 mg. fat, 41 mg. carbohydrate, 138 mg. sodium, 0 cholesterol.)

Pastry Crust

Place homemade or store-bought pastry crust in microwave-safe pie plate, being careful not to stretch dough. Prick bottom and sides well with fork. If desired for more color, brush top edges with dark vanilla. Microwave (High) 3 to 5 minutes, rotating pie plate and watching carefully during last part of cooking. Pastry is done when top looks dry and blistered and feels firm. Makes 1 deep or regular 9-inch crust.

FROZEN CRUST: Thaw 1 to 3 minutes on Medium Low or according to package directions. If in foil pan, remove crust from pan while still frozen by bending pan edges and popping crust out into a microwave-safe pie plate. Continue as above.

Light 'N Fresh Strawberry Jam

2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
1 cup water
4½ cups sliced strawberries (about 2 pints)
½ -1 cup granulated sugar
¼ cup lemon juice

Sprinkle gelatin over water in a microwave-safe 2-quart measure of 3-quart casserole. Microwave (High) 1 minute; stir to dissolve. Add strawberries, sugar and lemon juice. Microwave (High) 1 to 2 minutes or until berries are tender. (Watch carefully and if necessary to prevent boiling over, switch to Medium power.) Pour into jars. Cool slightly. Cover tightly. Store in refrigerator. Keeps about 3 weeks. Makes about 4 cups jam.

(Each 1 tablespoon: 11-17 calories, 2-4 mg. carbohydrate)

Taking Credit For Being Summer Interns

BY LISA RISSER

LANCASTER — The Lancaster County extension office is getting a little extra help this summer from two interns, Emily Weaver and Sarah Mattocks. Emily, a junior at Penn State, is giving a helping hand to Chet Hughes, livestock extension agent, while Sarah, also a Penn Stater, is working with Zoann Parker, the county's 4-H director. Both interns are working for college credit rather than money.

Emily is a Lancaster County girl and is living with her parents, Carol and Roy Weaver of Ephrata. Those countians active in the area's livestock competitions will remember Emily from her days as a 4-H steer exhibitor. She belonged to the Red Rose and New Holland 4-H Baby Beef clubs, and as a 4-H'er became proficient in judging livestock.

Emily was named the the state's junior high individual for livestock judging in 1984 and three years later was the state's senior high individual. Also in 1987 she was a member of the winning state team. She was on the the team that took first place at last year's Keystone International Livestock Exhibition, and she won the South East Regional Livestock Judging contest during its first two years: 1986 and '87.

In addition, Emily has five head of Angus breeding stock.

Right now Emily is filling her days with organizing the South East Regional Livestock Judging contest, which is open to area 4-H'ers. As the chairman Emily is in charge of obtaining officials, creating classes and finding animals to put in the classes, getting volunteers to do tabulation and other contest work, compiling the paperwork, and ordering ribbons and trophies.

"It's a lot of hard work putting everything together," she commented. "I have to make sure everything runs right."

Emily also is or will be involved in Polled Hereford Field Day, chaperoning at 4-H State Days, the carcass-evaluation seminar for the beef club, and a pork producers survey. The survey, on biosecurity and health, will go randomly to 20 producers in the county. The results will go to Penn State where they will help the university officials determine what educational programs will help farmers.

Coaching 4-H'ers on livestock and meats judging is something else Emily is doing. She attends practices and goes with Hughes to farms and helps select the animals that will be judged.

"I like helping with judging teams, and I like to go out to the farm and pick out (animals for the) classes and watch the kids judge them," Emily said. "I like to get classes together that would require thinking. I don't want it to be obvious to the 4-H'ers," said Emily. "Chet and I discuss the animals and bounce ideas back and forth."

It was a bit of a challenge for Emily to work with the 4-H'ers involved in livestock judging because it was only last year that she was one of them. "I went in there and gave reasons for selecting an animal and showed them that I really knew what I was doing," she explained. "You have to get their respect so that they'll listen to you."

Emily admits that earning their respect was easier since she had improved vastly between the time she competed in State Days and national competitions. "I'm working with the junior 4-H'ers, and it's fun because they're just starting to learn their terms."

The 4-H'ers are learning key phrases such as movement, structure, correctness, and thickness of muscling. The last is a market term, which wouldn't be used when describing a breeding heifer, Emily pointed out. Breeding heifers, or any other female livestock animals, would be valued for their femininity, angularity, and broodiness.

In addition to helping Hughes, Emily is doing some clerical work for Mitch Woodward, manure management-Chesapeake Bay associate, as well as helping him with some plots he's working on. This is work for which she is compensated financially.

Emily is majoring in animal production and hopes to work with cattle upon graduation. But, she doesn't want to limit her options, "I'd hate to say I want this and have it not happen," she said. "When I graduate I can do just about anything. I can do rations at feed mills, extension work, embryo transfers, artificial insemination, or manage a cow/calf herd."

Sarah Mattocks

Food and kids go together naturally, but it's usually junk food that fills their stomachs when parents aren't watching. Sarah Mattocks is helping to change that with a six-week nutrition program for children.

Sponsored by 4-H, the program is for children between the ages of eight and 12 and teaches nutrition, energy-saving tips, safety, and comparative shopping. It also includes a food item such as pizza.

So far Sarah has met with a group in Franklin Terrace, a low-income housing development, and another one set for next week at Susquehanna Courts, also a low-income housing development. The Sunny Side Mennonite Church has okayed club usage of the church for another group to meet, and Sarah will have an hour's lesson at the Salvation Army Day Camp, and hopefully the Girls' Club will welcome the meetings.

"My first meeting was really good," remembered Sarah. "I enjoyed teaching the children. We made dips and dippers with cottage cheese, and at first they (the children) didn't want to try it. But they did and they liked it. It was encouraging to go over nutrients that they haven't learned before."

Sarah's first meeting went fairly smoothly, but she admitted "I have a hard time being loud enough to tell the kids to listen, but I'm going to have to learn."

Much of Sarah's time recently has been taken up with setting up the club meetings, and because she is working for credits, she'll spend about a week writing of her experiences after the clubs finish meeting.

Sarah plans to graduate this summer with a degree in nutrition. She started her college education at Eastern Mennonite with the intention of becoming a nurse. "But I didn't like nursing. I'd taken a course in nutrition that I really enjoyed," she explained. "It is fascinating the way the body uses food. They (researchers) don't know everything (about nutrition), but what they do know is interesting." So Sarah transferred to Penn State with a nutrition major.

Upon graduation Sarah will either try to become a registered dietician (RD) or start work immediately. "I'd like to become a registered dietician because more people will see you as qualified to give advice." But the program begins before she graduates. Another class begins in January, in which case she'd need to find work during those intervening months.

Should Sarah decide to become an RD, she would contact the American Dietetic Association, who would send her a list of hospitals or other medical institutions where she could apply for an internship of six to 24 months. After completing the internship she would be qualified to take a test.

Ultimately Sarah would like to get into community nutrition, which involves programs such as Women Infant Children or Expanded Food Nutrition Educational Programs. "I would be seeing that people in a community know the proper nutrition requirements and the proportions."

Sarah comes by her interest in nutrition in part from her mother Sandy, a school nurse, who stressed the importance of eating correctly to Sarah and her siblings: Elaine, 25; Linda, 23; Stephen, 19; and Sharon, 18.

During college Sarah has been involved in Campus Crusade for Christ and the Student Dietetic Association, and between school sessions she worked for Child Evangelism Fellowship, a non-profit organizaton that teaches Bible study to children.

Sarah was involved in 4-H up until her sophomore year in high school. She participated in sewing, cooking, crafts, flower arranging, and dairy cattle. Her father Duane owned a dairy farm in Bradford County as Sarah was growing up, but now owns a veal farm, which he rents out to a tenant farmer. Currently he works as an accountant for Farm Credit.

4-H HAPPENINGS

4-H Summer Camp

Hunterdon County 4-H Summer Camp registration is now open to 4-H members and non-members alike on a first-come-first-served basis. The fee for the July 25 to 30 resident camp is $88. Registration forms and information are available at the Hunterdon Cooperative Extension Center, 1341, 4 Gauntt Place, Flemington, 08822; 201/788-1340.

Rutgers Cooperative Extension operates two year-round 4-H camps. This summer Hunterdon County will be utilizing the L.G. Cook Camp in Stokes State Forest in the heart of Sussex County. The camp has its own beautiful spring-fed lake for swimming, boating, and fishing.

The summer camp program consists of swimming, boating, canoeing, crafts, fishing, outdoor education, games, and camp land sports. Evening programs include fun-all camp activities. Every day is begun with a flag-raising ceremony. Each evening an inspirational vesper program is conducted.

During the summer 4-H Camp season, a permanent staff is on hand and consists of a cook and helpers, water-safety instructors, nature instructors, craft shop managers, fishing instructors, health director, camp ranger, and camp director.

Hunterdon County Sheep

The May meeting of the Hunterdon County 4-H Sheep Club was held at the home of Kelli and Rebecca Rathyen, Hampton.

Members reviewed the club's participation in 4-H Day at the local mall. Heidi Rodenberger and Amy Hunter co-chaired this event. Gerhardt Rodenberger will be chairing the club's window display, which will be put up in the Republican Headquarters window on Main Street, Flemington.

Amy and Heather Hunter presented a demonstration on line breeding; the history of wool was the title of a demonstration.

Susan Kuehn of Flemington and Gerhardt Rodenberger of Pittstown are in charge of the club's refreshment booth at this event. Susan Kuehn will be going to Citizenship Washington Focus as a delegate from Hunterdon County the week of July 3 to 9. Amy Erolino, Stephanie Horvath, Susan Kuehn, and Lisa Zachman will coordinate fitting meetings for younger members starting the end of June. Several members brought in samples of their pasture and grasses. A discussion on good management practices including fertilizing and rotation of animals on pasture all help in having a good pasture.

York County Strawberry

Two brothers from Jefferson 4-H Club took top honors at the York County 4-H Strawberry Roundup. Steve Wherley, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wherley, took grand champion honors for his strawberry entry. His brother Chris won reserve grand champion honors.

Other blue ribbon winners included Bradley Trowbridge, Stoverstown 4-H, Mark Herbst, Glen Rock 4-H, and Tim and Lucas Rineholt, Stewartstown 4-H.

Do Teenagers Have Values

BY JAMES E. VAN HORN

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — "This crazy, mixed-up world has done a flip-flop," a venerable curbstone philosopher recently told me. There are times when most of us might agree with him on that point. He continues on, "The problem with the kids today is that all they want to do is make money — they don't care about working — just making money!"

I can't agree with our philosopher on that second point about kids (his word for teenagers) just wanting to make money. If he had said that about the adult population, it would probably be true, in general. But it's not true, about many, many young people.

The brief conversation prompted me to recall some research that studied youth values and goals. The study was one in New York City and, surprisingly, it was carried out by young people themselves. That is not to say they did not have some expert help, but the fact is that the teens did most of the work. They developed a questionnaire, located other teens and gathered the data. The teens who responded to the questionnaire numbered about 1,000 and included young people from different races and ethnic groups.

What the teens found out about values and goals only vaguely resembles the image many adults have of teenagers. The girls in the study indicated that the most important goal they had was "getting a job I enjoy," followed by "preparing for my future," "making it on my own," "getting good grades," "getting along with my family," and "making money."

The boys indicated that the most important goal they had was "getting a job I enjoy," followed by "preparing for my future," "making it on my own," "getting good grades," "making money," and "getting along with my family."

The profile of teenagers, their goals and interests, as presented in this study is somewhat different from what many adults believe about teenagers. Teenagers' goals are future-oriented; young people are serious and responsible.

Some of us might well have to question our beliefs about young people. We might have to talk with some young people to find out what their truly important goals or values or interests are. It is interesting that these young people who have grown up in a very affluent country put "making money" way down on the list, while they put working first. But note that they said "working at a job I enjoy."

SLICK CONCRETE CAN BE ROUGHENED

SCABBLING is an effective way to avoid unnecessary losses of cattle. The SCABBLER makes bands about two inches wide approximately 1/8" to 3/16 in. depth. This gives sufficient area for good footing while allowing you to scrape the smooth surface as before. It is near enough to the surface to give your cows full advantage of the roughness and deep enough to remain effective for years. It greatly aids in heat detection.

And the good news is that it is reasonably priced. You have the choice of doing it yourself or having us do it for you. We offer service right to your door. Call us for more details.

ALUMINUM GOOSENECK TRAILERS

20' Gooseneck Trailer

A versatile, lightweight, Eby aluminum stock trailer is built to provide years of maintenance free service. An Eby trailer is custom built to fit your individual hauling needs - No mass production! We use only quality components and strong alloy aluminum to manufacture what may be the last trailer you'll ever buy.

- LIGHTWEIGHT - Eby stock trailers are 25-35% lighter than comparable steel trailers. Less weight means better fuel mileage or increased payload.
- MAINTENANCE- Eby aluminum trailers won't rust. Welding and painting can cost you dollars in down time and repairs.
- DURABILITY - Eby trailers are built tough. Quality components and 6061 alloy aluminum provide the ruggedness required in a livestock trailer.

Lower Dauphin

The 28th Annual Parent-Member Banquet of the Lower Dauphin Chapter of the Future Farmers of America was held recently at the Senior High School cafeteria with more than 100 members and guests present.

The evening's highlight was the presentation of the Honorary Chapter Farmer Degree to four chapter supporters: Ron Michaels, a high school teacher; William Jackson, editor and publisher of the "Hummelstown Sun"; Terri Houck, district public relations specialist; and Lee Savidge, former vo-ag teacher and FFA advisor.

Tammy Baker, a former DeKalb award winner, presented this year's DeKalb Agricultural Achievement Award to Dawn Herr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Herr of Hershey. Dawn also was named the recipient of the Outstanding Citizenship award, presented to the senior student who best demonstrates the characteristics of good citizenship.

Dale Morgan received the Star Chapter Agribusinessman award. The Star Greenhand award was presented to Lee Blough and Ross Leach.

Proficiency awards were presented to: Dawn Herr, floriculture and public speaking; Steve Kiner, outdoor recreation; Dave Coble, swine production; Tammy Baker, winner of the state proficiency award in ag processing; and Sharon Huntzberger, winner of the state proficiency award in swine production.

The state Keystone Degree pin was presented to Dawn Herr.

Lower Dauphin FFA Chapter President Dawn Herr received the DeKalb Award and the Outstanding Citizenship Award.

Tri County FFA

The Tri County FFA held a contest for Star Agribusinessman and Star County Farmer. The winner of the Star Agribusinessman was Don Irvin of the Bellefonte Chapter. Todd Woomer, also of the Bellefonte Chapter, is a co-holder of the Star County Farmer along with Tim Clouser of the Penn's Valley Chapter. These three competed along with several other people from various chapters including Penn's Valley and State College.

Don Irvin won the Star Agribusinessman for his outstanding records on his beef production and numerous hours of ag-business related jobs. He held the vice president's office during the '86-'87 school year and the office of president the following year. He was chairman of several of the committees of the FFA.

Todd Woomer received the Star County Farmer for such projects as dairy heifers, alfalfa hay, five acres of field corn, and a vegetable garden. Todd was the treasurer for the Bellefonte Chapter from 1986 to 1988.

Tim Clouser is a Star County Farmer for such projects as a dairy calf, corn silage, forage alfalfa, and small grains. Tim held the office of treasurer in '86-'87, he is now holding the office of president.

Watch For Insect Activity In Whorl-Stage Field Corn

NEWARK, DE — As field corn reaches the whorl stage, farmers will be able to find European corn borer, Southern corn stalk borer, true armyworm and corn earworm larvae feeding on the inner leaves of the plants.

"Because each pest causes a particular type and amount of damage, it's important to identify the insect before making a control decision," says Joanne Whalen, University of Delaware Extension pest management specialist.

The University of Delaware's 1987 European corn borer fall abundance survey indicates that the overwintering population is higher in New Castle and Kent counties when compared to last season, but slightly lower in Sussex County. The higher populations could translate into higher first brood populations in the earliest planted corn.

Whalen says moth activity increased during the last week of May, so growers should start looking for corn borer damage when corn reaches 10 to 12 inches in height. Peak moth activity should occur the first week of June and peak larval activity during the second to third weeks in June. Since first generation corn borers can cause yield losses of three percent per borer per plant, early detection of small larvae is needed to keep populations below the economic treatment level, the Extension specialist says.

When checking for corn borer whorl feeding, Whalen says to look for the characteristic "window box" or "shot-hole" injury on the inner leaves of the plants. "If you find damage only on fully opened leaves, live larvae may no longer be present. Base treatment decisions on a random sample of 20 consecutive plants in five locations throughout a field," she says.

If 50 percent of the plants are infested with live larvae, an insecticide is recommended. The most effective control at present is a granular insecticide applied at the pretassel stage of plant development. No treatments will be effective once larvae begin to bore into the stalks.

During the past two years, Southern corn stalk borer and corn earworm larvae have been found feeding in the whorls along with the corn borer. Since treatment for the former two insects is rarely needed, the following larval descriptions can help identify these three whorl feeders:

* European corn borer larvae have a black head capsule with a white to tan body.

* Southern corn stalk borer larvae also have a black head capsule, but the body is yellow with rows of black spots.

* Corn earworm larvae have an amber head capsule, and the body color varies from light green to pink to yellow or dark brown.

"If entire leaves are destroyed or if large ragged holes appear on the leaf margins, you should easily find true armyworm larvae feeding in the whorls," says Whalen. "This insect can infest small plants but regrowth usually occurs unless the growing point is killed."

Expect to find armyworm outbreaks in field corn if fields had heavy pre-plant weed growth, if no-till corn is planted into a burned down small grain cover crop, or if corn is planted near a wheat field infested with armyworms.

Whalen says to start checking for armyworm activity during the early whorl stage and continue until late whorl stage. Treat if 25 percent of the plants are damaged and larvae are less than 1¼ inches long. Larger larvae have almost finished feeding, so there's no need to treat for them.

Delaware residents who want further information on in-season pest activity should call the Delaware Cooperative Extension System's Crop Pest Hotline at 1-800-345-7544. Out-of-state residents can call 1-302-451-8851.

Penn State Field Day To Feature Discussions On Fungicides

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — To determine when to apply fungicide, farmers must keep several factors in mind. These include yield potential of the crop, growth stage of the crop when disease is observed, predicted disease severity and predicted weather. Using fungicides for foliar disease control in winter wheat will be one topic of discussion at Penn State's Agronomy Field Day, June 22 at the Rock Springs Agricultural Research Center.

The field day, which will include exhibits and tours, will begin at 9:30 a.m. and continue until 4 p.m.

While fungicides don't increase yield, they do protect the potential yield of the crop. This implies, Penn State researchers say, that a crop must have a high yield potential to economically justify applying fungicide. At the field day, researchers will be available to discuss the particulars of when fungicides should be applied.

Another topic of discussion at Agronomy Field Day will be how seeding rate and row spacing affect performance of wheat. "Seeding rate and distribution of plants have considerable influence on wheat yield," says Penn State agronomist Marvin Risius. "Plant and seed characteristics differ among varieties, and each variety may not respond in the same way to changes in management factors. For optimum yields, we need to broaden our management experience to include several wheat varieties."

Researchers have conducted management experiments with different varieties of wheat, planting at different row spacings in two Pensylvania locations--one in Centre County and one in Lancaster County. The researchers will be on hand at Agronomy Field Day to discuss the results of these experiments.

The Rock Springs Agricultural Research Center is located on Route 45, nine miles southwest of State College. Lunch will be available at the field day. For more information contact Penn State agronomist Lynn Hoffman at (814) 692-7955.

USDA Announces 1989 Wheat Program

WASHINGTON, DC — Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Peter C. Myers recently announced a required 10 percent acreage reduction and other provisions of the 1989 wheat program.

Other provisions of the 1989 wheat program include:

— A price support loan and purchase rate of $2.06 per bushel, a 20 percent reduction from the basic loan and purchase rate of $2.57. Myers said the downward adjustment was determined necessary to maintain U.S. wheat competitiveness in domestic and international markets.

This is the statutory minimum and seven percent below the 1988 loan and purchase rate of $2.21 per bushel.

— The established target price is $4.10 per bushel, the statutory minimum, and down three percent from the 1988 target price.

— A paid land diversion will not be implemented.

— No marketing loan or related program provisions will be implemented.

— Producers will be required to maintain in acreage conservation reserve an area equal to 11.11 percent of program payment acreage.

The secretary of agriculture reserves the right to initiate later cost reduction options as outlined in Section 1009 of the Food Security Act of 1985. These options may include reopening or changing a program contract entered into by producers if they voluntarily agree to the change.

Other provisions common to program crops will be announced at a later date.

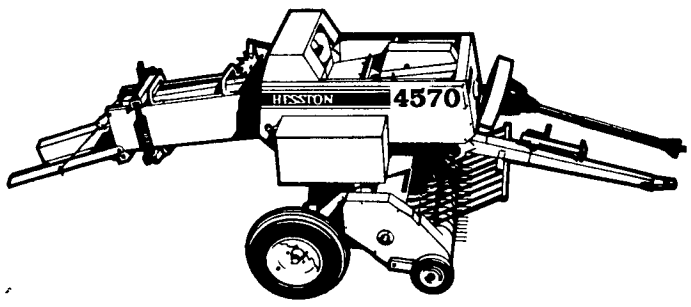
Introducing An ALL NEW Low-Cost Centerline Baler



• Hesston Model 4570 - 14"x18" Square Baler

The economical Model 4570 is Hesston's newest entry in the square bale market. Thanks to the exclusive "Centerline Design," this new baler builds the straightest, squarest bales possible. And since it employs Hesston's preformed flake concept, leaves are saved and uniformly distributed throughout the bale.

The low profile pickup sweeps windrows clean with less disturbance of the crop and the low profile of the 4570 gives the operator excellent visibility.

The optional hydraulic powered bale thrower saves time and labor. You control direction and distance from the tractor seat so your wagon can be filled side-to-side and front-to-rear. Bales can also be dropped without detaching thrower.

The model 4570 is brought to you by Hesston. See it at your dealer now!

WHY NOT OWN A TWO SEASON MACHINE...
Make It A Summertime Mowing Machine & In The Fall Use It To Get Rid Of Crop Residue In A Hurry!

Use a Case International shredder to fine-shread heavy, tough cotton, corn or sorghum stalks to speed decomposition, ease your tillage, planting and cultivating work. They're also useful for clipping pastures, shredding weeds, tall grass, or brush. And they actually require less power to operate because knives are spiral-mounted around the rotor
- 2 sizes, 150" and 170" wide.
- Shatter-shear type knives can be reversed to match the job; blunt edge shatters stalks completely.
- Wheels easily adjust up or down for cutting height, in and out to match row spacings; endwise transport for 170" model
- Safety features: full shielded drives, gear case, extended end sheets; front-mounted curtain.

A GREAT CONCEPT JUST GOT BETTER!

MODEL 700 MULTI-PURPOSE DUMP WAGON

Many area farmers are quickly realizing the potential danger and liability of transporting forage with conventional tractor-drawn wagons. Consider the RICHARDTON Dump Wagon/farm truck approach.
* Increased speed from field to barn
* Brakes, turning signals, lights provide increased traffic safety
* Equipment cost/amt. of forage handled is less than conventional systems

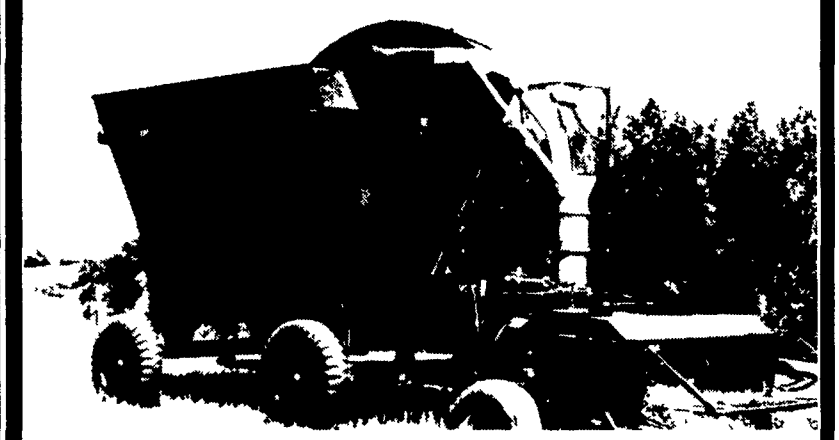
MULTI-PURPOSE DUMP WAGON

BIG, STRONG, ECONOMICAL - The Big Orange One

• Works For You • All Year Long • Wet Field Conditions • Variety of Crops



The Most Versatile High Dump Wagon

Thousands of farmers can't be wrong Many farmers still operate the Richardton High Dump Wagon they bought nearly 15 years ago They say they'll buy a new one if the old one wears out Other farmers own two or three Richardton Wagons and use them crop after crop, season after season Ask the man who owns one

You May Think They Are Higher Priced Than Forage Boxes — But You May Be Surprised!

GRIMM BRINGS TOTAL LEAF CONSERVATION TO YOUR HAYMAKING OPERATION

Grimm is the pioneer and leading American-made Leaf Saver Tedder and the only American-made Rotary Head Tedder and Tedder/Rake. This is a big advantage if repair parts are needed. Grimm dealers carry most parts or can get them *overnight from our Vermont factory.

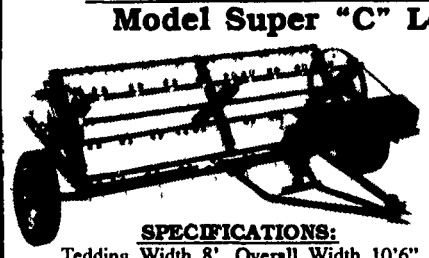
SAVE VALUABLE PROTEIN-RICH LEAVES

Model Super "C" Leaf Saver Tedder



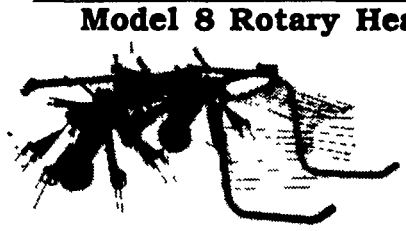
SPECIFICATIONS:
Tedding Width 8', Overall Width 10'6"
Net Weight - 680 lbs. 540 P.T.O.

This 8 ft. wide, PTO-driven model picks up all the hay to a three or four foot height and deposits it in a loose, fluffy condition of faster aeration and great penetration of the sun's warming and drying rays. The design and operation of the Model "C" has the unique advantage vs rotary-type tedders of not beating the leaves off alfalfa and clover.

PTO-driven jack shaft, drives the reel thru a V-belt which absorbs shocks and prevents damage to machine should tines strike an obstruction. Super "C" can be hitched to any tractor having a 540 rpm PTO and 1 3/8" six-spline shaft. Four horizontal bars each with 16 or 18 tines (alternately) are angled to pick up and release hay thru means of planetary gears revolving around a center "sun" gear. These machines are built to last.

2 MACHINES IN ONE: TEDDER AND RAKE

Model 8 Rotary Head Tedder/Rake



SPECIFICATIONS:
Tedding Width 94" Weight - 545 lbs.
2 - 13" O.D. Rubber Tires with Tubes 540 P.T.O.

This one machine does two jobs-teds hay with basket lifted, or rakes into fluffy windrow with basket lowered. Two rotary heads each with 6 arms equipped with two spring tines, turn in opposite directions to sweep hay sideways then thru center and spread out behind in a wide loose swath or in a fluffy windrow. PTO shaft drives both rotors thru heavy-duty V-belts (which carry a three year warranty). There are no gears, gear boxes or chains to break or wear out. Belts absorb any shock to protect mechanism should tines hit a stone or foreign object. Swivel wheels directly below each rotary head provide positive clearance. Adjusting angle of tines is quick and easy by use of a hand crank. All bearings are precision ball or roller-type with grease fittings to provide a long trouble free service life.

Repairs and wear are negligible. In fact, many of the original models are still giving good service to their owners.

FEWER MOVING PARTS...

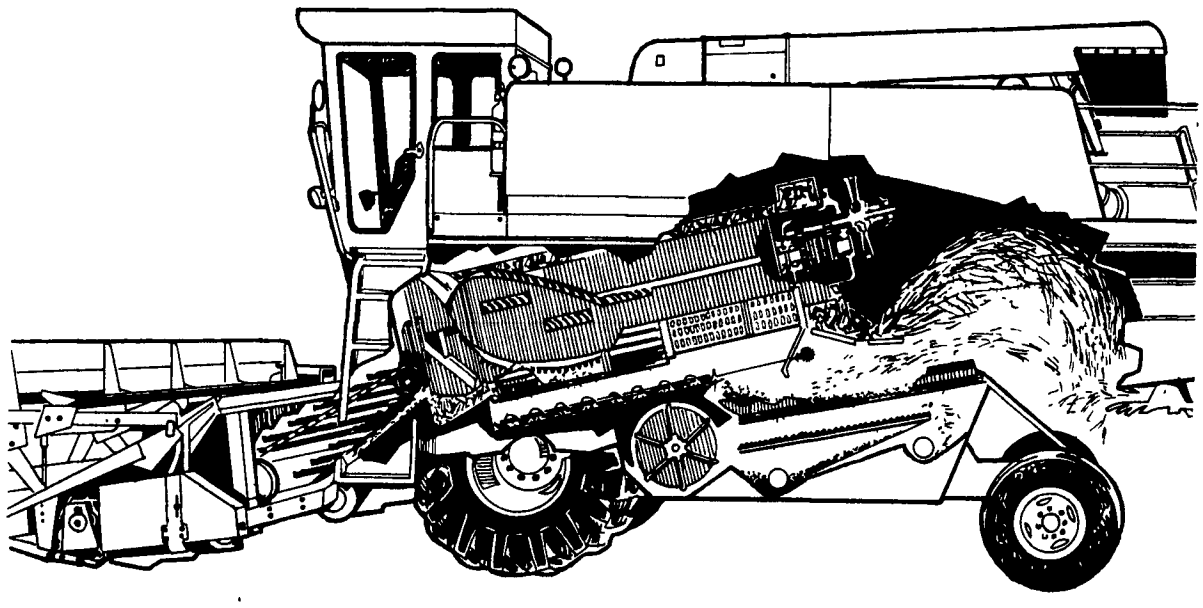
case IH ALL CROP VERSATILITY...



The one moving part in Axial-Flow's entire threshing/separating process is the single large-diameter rotor. Nothing more. No cylinder, beaters or straw walkers. There's far less that can break or need maintenance. That's Axial-Flow combine simplicity.

Axial-Flow helps bring top price at the elevator. It handles grain more gently. Less crackage and dockage. You'll combine higher moisture grain at faster ground speeds for a quicker harvest. That's Axial-Flow performance.

Axial-Flow Combines for every crop. Designed to harvest over 100 different crops including corn, soybeans, wheat, sorghum and others. All popular grain header sizes plus 4 to 8-row corn heads.

HOOBER COMBINE SERVICE...

HOOBER COMBINE SERVICE SPECIALISTS KNOW COMBINES.

For ten years Hoober's 5 combine mechanics have been working with Axial-Flow technologies. A COMBINE BOUGHT FROM HOOBER IS BACKED BY PEOPLE WHO KNOW AND CARE.

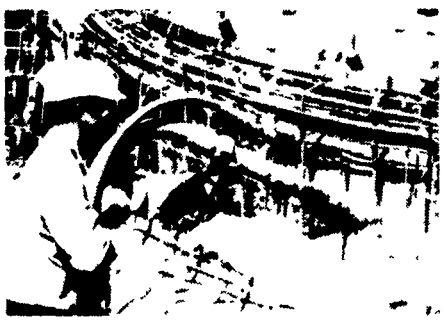
S & S SILO SERVICE

ATTENTION FARMERS

Strengthen And Reseal Your Silo With Shotcrete

S & S Silo Service Has Experience
Over 160 Silos Have Been Relined With Shotcrete



S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

- The Silawrap film is stretched around the bale overlapping 2-3-4 or 5 times according to the setting of the gears

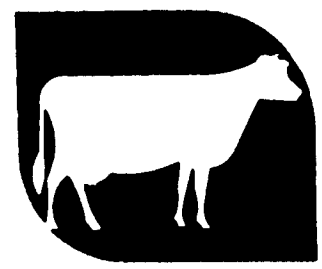
PRO-4
SANITIZING TEAT DIP



Don't kid yourself . . . killing GERMS is only part of the mastitis prevention program!! The answer is PRO-4 Teat Dip.

Passes Protocols "A", "B", & "C" Of The National Mastitis Council

Pro-4 formulation recognizes that killing germs is only half the battle in mastitis control. Maintaining good healthy teat tissue is the other half of the battle that must be won to reduce mastitis. The multiple conditioning action on the teat skin of Pro-4 is superior to any teat dip on the market today. Pro-4 Teat Dip has a record of 15 years of safe and effective use.

FORAGE PROGRAM	GRAIN PROGRAM
Hay	Master Mix Protek and Rolled Grain
Corn Silage	Topdress Master Mix Protek 1890's

"We started farming on our own in January of 1983. We were feeding a traditional 40% concentrate and rolled grain mix and our R.H.A. was 16,200 lbs. milk and just over 600 lbs. fat. In November of 1984 we went on the Master Mix Protek concentrate program. This program, along with better breeding and A.I. management, boosted the herd average 2400 lbs. of milk in the first year. So, by November, our R.H.A. was 18,600 lbs. milk and 671 lbs. fat."

"Then, a year and a half ago, we started topdressing the Master Mix Protek 1890's. The 1890's really help a cow milk to her genetic potential. The cows don't necessarily peak higher, but with the 1890's they hold their peaks a lot longer. They also keep their condition. The cows love the 1890's. In fact, they'll go for the 1890's before the rolled shelled corn."

We now have a R.H.A. of 20,252 lbs. milk and 715 lbs. fat. Nine cows out of 41 were milking over 100 lbs. in April. We are pleased with breeding and our 13.0 calving interval which isn't too bad considering the way they're milking. A good feeding program and good A.I. and breeding management has gotten us to the point where we are working with better cows, because we can now cull what we want to!"

JOHN BEYER - Old Phila Pike, Kinzers, PA

"We were on a high fat concentrate and ear corn mix and also feeding a high fat topdress. In December of 1987 we went to a Master Mix Protek and Ear Corn mix and started topdressing Master Mix Protek 1890's. This program, along with starting multiple grain feedings, has really shown the results. The cow's really go for the 1890 topdress pellets. In fact, they wait for them. The cows don't really peak higher, but I can't believe the way they hold their production. This past winter the cows were averaging 52 lbs. of milk with a 3.6% test. Now they are averaging 62.8 lbs. milk with 3.8% test."

"We have also seen an improvement in udder health because we're feeding less pounds of grain than on our other program. Along with all of this, the cost per ton of complete feed is lower than before so we have really seen an overall decrease in feed cost."

J. STOLTZFUS - Lititz, PA

Corn Silage	Topdress Master Mix Protek 1890's

We started on the Master Mix Protek program when it was first introduced. From January of 1987 to January of 1988, our RHA has gone from 17,087 lbs. milk and 600 lbs. fat to 20,239 lbs. milk and 719 lbs. fat. The cows are really peaking and holding, and the first calf heifers are doing very well. Body condition is also good. Switching to the Master Mix Protek program and making some management changes such as multiple grain feedings has really shown the results, especially in the areas of appetite and herd health. With the increase in milk I am happy at how good breeding is going.

"We were on a ½ shelled corn and ½ ear corn mix along with a high fat concentrate. We were also topdressing a high fat topdress. In October of 1987, when we started on the full Master Mix Protek program, we were shipping 55 lbs. milk per cow per day. Today we are shipping 63 lbs. milk per cow per day and our butterfat test jumped 4 points. I am now feeding less pounds of feed with Master Mix Protek but getting better overall results than when I was on my previous program. Feed cost is now considerably lower."

"I saw a big improvement in breeding, Even though the cows are holding peaks and milking better, breeding is going very good. We were having a lot of repeats, but that has been corrected on our Master Mix Protek program. The appetites are also excellent. Cows really go for the high energy 1890's."

"We were on a 36% concentrate and corn mix before going to Master Mix Protek in 1984. Since the switch, our RHA has increased over 2000 lbs. in milk and fat has gone up right along with it. We have been over 60 lbs. of milk per cow per day with a 3.7% test for the last 5 months. In my May test, we were over 70 lbs. per head per day. The cows really hold their peaks."

"Breeding is going pretty good. We were having a lot of repeats on the old program. Now when cows freshen they clean and are ready to milk and re-breed."

"The cows appetites are really good, especially with the high energy 1890's. The 1890's also help to keep high producing cows in good condition."

Update on Proposed Pennsylvania Sheep Referendum

Clair Engle
Sheep Specialist
Penn State University

Revisions to the proposed sheep and lamb marketing program, in accordance with the provisions of the Agriculture Commodities Marketing Act of 1968 have been submitted to the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Chief Counsel for final review.

The proposed program administered under the auspices of the Secretary of Agriculture will be controlled by a 10 member board of sheep producers appointed by the Secretary. The suggested check-off fee has been set at twenty-five cents ($.25) per head on all sheep and lambs produced and sold in Pennsylvania.

In a recent meeting with the PSWGA lamb marketing committee, Ronald Gaskill, Director, Bureau of Market Development informed the members that time was only needed now to 1) draw up a final draft of the marketing program and 2) meet the legal guidelines for publicly informing all Pennsylvania sheep producers about the program. All Pennsylvania sheep producers who have received past incentive payments on their wool sales from their county ASCS offices should receive a final draft of the marketing program for study prior to the scheduled public hearing.

A tentative public hearing date has been set for Tuesday, 10:00 am - 12:00 pm, August 23, Conference Room, third floor of Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture Building, 2301 N. Cameron St., Harrisburg, PA. All interested Pennsylvania sheep producers are urged to attend this important meeting.

Future dates for voting and enacting the program will be announced after the public hearing on August 23.

Indemnity Program for Coyote Kill

Yes, it is a Pennsylvania law. House bill 1574 passed during mid-May. Briefly, monies have been allocated for all confirmed sheep kills by coyotes.

The Department of Dog Law Enforcement, Mr. Bill Kennedy, Director will be responsible for settling all confirmed coyote kills. We have been informed that all county dog control officers will be receiving in-service training on determining coyote kills and also be updates on collecting needed information on all incidents of predator damage.

Based on the history of the coyote in other northeast and southeastern states, it goes without saying the coyote population is on the increase and here to stay. Therefore, it is important for sheep producers to begin planning strategies for minimizing losses from coyote predation.

Coyote control is going to require more than the removal of problem coyotes once damage has occurred. Listed below are some management practices being used to deter losses from both coyotes and dogs.

1) Corral sheep at night.

2) Five to eight wire perimeter fence, at least 3 wires electrified.

3) Use of "guard" animals, guard dog, donkey, cows with calves.

4) Strategic grazing (day time only) and added surveillance of pastures more prone to predator attacks.

5) Proper disposal of all dead livestock. Dead animals attract coyotes and dogs.

To assist in planning and implementing an effective coyote control problem all sheep producers are urged to report all suspicious livestock kills to the proper authorities. A producer education program on animal damage control is being planned in conjunction with the 1988 Shepherd's Symposium tentatively scheduled for November 18 and 19 at Penn State.

187 Head Vie For Top Honors At 1988 Atlantic National ROV Angus Show

TIMONIUM, MD. — Another strong set of Angus breeding cattle, 187-head total, were led out on the tanbark by exhibitors to vie for top honors at the 1988 Atlantic National Roll of Victory (ROV) Angus Show. Breeders from across the United States were in attendance for this second annual event which was held at the state fairgrounds here.

The official judge for the two-day show was Gary Dameron, Lexington, Illinois. He had the honors of judging the Atlantic National which proved to be a contested event for the bulls and heifers competing.

A supreme champion of the show was selected the last day of the event. Taking home the top award for his owners Circle G Angus Farm, Hampton, Georgia, and R&J Ranch, Briggs, Texas, was R&J Taurus 1186. This March 1986, R&J Rolex 2023 son also stood as the grand champion bull as well as the junior champ. He tipped the scales at 2,475 pounds.

Grand champion laurels in the heifer show went to Shady Brook Vanna, the spring heifer calf winner. She is owned by Shady Brook Angus Farm, Leoma, Tennessee, and is a January 1987 daughter of Premier Valedictorian.

Stepping into the reserve grand champion bull spot was Piper Wyandot P600. This 2,465 pound January 1986, Cobble Pond New Yorker son is owned by Piper Angus, Kansas City, Kansas, and Goshen Farm, Paris, Kentucky. Judge Dameron earlier awarded

The pair is owned by Northcote Farm, Forest, Virginia; Stan Coley, Statham, Georgia; and D&B Angus, Lancaster, South Carolina. Northcote Piney was also named the junior champion female of the show.

A STRAIGHT LINE IS STILL SHORTEST

That's why all five 8500 Series Case IH Rectangular Balers give you center line design. Your hay moves in a straight line from the time it's picked up until it leaves the baler as a tight, uniform bale.

Center line means there are no corners to turn to get crop into the bale chamber as with conventional balers. Nutritious leaves go into the bale, not on the ground. And with the baler directly behind the tractor, it's easy to transport through narrow bridges and gates.

Case IH Rectangular Balers also give you:

- Wide, low-profile pickups collect full, heavy windrows with leaf-saving gentleness because the crop is not lifted as high to get it into the baler. You can even lift the pickup from the tractor seat as an option.
- Prepacker chamber compresses hay into uniform flakes & also locks in leaves
- Flake size, density and bale size are more uniform
- High-speed, short-stroke plunger to pack bales tigher with less side load on plunger arm
- Pickup gauge wheels on both sides for better ground hugging performance
- Equal baler weight on both sides for better stability & less soil compaction

American Hereford Association Sets Regional Junior Shows

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — As summer is nearing, the American Hereford Association has announced plans for eight junior regional shows in June, July and August. Young Hereford enthusiasts from all corners of the United States will take their finest to the showring in contention for approximately $40,000 in premiums.

With enthusiasm for the Hereford breed high among the cattle industry, junior breeders are expected to present a strong showing this summer with an estimated 750 entries. Since the regional program's conception in 1973, 8,413-head have been paid premiums.

All American Junior Hereford Association members seven years of age and older having heifers calved from January 1, 1987 and later are qualified for regional show competition. Each entry must be recorded in the junior member's name no later than 45 days prior to the show. No individuals with pending registrations will be awarded placing or premium money.

Each heifer shown qualifies for participation in the AHA Junior A.I. Program where complimentary breeding certificates and semen are available to the junior owner on proven Hereford bulls.

Standard heifer classes will include: junior calves, calved on or after January 1, 1988; winter calves, calved October 1, 1987 to December 31, 1987; senior calves, calved August 1, 1987 to September 30, 1987; summer yearlings, calved May 1, 1987 to July 31, 1987; spring yearlings, calved March 1, 1987 to April 30, 1987; junior yearlings, calved January 1, 1987 to February 28, 1987. The show officials may divide a class if sufficient number of entries warrant doing so. In addition, bred-and-owned females from the previous classes will be judged and awarded 10 to 20-percent of each show's total premiums.

- KJHA-XTRA Regional, Dickinson County Fairgrounds, Abilene, Ks., June 4
- Pacesetter Regional, Boone County Fairgrounds, Lebanon, In., June 12
- Northwest Regional, Washington State University Beef Center, Pullman, Wa., June 17
- Lone Star State Hereford Classic, Davis Hereford Ranch, Wheeler, Tx., June 24

Entry information and complete details are available upon request from the American Hereford Association's Youth Department at P.O. Box 104059, Kansas City, Missouri, 64101 or telephone 816/842-3757.

NuPulse Salutes June Dairy Month

MADISON, WI — NuPulse salutes the dairy farmers of America and their dreams. Our birth was conceived through hard work, determination and the belief that dreams can come true.

The NuPulse Milker Unit was the dream of a New Zealand dairy farmer. Sid Bodmin believed that there had to be a better way to milk cows than with the conventional milking system which uses the same pulsation for every cow with a separate milking claw. He knew that each cow was different from the other in their milking characteristics and milk flow. He felt that a milker unit should adapt to those individual needs. After considerable research and development, Sid created the first version of the NuPulse milking machine. Sid's dream at last became a reality.

The NuPulse Milker Unit has been sold throughout the world since 1975, and in October 1985, Alfa Laval (NZ) purchased the patents and manufacturing facilities of NuPulse. At that time the distribution and marketing rights for North America were sold to Ken and Anne Sissom who also had their dream fulfilled of having products sold to Americans by Americans.

NuPulse has evolved from a milking machine into a full line of complementary equipment -- from cleaners and sanitizers to complete computerized feeding and milk metering systems enabling us to meet the needs of every dairy farmer.

The NuPulse family of dealers has consistently grown and strengthened their position in the market place. The "Top Dealer" in North America award for 1987 went to Brent Kuenzler of Norwood, New York. Runners up for this award were Fisher & Thompson of Leola, PA and Gerald Foss & Sons of Wales, ME. These dealers have set an example of excellence in both sales and service in their community.

NuPulse looks forward to an exciting future and helping dairy farmers fulfill their dreams.

AgPro Improves Manure Flush Floor Cleanup System

PARIS, TX. — Agpro Inc. announces an improved version of their proven manure flush floor cleanup system. The new system bears the name "Superflush" and incorporates many new features:

* Flush mounting, high-volume control valves. These units mount flush with the adjacent floors. Cattle and vehicles can pass over them without interference.

* Higher discharge rates. The new Agpro Superflush Valves are capable of discharging water in the 5000 to 6000 GPM range. High flow rates conserve water. Typical valve open time runs from 20 to 30 seconds in the new Superflush system.

* Design flexibility to fit into new or remodeled construction. The new system provides efficient cleaning with floor slopes from 1 to 4, alley widths of 8 to 16 feet, and alley lengths from 100 to 1,000 feet.

Agpro also supplies recycle pumps, manure solids separators, flow rate controllers, and other components necessary for complete animal waste cleanup and control systems. Properly designed waste management systems of this type are compatible with current EPA and state pollution control regulations. These systems provide the cleanest, most sanitary conditions for the animals, with virtually no labor. If you would like to discuss your particular problems with a sales design technician, call one of the toll free numbers listed below. Inside Texas 800/442-1394. Outside Texas 800/527-1030.

Tensar Offers Heat-Stress Protection For Poultry

MORROW, GA — The Tensar Corporation, a leading manufacturer in high-strength polymer technology, announces new and efficient solutions for problems in poultry and livestock confinement with the introduction of Polygrid™ BB - Bird Barrier and Polygrid™ WB for sunshade.

In one year alone, the state of Georgia lost an estimated $11.9 million in poultry production due to cool temperatures followed by extremely hot conditions. As temperatures climb to 90 degrees, heat-stressed broilers lose their appetites, layers produce fewer eggs with lower shell strength and fertility drops off in breeders.

Polygrid™ WB helps eliminate heat stress and keeps productivity and fertility high by effectively reducing temperatures by up to 15 degrees. It's equally effective for wind control, cutting wind velocities by up to 50 percent.

Polygrid™ BB is an effective bird barrier by keeping out disease-carrying sparrows and starlings that threaten poultry. It's stronger than most plastic netting, more durable than wire, won't tear curtain fabrics and is a better value than PVC-coated wire.

The black, co-polymer grid is a durable and light-weight alternative that won't rust, rot or corrode like conventional materials. This feature of Tensar Polygrid allows for long-lasting stability and proper air flow through poultry confinement areas, which is crucial to adequate ventilation.

According to Dr. Ken Washburn, a poultry specialist at the University of Georgia in Athens, "Rust on wire mesh seems to have an attraction to dust," he says. One of the biggest problems in ventilating poultry houses is the accumulation of dust and subsequent blockage of screens."

The Tensar Corporation manufactures a variety of Polygrid products for fencing, windbreak, barrier, construction, and industrial and civil engineering applications. Tensar Polygrid is made in the U.S. with distribution throughout North America. For more information, contact Customer Service, The Tensar Corporation, 1210 Citizens Parkway, Morrow, GA 30260; or call 800/845-4453.

White Introduces Heavy-Duty Row Crop Tractors

COLDWATER, OHIO — Featuring a 185 horsepower engine, the White 185 tractor was recently introduced by White-New Idea Farm Equipment. This new entry in the line of heavy-duty tractors features a six-cylinder, 504.5 C.I.D. Cummins "C" diesel engine and delivers 31 percent torque rise for a constant power under a heavy load. Turbocharging and aftercooling were major factors in achieving outstanding fuel efficiency without giving up lugging power.

An exclusive 3x6 transmission, with three powershift speeds in each of the six ranges, provides 18 forward and six reverse speeds. This broad choice of travel speeds enables the operator to match power to the job for optimum efficiency. The powershift transmission coupled to the 31 percent torque rise of the engine provides a speed range of 40 percent in each gear of the constant mesh transmission without loss of power over the entire speed range. Power hydraulic differential lock, inboard planetary final drives, and heavy 3 ¼ -inch axle shafts are also standard. A 1,000 rpm independent PTO is hydraulically actuated through a reliable wet, multi-disc clutch.

A charged, closed center hydraulic system provides 2,250 psi of constant pressure to operate the category III-II three point hitch and new combination float/detent remote valves.

A PosiTrac full-power front axle provides the shortest turning radius in the 170-195 horsepower tractor range while also boasting over 2 feet of crop clearance at the axle housing. The standard limited slip feature provides up to nine percent increase in tractive power over the other four-wheel drive systems. The exclusive cast iron front mainframe not only gives the PosiTrac axle support, but provides the weight to properly harness the power of the front axle.

The modular cab offers a new Field Facts computer with bar graph display of engine rmp, as well as digital display of: ground speed, engine rpm, PTO rpm, hours of use, and area covered. Another significant option is the new AeroForm seat which is an air-ride suspension design with its own self-contained air supply.

Offering a broad choice of travel speeds, this tractor enables the operator to match the power to the job for optimum efficiency. Other features include six-cylinder diesel engine, a 3x6 transmission, and power hydraulic differential lock.

Grassland FFA'ers: From Black Creek To Chesapeake

BY PAT PURCELL

HAVRE DE GRACE, MD — "In youth we learn; in age we understand," is a quote by a Moravian born novelist and poet, Marie Ebner-Eschenbach, but it is also the motivation behind a group of Lancaster County students who recently traveled to the Chesapeake Bay.

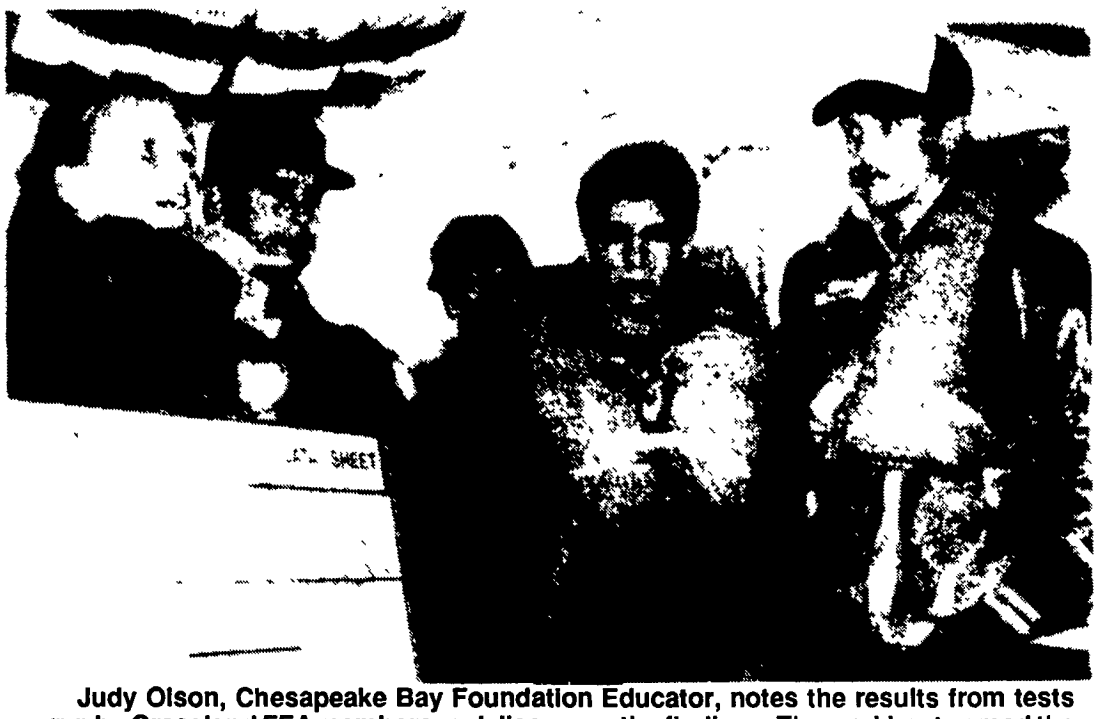
Mike Lindenmuth, of the environmental division of Garden Spot High School FFA, made friends with a Chesapeake Bay fish, the Hog Choker. Introducing students to the Bay's animal and plant life goes a long way in instilling concern over the environment.



Judy Olson, Chesapeake Bay Foundation Educator, notes the results from tests run by Grassland FFA members and discusses the findings. The workboat named the Susquehanna is used for field trips up to six days every week.

PENNSYLVANIA CHAPTER LICA

Grassland FFA'ers

students are studying how farming and non-farming activities affect the environment. Guided by Robert Lauffer, Grassland FFA advisor, this FFA chapter has undertaken many projects for improving water quality in local streams by implementing soil conservation and other practices to protect the environment.

As part of their Building Our American Communities (BOAC) Project, the environmental FFA chapter is working in cooperation with farmers Tom and Harold Wentzel on their farm near New Holland to make improvements in Black Creek. Coordinating the funding for this project, acquiring permits from local municipalities and gathering technical guidance from many organizations as well as conducting all the tests are the students' responsibility.

Recently these FFA'ers traveled nearly two hours south of their stream improvement project to the Chesapeake Bay. Since the Susquehanna River has such a vital impact on the Bay this field trip was an extension to their local project. They were able to conduct the same tests on the Bay as they have done on Black Creek and compare the results.

Crossing the Susquehanna River at the point where it enters the Chesapeake Bay, these young environmentalists could see how the previous week of hard, heavy rains in the Lancaster County area influenced Bay conditions.

Where the two bodies met the water resembled a strong cup of coffee with extra cream rather than a body of water which had once been home to more species of aquatic life than any other body of water in the world. Silt and sediment carried from hundreds of miles upstream had turned the water to an unappetizing brown color.

Fields with little or no soil erosion controls in use and from areas of development where earth had been carelessly exposed and unprotected, had both become the victims of a week-long rain storm. Top soil from hundreds of miles upstream turned the water brown as it flowed unchecked to choke life from the Bay. Named by the Indians to mean the Great Shellfish Bay, the only shellfish in abundance which still calls the Bay home is the crab.

Judy Olson, Educator from the Chesapeake Bay Foundation in Annapolis, noted that problems associated with manure runoff are as much a problem in the locality where it orginates as as it is in the Bay. She added that Lancaster County with its high density of livestock per acreas of land, has as a whole has been very receptive to joining in the effort to save the Bay.

"It may be because farmers are so tied to the land and are more conscious of a land ethic that farmers as a group seem to be more understanding of the vital connection between watermen and life in the Bay. Farmers and watermen are very similar," said Olson. "Watermen depend on the water for their livelihood."

Almost everyday of the week, Olson conducts fields trips on the Chesapeake Bay Foundation's work boat, aptly named the Susquehanna, which hosts mostly groups of students.

"When the kids see the water and the problems the Bay is having I think they begin to have a sense of appreciation for the animal life and the importance of protecting it," explained Olson.

"The important thing is to instill in them at an early age an evironmental ethic. Learning now what really is good for the environment and what isn't will make them understanding adults and more aware and sympathetic to environmental concerns." said Olson. "And that's important whether they are in Lancaster County, the Bay, or in California."

Donald Fair (front) Janetta Shirk and Tim Horst examine water quality results they ran during the Bay field trip. Grassland FFA students have focused their efforts to improve the water quality on Black Creek outside New Holland and are already experienced in testing procedures.

Governor Proclaims Pennsylvania Beef Day

HARRISBURG — Citing the cattle industry's contribution to the state's economy and beef's long history as a mainstay of the American diet, Gov. Robert P. Casey has designated June 19 as Pennsylvania Beef Day.

Since colonial times, beef has held a special place as a favorite entree for holiday meals. This Father's Day, many of us will partake of our favorite cuts of Pennsylvania beef around the family table or outside around the grill, prepared in our favorite way and with our favorite sauces.

In addition to serving as a mainstay of our meals, Pennsylvania beef retains an important role as a mainstay of the state's economy. Our Commonwealth ranks among the top 20 beef producing states in the nation. Pennsylvania farmers market approximately one million head of livestock annually, adding approximately $320 million to our economy and providing employment for thousands in the slaughter and packing industry and retail trade.

To mainstay beef's position of leadership among the nation's favorite foods, the industry has surrounded many challenges. In today's health-conscious society, consumers now demand meat with less fat and fewer calories. Pennsylvania's beef industry has responded with advances in genetics and feeding techniques with the result that beef is much leaner and lower in fat content, yet richer in nutrients, than 10 years ago.

In recognition of the value beef adds to our diets and to the state's economy, I, Robert P. Casey, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do hereby proclaim June 19, 1988, as PENNSYLVANIA BEEF DAY. I encourage all our citizens to include beef as a regular part of their meals throughout the coming year.

Since it was necessary for the governor to be out of town on other duties, Lt. Gov. Mark S. Singel officiated at the public ceremony in the Governor's Office on June 3.

Look Up Or... Look Down

Depending on your viewpoint, you could look up or look down as this huge over-the-road hydraulic crane took a new piece of equipment to the top of the Pennfield Feed Mill in Mount Joy (Lancaster County) last week. Pennfield had a formiable task to get this fines sifter up over their 180-foot building and back halfway to the top of the mill. But for this almost one-of-a-kind crane with a 250-ton picking capacity and a 300-foot reach from Greiner Industries Inc., Mount Joy, it was child's play. The crane only needed to use one extension.

Pennfield spokesmen, Mike Horn and Ray Lehr, said the equipment to screen out the fines from their dairy ration pellets as a final process was installed as a result of customer feedback and additional knowledge that has come from operating the new feed mill for the past ten months. Pennfield began operations in the fully automated dairy feed mill last fall.

"We designed the mill for flexibility from the start," Horn said. "Depending on the humidity and operator efficiency, you may only get 80-85 percent of the feed to stay in pellet form from older type mills. In our new mill we started out at about 95 percent and have increased that to 98½ percent. The new fines sifter will help us do an even better job," Horn said.

Lehr explained that the need to take the fines out of the pellets comes from feeding high-producing cows that are not really hungry. "We can put all of the nutrition possible in the feed, but if it's not in a form that the cow will eat we still don't get the job done," Lehr said. "It becomes more and more difficult to get large amounts of feed into the cow as the demand for more nutrition in high production comes along. Cows often will leave the fines lay in the feeder," Lehr said. "In addition, they will leave some of the pellets that are mixed in with the fines lay too."

Humidity also plays a big part in pellet hardness, according to Lehr. But he said that it seems like a bad excuse to tell the farmer this load of feed is different from last week's load because of the change in the weather. "We can't change the weather. But with our totally computerized mill, we can change the product to meet the farmer's need," Lehr said.

Horn talks about the Pellet Durability Index. With new equipment they take a sample of pellets and put it through rough abuse for ten minutes. The fines in the pellets are weighed and the computed result becomes the PDI. With the new equipment in place, farmer customers should see even less fines in their dairy pellet rations. The cow should eat better, and they should milk better. That's why you could look up or down according to your viewpoint last week at the Pennfield plant and see a new fines sifter put into place on top of the Pennfield Dairy Feed Mill in Mount Joy.

Experience for yourself the quality and value built into every 2-55 and 2-65 tractor. Come in today. It'll be worth the trip.

WHITE FARM EQUIPMENT

The 2-55 and 2-65 Field Boss utility tractors are packed with features to save time and effort around livestock operations.

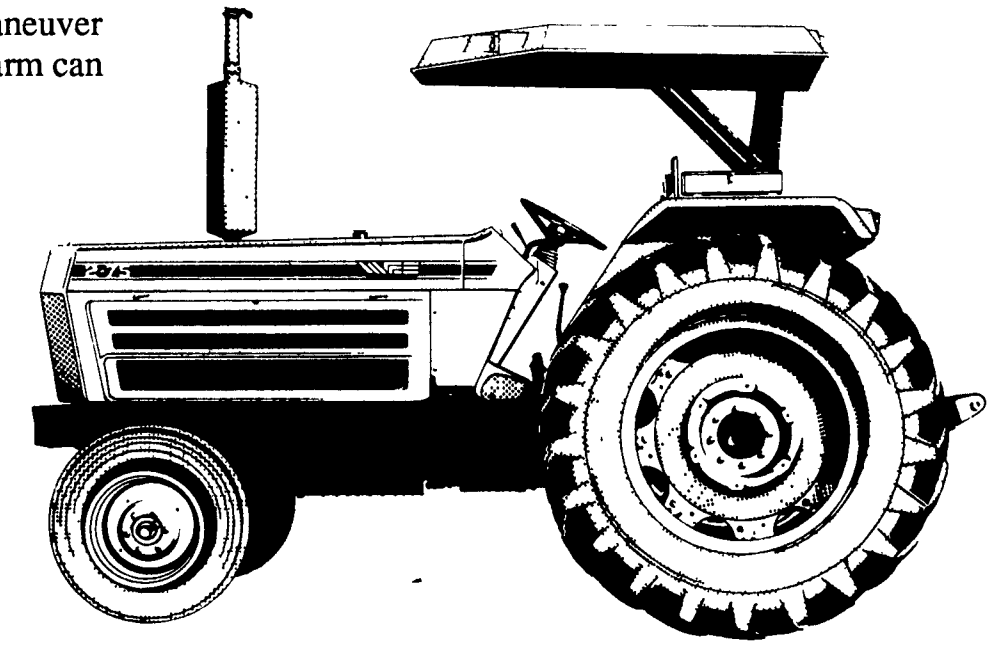
Big enough for the field, agile enough for the feedlot.

Whether you need to do heavy work in the field or maneuver around the feedlot, the 2-75 Field Boss® from White Farm can handle the job with ease.

Power to spare. The engine on this tractor is a beautiful 75* hp direct-fuel-injected six cylinder diesel. Teamed with the big-tractor power train and hydraulics, it makes the 2-75 more tractor than most utilities could ever be.

More standard features. What some other manufacturers call options come standard on the 2-75. Synchromesh transmission. Both 540 and 1000 rpm PTO. Two batteries for more starting power. Adjustable lower links on the 3-pt. hitch. And more!

Experience for yourself the quality and value built into the 2-75 tractor. You'll want to take one home.



Whatever you use a utility tractor to do, you'll like doing it better with a 2-75 Field Boss.

Franklin County Fair

The Hubcaps and their particular brand of 50's and 60's music will once again headline the entertainment at the Franklin County Fair, August 21-27.

The Hubcaps, who premiered at last year's fair, will appear on Thursday, August 25 at 8 p.m. Their appearance at the 1987 Fair drew the largest single night attendance ever in Fair history.

The seven-member member group has an across-the-board appeal that is responsible for huge crowds at their performances. Not only do those in the 35- to 45-year-old age group follow their music from the 50s and 60s but just as many college kids attend their shows. Their show also includes music from the 70s and today's top tunes.

Other entertainment during the 1988 Fair include:

Chantage, a group that offers pop, country, rock and classic music, will perform on Monday, August 22.

Peggy Howard and Country Class, a country show band from Philadelphia, will entertain on Tuesday, August 23.

Darleena Burke & Blazin' Country, a country band that has appeared often at the Appalachian Jubilee, will perform everything from 1950s traditional to today's Top-40 country on Wednesday, August 24.

Ernie Bradley & Grassy Ridge, a bluegrass and old time country music band from Maryland, will provide the entertainment on Friday, August 26.

The entertainment will begin each night at 8 p.m.

State Fairs Brochure

The Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs (PSACF) announces that a listing of all the agriculture fairs within the state is available in a colorful brochure. Each fair is listed by county, the fair name, the location, a contact person and the date for the 1987 event. For easier reference, the state is divided into four regions.

County fairs, the showplace of Pennsylvania agriculture, attracts millions during their June-through-October season. Nearly every county in Pennsylvania has at least one agriculture fair, and many have more than one. A total of 110 events are held yearly.

For a free copy of this brochure entitled "Have We Got A Fair For You," contact Beverly Snyder, Secretary, PSACF, Box 147, Emlenton, PA 16373.

Kempton Country Fair

Jeeps are tough! And racing is in! Put it together and you've got Off-Road Mountain Madness -- and this year it makes its debut at the Kempton Country Fair on Saturday and Sunday, June 18 and 19.

These sanctioned races hosted by the County Line Rough Riders, are scheduled to start at noon on Saturday with a series of figure 8s. Set up on a one-to-one basis, elimination determines the final winner.

According to club spokesmen, Jim Kopfer and Lou Sabo, about 100 to 125 participants have signed in already for the weekend event. All the vehicles are sanctioned E.C. 4 W.D.A.

"We'll have 10 or 11 meets during the year around the state," Jim said of the nine-year-old group, "but we're really looking forward to this one."

The big event, the Night-time Dirt Drags start at 7 p.m., Saturday evening and will finish up about 11 p.m. Sunday at noon the elimination obstacle races will take place. Here the 4-wheelers will speed through creek, trees, hills and dales until the two top competitors cop the prize.

Mountain Madness Racing plus the full schedule of tractor pulls: the sanctioned Class A Pulls planned for opening night, Friday, June 17, followed by the Farm Stock tractor pulls on Saturday at noon promise super activity in the natural amphitheater the entire weekend. Raindates for the tractor pulls are set for Saturday and Sunday at noon.

Spectators are invited to bring blankets or chairs to enjoy this battle of machine and element.

The Kempton Fair is a weeklong event, Friday evening through Sunday, June 17 to 19, and has an admission charge of $3. per person Friday and Saturday and $3. per carload on Sunday.

The Fair is located at the Kempton Community Center which is five miles north of Rt. 22 on either Rt. 737 (Kutztown interchange) or Rt. 143 at Lenhartsville. It is also reached from 309 on Rt. 143. For further information during the Fair, call (215) 756-6444.

Truth About Dairy Expiration Dates

WASHINGTON, DE — It is a dilemma everyone faces. You go into your refrigerator for a glass of milk on Saturday morning and yesterday's expiration date is stamped on the carton. Is the milk still safe to drink or should you throw it out?

If the product has been properly stored and transported from the dairy processor to your supermarket and then to your home, it should be good for another five to seven days past the date stamped on the carton.

That means that the temperature in your refrigerator must be about 38 degrees Fahrenheit and you must not have left the milk out on the counter for an extended period of time.

Dairy products are one of our most perishable foods. Use these tips as a guideline to determine how long you can keep milk and milk products past the expiration date:

Milk and Cream

These products can be stored five to seven days after the expiration date provided they have been properly refrigerated (38 degrees F.). Pour out only the amount that you will use and return the container to the refrigerator immediately. Do not pour milk that has been standing at room temperature back into the container.

Natural Cheeses

Cured cheeses will keep for several weeks if refrigerated. Unopened, vacuum sealed cheese may keep indefinitely. Original wrap, foil, and plastic bags are good wrappings for storing cheese in a refrigerator. Cheese which is frozen will keep almost indefinitely.

Yogurt

Yogurt can be kept 15 days or more with normal refrigeration. The longer you keep it, the more tart it will taste.

Sour Cream

Sour cream may be kept two to three weeks with normal refrigeration, but peak flavor lasts only one week.

Buttermilk

Use within five days for best flavor. Like yogurt and sour cream, it becomes more tart with age.

Ice Cream

Ice cream is good for up to two months if stored at 0 degrees F. or below. A tightly closed carton will prevent drying and crystal formation. To avoid crystalization after the ice cream has been opened, place the entire carton in a plastic bag.

The most important thing in determining how long the product will last past the expiration date is how well it was handled once you brought it home. If it is properly refrigerated, you should be able to enjoy it several days or weeks past the expiration date.

The Northeast's Share of an Expanding Fruit and Vegetable Market

BY TOM BREWER
Penn State
Ass't Professor of Ag Economics

In an earlier column I discussed the changing consumption patterns of fruits, vegetables and potatoes. In it, I indicated total fruit, vegetable and potato consumption in the United States had been increasing since 1970 because individuals were eating more of these products and because the population was increasing. The larger market that resulted had not been shared equally by all production regions. I hinted at the fact that the Northeast hadn't received "its share."

It is possible that the lack of growth here may have been due to the Northeast's heavy commitment to the processing market, particularly the canning part. It's not been geared to the fresh market and that's where much of the growth has been. Of course, table stock potatoes, fresh market apples, stone fruits and berries are exceptions to this general view, as are vegetables marketed directly to consumers. But overall, our emphasis in the Northeast has been slanted toward the processing industry. In the few instances where it hasn't, there has been little room for growth. In this column we'll look at consumption patterns and historical utilization of these Northeast produced fruits and vegetables in more detail.

Since the beginning of the 1970s per capita consumption of non-citrus fruit has increased 16%. Coupled with population growth this increase in per capita consumption has provided an opportunity for rapid growth in the non-citrus fruit industries. Responding in part to the expanding U.S. market, the country's fruit growers have increased production of non-citrus fruits by 43 percent.

All areas have not shared equally in that growth. Most of it has taken place on the West Coast and in Michigan. California increased its grape acreage in response to what was once a rapidly growing wine market. Ninety-six percent of the grapes used to produce wine are grown in California. Washington and to some degree Michigan have greatly increased tree fruit production capabilities. California and Florida have increased production of exotics such as Kiwi fruit.

Production has not increased appreciably in the Northeast and it certainly has not grown as fast as the total market for non-citrus fruit. Perhaps adjustments take more time in the tree fruit and vineyard industries, or perhaps Eastern growers can't compete with other regions for the expanding segments of the fruit market, but that is a subject for another column.

The U.S. vegetable production and marketing system has experienced a similar growth pattern. Per capita consumption of vegetables and melons has increased 12% since the early 1970s. Much of that growth, though, has been due to consumers' increasing use of fresh vegetables. Except for producers using direct marketing channels, the Northeast is not currently sufficiently organized to efficiently serve the fresh market.

The total growth in the vegetable market has provided expansion opportunities for the production side of the vegetable industry. Again not all areas have benefited. Per capita consumption of canned vegetables has declined. Total canned vegetable production is up though, due to population growth. In the past a high proportion of our vegetables in the Northeast was canned. Had the Northeast not lost much of its processing tomato market during this period, the tonnage of canned processing vegetables wouldn't have declined.

It is still unclear, though, whether or not processing vegetable production in the Northeast would have grown as quickly as the total canning market. Per capita consumption of frozen vegetables has increased more than 30% since 1970. It is another growth market which the Northeast has not emphasized, perhaps for very sound reasons. As a result of all factors mentioned, the total tonnage of vegetables for processing, canned, frozen and dried has increased 39% overall but has declined 24% in the Northeast since 1970.

On a per capita basis, consumption of fresh fruit has gone up 31% and fresh vegetable consumption has increased nearly 20%. In both cases this is a greater rate of growth than the corresponding increase in total per capita consumption combining both fresh and processed. Clearly, consumption levels of vegetables and fruit marketed in the processed form must have declined.

Per capita consumption of canned vegetables is at about 3/4 of the level of 15 years ago. Per capita canned fruit consumption has fallen about 15%. However, population growth has offset the decline in the individual's consumption of canned non-citrus fruit, to the point that the volume of fruit processed each year is at about the same level it was in the early 1970s. More people, each of whom is eating less, has led to stable tonnages of non-citrus fruit used for canning. No growth there.

The Northeast's heavy reliance on the canning industry as a market for apples, grapes, cranberries and other non-citrus fruits has led to a predominance of canning varieties. That market is showing little growth. Many of the apple and grape varieties presently grown are not highly sought after by fresh market buyers, and thus those growers are unable to capitalize on the rapid growth in the fresh market. Growers serving the canning vegetable industry have found that their buyers either have moved from the area or are showing little growth. Growers who had or are serving these markets have neither geared their operations to the fresh market nor developed an adequate infrastructure to interject themselves into that rapidly growing sector.

In a later column we'll discuss some possibilities for the Northeast grower.

NCGA Leaders Express Concerns Of Canadian Free Trade Agreement

WASHINGTON, D.C. — National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) President Keith Hora and Vice President of Government Relations Jack Kintzle recently met separately with the United States Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter and the Deputy Trade Representative Alan Holmer about the ongoing concerns of the corn growers to a number of agriculturally-related provisions in the U.S.-Canada Free Trade Agreement (FTA).

"The meetings were very open and frank with both sides gaining a greater appreciation for each other's respective views," Hora said. "While it is unfortunate that USTR did not respond to our initial concerns with the FTA, which were detailed in a letter ot Ambassador Yeutter for more than two months, I believe they have gained valuable insight into NCGA's stated opposition to the Treaty."

In addition, the corn grower leaders expressed their appreciation to both Ambassador Yeutter and Holmer in having the opportunity to detail in great length the reasons and concerns for the NCGA position.

WAYNE COUNTY DHIA
April, 1988

Robert Fielding & Son, #5 Lake Ariel, had the leading dairy herd in the Wayne County Dairy Herd Improvement Association in the April test period, according to the Cooperative Extension Service. The herd of 31 Holsteins had a rolling herd average of 19,166 pounds of milk and 771 pounds of butterfat.

Other top herds were: Kevin Burleigh, 20,372 milk and 751 fat; Charles P. USDA Announces Preliminary Results Of 1988 Farm Program Signup

WASHINGTON, DC — Producers have signed contracts to place 187.8 million acres of feed grain, wheat, upland and extra-long staple (ELS) cotton and rice in the 1988 acreage limitation programs, according to a preliminary report issued recently by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The acreage enrolled in 1988 commodity programs represents 83.4 percent of the 225.2 million acres of total crop acreage bases established for these commodities. For the 1987 programs, 86.5 percent of the 226.4 million acres of total crop acreage bases was enrolled.

The following table is a national summary of the enrollment report.

	Effective Base	Enrolled Base	Idled Base	0/92 50/92	Percent Enrolled
Corn	83.4	72.5	20.9	(3.0)	86.9
Sorghum	17.0	13.8	4.1	(1.1)	81.3
Barley	12.6	9.9	2.9	(0.6)	78.3
Oats	8.0	2.4	0.3	(0.2)	30.2
Feed Grains	121.0	98.6	28.2	(4.9)	81.5
Wheat	85.3	72.6	22.8	(3.4)	85.2
Cotton-Upland	14.6	12.8	2.1	(0.5)	88.0
-ELS	0.1	0.01	0.001	-	10.2
Rice	4.2	3.8	1.1	(0.1)	92.1
Total	225.2	187.8	54.2	(8.9)	83.4

Producers who participate in the annual commodity programs agree to reduce their plantings from the established crop acreage bases by at least 20 percent for corn, sorghum and barley, 5 percent for oats, 27.5 percent for wheat, 12.5 percent for upland cotton, 10 percent for ELS cotton and 25 percent for rice.

0/92 and 50/92 program acreage is included in the total crop acreage bases idled.

In addition, producers of corn, sorghum and barley had the option of further reducing their plantings by 10 percent by participating in a paid land diversion program. Under this option, 4.1 million acres will be diverted, including 3.2 million of corn acreage.

Participating producers will be eligible for program benefits, including Commodity Credit Corporation price support loans and purchases and deficiency payments. In addition, at the time they enrolled in the programs, producers had the option of requesting 40 percent of their projected 1988 deficiency payments. One-half of this amount was paid in cash at signup and the balance will be paid in generic commodity certificates in the latter half of this month.

The optional diversion payment to corn, sorghum and barley producers will be paid entirely in generic commodity certificates this month also.

Signup for the 1988 feed grain, wheat, cotton and rice programs began Feb. 16 and ended April 15.
